Prizes Awarded Weymouth Health Week

Many organizations were interested in Weymouth "Health Week" which was observed this week.

At High school hall on Monday evening Dr. George E. Emerson presided. A pleasing play was presented by the children of East Weymouth entitled: "The Quest of the Fountain of Health", under the direction of Miss Canterbury and Mrs. Eugene Smith. It was enacted by 30 children from the James Humphrey Grammar school of East Weymouth under the direction of Miss Rosamond Cunniff of the corps of teachers. The principal parts were taken by Miss Ruth Hanley, Miss Nancy Roche and Thomas Scott. A solo dance was executed by Miss Margaret Wise. The pianists were Miss Celia Joy and Miss Isabel Loud. Health songs and recitations were given by Miss Dorothy DeNeil, Miss Barbara Loud and Raymond Hollis from the Hunt Grammar school at Weymouth Landing. Three patrols of eight members each, from the Girl Scouts, troops 1 and 2 of North Weymouth and troop 1 of East Weymouth, gave exhibitions in open formation of exercises for the benefit of the physical condition of girls, in charge of Miss Dorothy Deane, field captain of Girl Scouts in this district and Miss Deane gave an address explanatory. An address was delivered by Dr. George E. O'Donnell, State district health officer of Massachusetts on the theme of "Community Health".

Tuesday evening Mrs. J. B. Jones presided. The play was repeated with equal success, also the costume dance and the health songs. Boy Scouts gave a demonstration under the direction of Rev. Charles W. Allen and Dr. Merrill E. Champion of the Massachusetts department of health, spoke on "The desirability of establishing a dental clinic in Weymouth."

RUSSELL B. WORSTER

Sudden Death of Russell B. Worster

One of Weymouth's best known and popular citizens, Russell B. Worster, died very suddenly Sunday morning at his home, 64 Commercial street. The news came as a great shock to the whole community as he was at his office the day before Thanksgiving.

Funeral services were held at his late residence on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The Rev. Chester W. Underhill, former pastor of the Weymouth Baptist church, officiated. While living in Weymouth Mr. Underhill and Mr. Worster were thrown together a great deal in community affairs and became fast friends. Mr. Underhill's service was beautiful and comforting. He spoke particularly of Mr. Worster's fine work in his town, of his willingness to be of service and his splendid loyalty as a friend. Mr. Underhill's straight-forward, brotherly sermon touched the hearts of all present and he was a friend come back to friends in their sorrow.

The Concorde Quartette rendered some very appropriate selections, including "Crossing the Bar", "Just Beyond the Hilltop", "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" and "Abide with Me."

Delta lodge of Masons of Braintree conducted their services with Worshipful Master Harry S. Beck and Chaplain Josephus Sampson performing the ceremony. A large number of the members were present.

Delphi lodge, Knights of Pythias, attended as a body and there was a delegation from the Weymouth fire department in uniform. Relatives, friends, residents filled the house.

The profusion of rare and exquisite flowers showed in what esteem Mr. Worster was held in his community. Floral tributes came from the Pythias Temple, Braintree; Delta lodge of Masons, South Shore; Knights of Pythias, South Shore; Firemen's Union, Association Combination 3, sealers of weights and measures, South Shore Co-operative Bank, The Weymouth and Braintree Realty Co., Police Department, Men's Club of All Souls church of Braintree, Pray & Kelly, The Electric Light Commission and "Business Friends of Weymouth." Beside these were many, many individual tributes and a sweet expression of sympathy in lovely flowers from the Junior class of the Weymouth High school.

The bearers were: Edward W. Hunt, J. Edward Ludden, Arthur H. Pratt, Charles W. Baker, Herbert G. Johnson and Charles G. Jordan.

Mr. Worster lived in Weymouth all his life, went into business here, was representative from this district to the State Legislature in 1908, served many years in the Weymouth fire department, being an ex-district chief, was a special police officer, sealer of weights and measures, a member of Delta lodge, A. F. & A. M.; Delphi lodge, Knights of Pythias; Pentalfa Royal Arch Chapter; South Shore Commandery; Knights Templar; Aleppo Temple of Mystic Shrine, Men's Club of All Souls Church Braintree, an incorporator of the Weymouth Savings Bank, and member of the Weymouth Electric Light Commission, and a town meeting member from Ward 3 under the new form of modified town meeting, auctioneer, notary public, food administrator during the war, director of the South Shore Co-operative Bank, director in the Weymouth and Braintree Realty Co. and a friend to every one.

In his 49 years of life he lived heart and soul in the community life of his town and his going out is a great loss.

During the funeral services flags were displayed at half mast and all places of business were closed, a fitting mark of great respect. As long as this generation lives memories of "Russ" Worster, his kind deeds, splendid service to his town will be cherished.

OUR HOLIDAYS

The suggestion of a Boston paper that the holidays be consolidated has some merit, especially Armistice Day and Thanksgiving. It is very probable that Armistice day will become a holiday, but Thanksgiving is in the same month. Weekly newspapers do not like a holiday on either Thursday or Friday. Another good suggestion is to observe Memorial Day on the last Sunday in May.

CHRISTMAS ADVERTISING

Weymouth merchants did not propose to be behind Boston this year in advertising Christmas goods. The Gazette-Transcript last week presented quite a holiday appearance, and the children say the best advertisements are those which mention Christmas the most times.

SUPERIOR COURT SITTINGS

Weymouth is credited with being in favor of Superior court sittings in Quincy, but there is very little enthusiasm here for such a change and taxpayers probably are against any increase in county taxes. Something must be done to reduce taxes, both in the nation, the state, the county and the town. Weymouth this year is setting a good example in this direction.

UNIVERSAL CALENDAR

Congressman Schall of Minnesota has offered a bill in Congress for a new Universal calendar, which we would like to see adopted. It provides for 13 months, each month to have 28 days, to begin on a Monday and end on a Sunday. The new month between February and March would be known as "Vern" signifying Spring. Under such a calendar the Fourth of July would always come on a Thursday, the 22nd of February on a Monday, the 17th of June on a Friday. The second Tuesday of a month would then always fall on the 9th, and the third Wednesday on the 17th, and so on. Now the Gazette sometimes prints four issues in a month and sometimes five, making a difference in bills for advertising and sales. Thirteen months with 28 days would make a total of 364 and it is proposed to put in an extra day between December and January to be observed as a Sunday. In Leap-year two days would thus be inserted.
The new calendar has many other good points.

PERCENT NATIVE BORN

It will surprise many to learn that only one of the Massachusetts cities and towns, of 10,000 to 25,000 population, has a larger percentage of native born than Weymouth. That Greenfield with 82.9 percent is the only town leading Weymouth, and Weymouth is less than one percent below.

There are 39 cities and towns in the list as given by the National Census Bureau, and towns like Plymouth, Adams, Norwood, Peabody and others have less than 70 percent.

The percentages are given below:

Weymouth	82.0
Adams	69.5
Amesbury	78.3
Arlington	77.8
Attleboro	75.4
Belmont	76.1
Beverly	76.1
Braintree	78.4
Clinton	68.3
Danvers	80.3
Dedham	73.5
Easthampton	69.3
Framingham	75.4
Gardner	67.1
Saugus	77.1
Southbridge	70.6
Wakefield	74.4
Watertown	72.8
Webster	71.7
West Springfield	77.5
Westfield	75.4
Winchester	77.1
Winthrop	78.3
Woburn	74.5

By native born is meant those born in the United States.

NEW SAFETY GATE FOR RAILROAD CROSSINGS DECLARED FOOL PROOF

Officials of the Chicago elevated railway lines have tested a new safety gate for railroad crossings which is said to be "fool-proof" against the careless automobile driver who now and then drives through the old-fashioned wooden gate and wakes up with a harp. The new gate will not allow an automobile to pass. If a car runs into it the gate gives several feet and then bounces the car back like a rubber ball.

CLEANING CAR NOW FINE ART

Using Modern Methods Owner
May Keep His Machine Looking
New all the Time.

WASHING NOT CASUAL JOB

Large Sponge Sopped Against Surface
So That Water Trickles Down in Best Way—Use Chamois for Polishing.

The last two or three years have brought a very remarkable development in American body building. The mechanism of the modern motor car has reached an approximate degree of perfection, leaving the manufacturers free to devote more time to increasing the attractiveness of the vehicle. The present day American car as it leaves the factory is really a thing of beauty with the highly polished surfaces and shiny metal. Naturally this has induced the owner to take more pride in keeping up the appearance of the gasoline steed. The result is that cleaning methods and equipment have greatly advanced over those of a few years back.

Easy to Keep Clean.

The present day owner using modern methods may keep his car looking new all the time, nor will he have to spend more than a few moments a day to accomplish this end. For instance, there are now on the market a number of liquid and wax polishes which will give admirable results if they are used as directed.

In the use of wax polishes the first step is to clean the body of the car thoroughly. The polish is applied to the surface with a piece of cheese cloth and then another clean cloth is used to distribute the wax evenly all over the surface. Car owners commonly make the mistake of thinking that the more wax applied the better. As a matter of fact a very thin film is all that is needed.

Washing the car is not the casual job some owners seem to imagine. To begin with, the car should be washed immediately after it has been dirty. If mud is allowed to remain on the varnished surface more than a day it is difficult to eradicate it. For the washing plain water should be used, neither too hot nor too cold, about 50 degrees Fahrenheit being the proper temperature. A large sponge soaked in clear water and then sopped against the surface so that the water trickles down is best. Never turn a stream of water at high pressure on the body.

Use Chamois for Drying.

In drying the body a clean chamois skin should be used, rubbing being done in straight lines. If spots of tar or road oil are found on the body it is best to treat them with salt butter or kerosene. The butter softens the deposit so that it may be wiped off easily. Kerosene should be applied locally and wiped off within a minute.

To keep pace with the improved appearance of the body it is necessary to give some attention to the top and the upholstery. A weekly brushing of the top, inside and out, will aid materially in its life. Fabric tops should never be cleaned with gasoline, kerosene, or other oils, as they tend to destroy the rubber in the top. Castile soap and water applied with a stiff brush is the best cleansing medium for the top.

HOW TO PRESERVE RUBBER

Saturated Solution of Turpentine in Alcohol Makes an Effective and Simple Dressing.

A saturated solution of turpentine in alcohol makes an effective preservative for rubber. The point of saturation is reached when a drop of undissolved turpentine remains suspended in the alcohol and a little more of the spirit should be added to dissolve the turpentine. Rubber articles should be painted with this solution occasionally.

NO TROUBLE TO KEEP CAR QUIET

Oil Can and Wrench Will Banish the Squeaks.

Necessary to See That All Parts Are Greased Regularly and That All Nuts Are Properly Tightened.

There is no excuse for a noisy automobile. Only carelessness and lack of attention can account for squeaks in any car. The automobile that passes you, carrying its own band is a reflection on the owner and he may be set down as thoughtless. "Sometimes it is hard to find a squeak, but that does not mean that it is hard to find the big ones," says a prominent dealer. "The one and only enemy of the squeak is the oil can and the single enemy of the rattle is the wrench. Keep the car tightened up and the parts greased sufficiently and your car will run as silently and smoothly after a year's use as the day you bought it."

"It is not necessary to be everlastingly at it. But it is necessary to see that all parts are greased regularly. If you have a driver see that he takes care of the car properly, that he goes over it carefully all the time and greases and oils it when he should. If you drive and care for your own car, you must grease it and oil it regularly. Take the oiling chart and make it a rule to do your work at stated intervals."

"Keep the car lubricated. It will repay you in added car life, minimum mechanical trouble and greater satisfaction all round."

D. A. R. MEETING

The Susannah Tufts chapter, D. A. R., of Weymouth met with Mrs. Wendell B. Clapp, 38 Front street, Weymouth, on Monday afternoon. There were 18 members and four guests present in spite of the stormy weather. The regent, Mrs. Herman H. Wieting presided. "America" was sung, followed by the Lord's Prayer. The report of the previous meeting was read by the recording secretary, Miss Lucy M. Crane, and was accepted.

A letter from Franklin P. Shumway was read giving an account of the Hillside School for Boys, also the names of those who are descendants of Revolutionary soldiers. A communication from the president-general, N. S. D. A. R., Mrs. George Maynard Miner, was presented. It was voted to send a letter of sympathy to Mrs. J. G. Worster, whose son, Russell B. Worster, died recently.

Mrs. Wilson Marsh of Quincy gave a very interesting paper entitled: "Hancock Street Burial Ground", which is opposite the Stone Temple in Quincy. Among the names of prominent men buried there are the ancestors of President John Adams.

John Hancock, John Quincy for whom the city of Quincy is named; Edmund Quincy and Leonard Hall, the first president of Harvard college. Mrs. Marsh gave some of the quaint epitaphs upon the headstones.

A rising vote of thanks was given Mrs. Marsh. After a salute to the flag the meeting was adjourned.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Clapp, Miss Nash and Mrs. Garvin.

Gorges Causes

Arrest of Weston

EARLY HISTORY OF WEYMOUTH

By Rev. William Hyde

No. 13—The Gorges Settlement

I have already stated that the number of emigrants on Gorges ships was 120, but we are not sure that all of these settled in Wessagusset, for some of them were passengers for Virginia.

After the company had landed and they had spent some time in putting things in order and getting settled, Captain Robert Gorges sent word to Governor Bradford at Plymouth of his arrival. This was very necessary, as besides being lieutenant of the Council for New England, he also had a commission as Governor of New England. This commission was granted by the King, and as Governor of New England, he was Governor over Plymouth.

In sending notice to Bradford of his arrival, Gorges also sent information of his commission. This was of such a nature that it must have filled the Pilgrims with alarm; for here was a man come who could cause them much trouble, as he could make himself ruler over them and they might have to obey, and the sweet liberty which they came to America for would be taken from them.

Governor Bradford then made ready to pay a visit to the new governor at Wessagusset. In the meantime, before Bradford was able to reach Wessagusset, Gorges had started for the coast of Maine with the hope of finding Thomas Weston.

Sir Ferdinando Gorges had a grievance against Weston, because he had gone to New England without the authority of the Council for New England and because of the failure of the enterprise at Wessagusset.

Gorges had not been gone many days when he met a severe storm and as the danger seemed great he turned back, and finally came into Plymouth Harbor. While Gorges was at Plymouth, Thomas Weston arrived there also. This was the time he was looking for his lost colony.

Gorges had him arrested and arranging a sort of council he presented Weston for trial. Gorges had two complaints against Weston. First the disorder and failure of the Weston settlement. Second, an illicit arms transactions in England.

The first charge was easily met, as Weston was not in Wessagusset at the time, so could not be blamed for the failure.

Weston as we know was an iron merchant and he seems to have had to do with the sale of arms. The illicit transaction in arms was the sale of them to parties on the continent, and as England was at war at this time with some nations on the continent, it was considered by Gorges to be wrong for Weston to sell to any nation on the continent.

We are not told how Weston met this accusation, but with some help from Bradford, Weston was set at liberty.

After having been in Plymouth for several weeks, Gorges went back to Wessagusset, but he left his ship in Plymouth. Then there were two ships with their crews in Plymouth those of Gorges and Weston.

While the vessels lay in the harbor, some of the crews with other sailors dwelt in a house in Plymouth. This was early in November, 1623, and as it was close on Guy Fawkes day, they resolved to celebrate it, so on Nov. 5, they had a celebration with merry making and it being very cold they had too much fire and set the house on fire in which they were making merry. The flames spread to other buildings and there was danger of the Plymouth settlement being consumed.

The fire was finally overcome, but not till it had destroyed three or four buildings and the fire of Nov. 5, 1623, was long remembered in Plymouth. Some of the families who lost in this fire, afterwards went back to England in one of Gorges vessels.

Soon after this, Captain Gorges decided to arrest Weston again, so he sent an officer with power to Plymouth, who arrested Weston and took him with his ship "The Swan" to Wessagusset, where they remained during the winter of 1623 and 1624. The officer he sent to Plymouth was Captain Hanson of the "Prophet Daniel".

Weston was rather pleased to be arrested in this way, for the crew on board the "Swan" were in need of their wages and Weston was getting to the end of his resources. For this reason Weston made no opposition to the arrest, but went willingly to Wessagusset.

After this Gorges went on a journey to Virginia in the ship "Katherine" which he had left at Plymouth, and after transacting the business he had in Virginia, he came back to Wessagusset.

There we find the Gorges Company and a part of the Weston Company at Wessagusset during the winter of 1623 and 1624. It must have been a dreary time for Gorges during that winter. The snow was on the ground and he had hoped to enjoy the pleasures of the wilderness, but here he was living in a log hut on the edge of the forest near the salt marsh and the sea. There was the ocean in front of them, the wilderness behind them; fowling and fishing did not amount to much; for the waters were covered with ice and the woods could not be explored on account of the snow, and thus Robert Gorges got through the winter and longed for spring and summer. He had intended to send Weston back to England that he might be tried, but when the spring came he forgot all about it, or came to the conclusion that nothing could be done as the case against Weston was a poor one after all.

As it came near the spring, Gorges decided to go on a visit to the fishing station on the coast of Maine, taking Weston with him as a pilot and while there Gorges paid a visit to David Thompson's at his Piscataqua plantation and to Christopher Levitt at his station in York, now Portland.

From Levitt, and at the fishing stations, Gorges received letters from his father, Sir Ferdinando, as late as early in 1624, and these letters contained bad news. Some members had deserted the Council for New England they did not pay their pledges, so money did not come in, and Sir Ferdinando's own resources were almost gone, a new parliament was expected and there was not much hopes in it for Gorges. Sir Ferdinando advised his son to return to England till some better opportunity came for him to go back again to New England.

Gorges went back in the "Swan" with Weston to Wessagusset, and there he remained till the warmer weather came and then went back to England. Some of his settlers went with him and also some relatives that came over with him and thus the great Gorges' influence in New England, for a time at least, came to an end.

A part of his company in conjunction with some of Weston's people still remained, and continued the settlement so that it might after this be called the Gorges-Weston Colony.

Some of the writers about those early days have written of Weston and his colony coming to an end after the Indian fight, when the settlement was for a time given up, but in 1624 we find some of Weston's people joined with the Gorges people and Thomas Weston himself is with them.

Weston finally left some of his people in Wessagusset, and went around the coast as a trader with others of the Weston people with him, many of whom he had succeeded in finding on the Maine coast and in the end as I have already stated he went to Maryland.

It will be remembered that Admiral West was sent out with Gorges as an aid to him. West had as an assistant Captain Squibb, who was in command of the "Katherine." The special function of the Admiral was to aid Gorges when necessary and to put down the lawlessness and disturbance among the fishermen on the coast and bring them under the control of the Council for New England.

There had been many complaints about the fishermen along the coast of Maine and elsewhere. They had Maypoles and enjoyed themselves and as the Council for New England undertook to control them and make them get grants from the Council to fish; and also tried to make them pay a tax on all the fish they caught, there was much trouble with them. They refused to pay the tax, didn't think it necessary to get a grant from the Council and as neither Gorges or West could do anything with them West also had to give up and go back to England. Robert Gorges was in poor health when he went back to England and not long afterward he died.

He has also had considerable experience as a Y. M. C. A. leader of boys' work. We are very fortunate to have Mr. Hester with us in both services to furnish vocal music.

RED CROSS ROLL CALL
Almost all of the returns are in for the Red Cross roll call in East Weymouth and those in charge feel that a great deal of credit is due to the 35 canvassers who covered the town so thoroughly and the shoe factories and the woolen mill. Also thanks are due to the stores of Jackson Square and its vicinity, as they responded with nearly triple the membership of last year.

The Weymouth chapter American Red Cross gratefully acknowledges the exceedingly generous contributions of Mrs. Edwin Clapp and of Edwin Clapp & Son, Inc. For all donations large and small are doubly welcome, as the money stays in Weymouth to be used for our home service work.

We also retain 50¢ of the annual membership fee and this year 426 names are entered as against 376 last year in East Weymouth.

The announcements in the churches in the Monday Club and through the courtesy of the Weymouth Gazette have all helped to remind people that their obligations to the ex-service men have not yet been fulfilled. For notwithstanding the present period of local unemployment, the total returns from East Weymouth approximated $600, a gain of $200 over 1920-21.

STORE TO REOPEN
Three weeks ago the Quincy Department store was visited by a disastrous fire, estimated at $50,000 to $100,000 on building and contents. Mr. Fitzpatrick says he had a stock valued at retail at $126,000, but the floor fell into the basement and little was left of his stock; it was lost or practically ruined. What was saved was removed to another building and a fire sale is now in progress there.

But a miraculous change has taken place at the old stand. In a few days, after insurance was adjusted, men worked in relays day and night. All partitions were removed, a new metallic ceiling, new heating, new lighting fixtures etc. And at present writing new counters are being installed, but before 3 P. M. tomorrow these counters will be loaded with new goods—a most complete dry goods store, and also furnishing, for ladies, gentlemen, young people, children and babies. And also a big basement Toy Land for the Christmas holidays, and a bargain basement.

The store furnishings are most up to date, the decorations being in two shades of gray, the lighting indirect through white domes, the heating indirect through the floor. With the partitions removed the store looks very much larger and decidedly attractive. Weymouth people are invited by the advertisement on page 16 to the inspection tomorrow at 3 P. M. Take the children to see Santa Claus.

BRAINTREE POINT

The Cochato Veteran Firemen's Association held a very enjoyable smoker at their quarters on Wednesday. Songs and recitations were provided by local talent. The Vets do not intend to hibernate, but are planning various social activities, including a regular old-fashioned "Firemen's Feed." If past reputations for abundance and excellence of viands are maintained, it should be some supper.

Quite a number of the Point residents visited out-of-town friends and relatives Thanksgiving Day. Mrs. Cameron Stewart and family went to Waltham, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Clark attended a family reunion at Concord; George E. Dorman and family went to Brookline; Charles Berstead and family visited in Hingham.

Among those who entertained out of town visitors were George Pratt of Argyle road, who had the other members of the Pratt family; Mrs. Peter Walsh of Edge Hill road, who entertained the Misses Mary and Alice Walsh from Lawrence; H. B. Williams of Edge Hill road took a party of friends to Harnack beach for a day's shooting, while the ladies visited with Mrs. Williams. Mr. Williams or "Pop" is an expert shot with rifle, pistol or gun and demonstrated the fine points of wing shooting. Harry Stewart and family of Stoneham visited his parents on Arborway drive.

Scoreless Soccer
Braintree Welfare played Fore River to a scoreless tie Thanksgiving Day at Fore River River field. The field as ankle deep with slush and mud. It is our personal private opinion that any sane person who will get out and play soccer on such a field, certainly loves the game. And the reason who will stand out there, dodging rain and sleet and watch a game, love soccer still more. The periods were cut to 35 minutes, which was plenty long enough for all concerned.

Fore River is slipping and Braintree is improving. On Thanksgiving Day two years ago Fore River defeated the crack Bethlehem team. Thursday they were mighty lucky to get a draw from Braintree. Braintree had the edge all through the contest, but could not score. It seems as though the boys get stage fright whenever they get near the goal. This failing has been noticed before on dry fields, so they can't blame the weather entirely. The replay under decent conditions will be well worth seeing.

Braintree-Goal: Davison, Backs, Gunning and Hamilton; halfbacks: McAuley, Littlejohn and Ritchie; forwards: Bradford, Church, Doherty, Hood and Russell.

Fore River-Goal: Clawson; Backs, Lyons and Lewis; halfbacks: Lovey, Workman and Stewart; forwards: Wilson, Jones, Steady, Doherty and Millward; referee: T. Ritchie, Quincy. Time two 35m periods.

WEYMOUTH FAIR OFFICERS

Hearing on Assessments for Quincy Ave. Bridge

Notices have been issued for hearings on apportioning the cost of the Monatikot bridge on Quincy avenue. On May 25, 1917, an act passed the legislature giving the Norfolk county commissioners permission to seize land remove the old bridge and erect a new bridge across the Monatikot river. The act provided for the appointment of three commissioners, none of whom should live or have their place of business in either Plymouth or Norfolk counties whose duty should be to hear the various parties after the final cost was determined and to apportion such cost according to the benefit derived, these commissioners to make their report to the Superior court. The commissioners appointed by the court to make findings were Frederick H. Chase, George L. Mayberry and Frederick B. Hall, attorneys of Boston.

In 1918, 1919 and 1920 the Norfolk county commissioners were given additional time to complete the work and additional appropriations, $50,000 on May 31, 1918; $75,000 on March 21, 1919; and $55,000 on March 3, 1920, making a total of $280,000 authorized to be expended.

At various times bills have been presented to have the Plymouth county towns assessed in the act, but they have not been passed. Now on petition of John W. McAnarney, city solicitor of Quincy; William J. Holbrook, town counsel of Weymouth and Charles C. Mellen, town counsel of Braintree, the notice for a hearing is issued by the commissioners.

Among the towns included in the notices are Abington, Hanover, Brockton, Hingham, Middleboro, Norwell, Rockland, Plymouth, Bridgewater and Whitman.

BRAINTREE'S NEW FLAG

The secrecy regarding the donors of the new flagpole and flag on the Legion building at Braintree was solved this week. It seems the pole as given by Fred Lawley and the flag by N. E. Hollis and A. C. Drinkwater. The Post and the citizens appreciate the gift.

BATES-REED

Miss Marion Reed, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Josiah B. Reed, and Clinton Irving Bates, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis F. Bates of East Braintree were married at the bride's home on Torrey street on Friday evening, Nov. 25, at 7.30 o'clock by the Rev. L. W. Attwood, pastor of the Universalist church of Abington. The bride was attended by Miss Lucia Nash, the best man was Mr. Robert E. Parker of Roxbury. The bride was dressed in a gown of chantilly lace over bride satin, with orange blossoms and her maid was dressed in blue satin with silver trimmings. The ushers were Walter V. Reed and George Reed of South Weymouth and Harold Brackett and Morrill R. Allen of East Braintree.

Following the ceremony a reception was held from 8 to 9.30 o'clock at Miss Reed's home and the bridal couple were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Bates and Miss Lucia Nash and Mr. Robert Parker. Music was furnished by the Vining Trio of Providence, R. I. Guests were present from New York, New Jersey, Vermont, New Hampshire, Braintree and the Weymouths.

Daughters of Isabella Initiate 350 Women

Over 350 women were enrolled on Sunday as members of the new Weymouth Circle, Daughters of Isabella, at Knights of Columbus hall, Weymouth. The initiation ceremony was by Deputy State Regent Mrs. Caroline B. Manning of New Bedford, assisted by a degree staff from Taunton.

During the degree work the new choir of the circle, directed by Mrs. Alice Fitzsimmons, rendered the music with solo parts by Miss Bessie Dpovnan, Mrs. Mary McGrath and Miss Annie Knox. The following officers were elected and installed by the Deputy State Regent and her suite:

Regent, Miss Helen Griffin; past regent, Miss Ellen Coffey; vice regent, Miss Susan Sheehan; treasurer, Miss Julia Looney; financial secretary, Louise Hughes; recording secretary, Miss Helen Field; custodian, Mrs. Anora Joyce; chancellor, Miss Loretta Coyle; monitor, Miss Augusta Wagner; pianist, Mrs. Alice Fitzsimmons; inside guard, Miss Elizabeth McCarthy; outside guard, Miss Lora Mackett; first guard, Miss Elizabeth Fahie; second guard, Miss Anna Eagan; scribe, Miss Helen Condrick; banner bearer, Miss Anna Daley; trustees, Miss Annie Conroy, Miss Margaret Gardner and Mrs. Margaret Coughlin.

At the close of work addresses were made by Rev. Patrick J. Dawson, chaplain; Thomas Kelly, grand knight of Weymouth council, K. of C.;

Daniel Cummings and the visiting officers from Quincy and Milton. A lunch was served by Mrs. Annie Lynch and a corps of women helpers. Mrs. Manning, the deputy State regent received a bouquet, and Miss Helen Griffin, the regent-elect was presented with a purse of $50 in gold. A community sing was the closing feature.

LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

On the afternoon of Nov. 18 a meeting was held in G. A. R. hall, East Weymouth, for the purpose of forming a League of Women Voters in Weymouth. Mrs. George W. Perkins of Boston was the speaker for the afternoon and gave an interesting and enlightening talk on the obligations of women as voters.

Mrs. Alice Pierce Jewell of Weymouth was elected president of the Weymouth League; Mrs. Annie J. Libby of East Weymouth, vice president and Miss Gladys M. Polfe of Weymouth Heights, secretary.

The league is a non-partisan organization, not a women's party, nor a separate political party. It is formed to carry on education in citizenship and to support improved legislation. Its members are urged to become enrolled voters in the party of their choice. It is hoped that every woman voter in Weymouth will become a member of the league.

FIRES AT QUINCY

Quincy had two big fires this week: at noon on Monday the residence of Herbert S. Barker on President's hill was damaged $10,000, and at midnight the Casino theatre building at Quincy Point was damaged $6000.

No Superior Court Sittings At Quincy

The Quincy bill, passed by the last legislature, which provided for sittings of the Superior court at Quincy it approved before Dec. 31, 1921, by the Norfolk county commissioners, was turned down by said commissioners at a regular meeting on Monday of this week. The county commissioners declined to accept the act. The expenditure incurred in providing accommodation for such sittings was limited to $5000.

In a recent interview Chairman John F. Merrill of the board, who is a resident of Quincy, stated that a poll of citizens in Norfolk county regarding the expenditure of $5000 for the proposed sessions of the Superior court at Quincy disclosed this sentiment:

"Favorable, population, 73,513; valuation represented, $75,913,242. Opposed, population, 100,000 valuation, $201,782,612."

Chairman Merrill gave out the following statement of the commission:

"Of the proponents of the act a summary of the arguments at the public hearing that was held would indicate that the city of Quincy and the towns of Weymouth and Braintree were unanimously in favor of approval of the act. Of the opponents represented at the hearing, the towns of Brookline, Milton, Dedham, Norwood, Wellesley, Franklin and Sharon appeared in opposition, either by counsel or town officials.

"The towns not represented at the hearing, but that opposed the approval by official signed action by the Boards of Selectmen, are Westwood, Dover, Plainville, Needham and Foxboro."

C. M. A. NOTES

The Business Men's gym class is growing, both in attendance and in enthusiasm each week. The class meets Monday and Friday from 5 to 6 P. M. All men need exercise to keep in good physical condition. If you are feeling fine this class is just what you need to keep you in trim. Don't wait until the doctor orders you to exercise as it is much easier to keep in good condition than to try to rebuild after a breakdown. Visitors are always welcome. Come in and see what we do.

The C. M. A. will be represented by three uniformed basketball teams this season and some good fast games are assured. The former Madison A. A. team now playing as the C. M. A. Second team will open the season next Saturday night when they meet the North Abington Y. M. C. A. Second team at North Abington.

The C. M. A. Juniors lost their first game last Saturday afternoon to the Wilson Five of the West End House. Next Saturday afternoon they meet the Emmanuel House Juniors of Boston.

It is not too late to join the ladies' or girls' classes.

Junior boys gym classes Monday Wednesday and Saturday. Be sure to join before the athletic events start.

Suitable For Presents

Ever Welcome Gifts

If a Christmas were to come and go without leaving with us pin-cushions, pin-holders, garters and other pretty furbelows made of ribbon, it would be remembered with something of disappointment. A heart-shaped pin-cushion, a small bag for holding pins and a pair of ribbon-covered garters represent a few of many ribbon novelties for the holidays.

For the Hostess

Gifts that every woman who entertains will delight in are pictured here and they will be all the more appreciated because they are made by their donor. A set of numbers for card tables is attractive and easy to make. They are cut from white cardboard and have gummed figures in black placed on one side. On this black and white background graceful sprays of gay flowers are painted and the cards are supported by small wire holders.

Bits of Splendor

Plain wide satin ribbon and narrow fancy ribbons, with handsome metallic mounts, are used to make these elegant shopping bags. Ribbons in the richest qualities and most brilliant patterns are chosen for them and they are lined with gay and equally good silks. Besides being bits of the splendor dear to women these bags have the additional value that belongs to a gift made by its donor.

Gay Bungalow Caps

Here is something new in breakfast caps. It is made of gay cretonne and is buttoned up the back so that it may be easily washed and ironed. It is bound with a plain color in chambray and has a narrow band of this material about it. The brim portion may be turned up or down and is shown here turned up at one side and down on the other.

Christmas Decorations

One of the easiest ways for dressing up the house at holiday time is to make lamp, candle and electric light shades or lanterns of crepe or tissue paper and tinsel. To make the small lantern pictured two rings of cardboard are covered with plain black or gold paper pasted over them. A length of light green tissue paper is folded along the center, slashed into narrow strips and pasted inside the rings. Under this a length of rose-colored crepe paper narrower than the green is pasted; this causes the strips of green paper to spread and stand out. Silver tinsel hangs from the wire handle at each side.

Gifts for Gay Hours

Christmas never brought lovelier remembrances to fair women than the picturesque hair ornaments for their gayer hours which this season presents. There are many of them made of ribbon, beads, flowers or mock jewels in headbands, and finished with a feather or blossom or other ornament. The sparkling piece pictured is merely a fillet of rhinestones that encircles the head and supports a small polka-dot flower at the left with a few sparkling rhinestones scattered on its leaves.

Bib and Tray Cloth

Balloons, in bright colors, and an angular elephant decorate the ample bib and tray cloth to match, made of oilcloth, as pictured above. They will afford the youngest member of the family much joy and his mother much peace of mind at the dinner table. Therefore the donor of this gift will be twice blessed and long remembered. The mottled oilcloth is cream colored and the bib is bound at the neck with white tape which is extended into ties.

Fairy Powder Puff

Little celluloid kewpies which may be bought everywhere have been used in many ingenious ways for Christmas gifts. Here is one dressed up like a fairy bride with ruffles of chiffon bound with narrow satin ribbon for a skirt and her head adorned with a braid wreath and veil. She stands in a small bag stuffed with cotton and gathered about her feet and it has a cloth powder puff sewed to it that rests in a glass bowl.

CHAPTER XV—Continued.

"Martin," she said, impetuously interrupting him, "I've got to talk to you! I've meant to write it—so many times, I've had it in mind ever since I left Red Creek!"

"Shoot!" Martin said, with his favorite look of indulgent amusement.

"There are marriages that without any fault on either side are a mistake," Cherry began, "any contributory fault, I mean—"

"Talk United States!" Martin growled, smiling, but on guard.

"Well, I think our marriage was one of those!" Cherry said.

"What have you got to kick about?" Martin asked, after a pause.

"I'm not kicking!" Cherry answered, with quick resentment. "But I wish I had words to make you realize how I feel about it!"

Martin looked gloomily up at her, and shrugged.

"This is a sweet welcome from your wife!" he observed. But as she regarded him with troubled and earnest eyes, perhaps her half-forgotten beauty made an unexpected appeal to him, for he turned toward her and eyed her with a large tolerance. "What's the matter, Cherry?" he asked. "It doesn't seem to me that you've got much to kick about. Haven't I always taken pretty good care of you? Didn't I take the house and move the things in; didn't I leave you a whole month, while I ate at that rotten boarding-house, when your father died; haven't I let you have—how long is it?—seven weeks, with your sister?"

Cherry recognized the tones of his old arraigning voice. He felt himself ill-treated.

"Now you come in for this money," he began. But she interrupted him hotly:

"Martin, you know that is not true!"

"Isn't it true that the instant you can take care of yourself you begin to talk about not being happy, and so on?" he asked, without any particular feeling. "You bet you do! Why, I never cared anything about that money, you never heard me speak of it. I always felt that by the time the lawyers and the heirs and the witnesses got through, there wouldn't be much left of it, anyway!"

Too rich in her new position of the woman beloved by Peter to quarrel with Martin in the old unhappy fashion, Cherry laid an appealing hand on his arm.

"I'm sorry to meet you with this sort of thing," she said, simply, "I blame myself now for not writing you just how I've come to feel about it! We must make some arrangement for the future—things can't be as they were!"

"You've had it all your way ever since we were married," he began.

"Now you blame me—"

"I don't blame you, Martin!"

"Well, what do you want a divorce for, then?"

"I don't even say anything about a divorce," Cherry said, fighting for time only. "But I can't go back!" she added, with a sudden force and conviction that reached him at last.

"Why can't you?"

"Because you don't love me, Martin, and—you know it!—I don't love you!"

"Well, but you can't expect the way we felt when we got married to last forever," he said, clumsily. "Do you suppose other men and women talk this way when the—the novelty has worn off?"

"I don't know how they talk. I only know how I feel!" Cherry said, chilled by the old generalization.

Martin, who had stretched his legs to their length, crossed them at the ankles, and shoved his hands deep into his pockets, staring at the racing blue water with somber eyes.

"What do you want?" he asked, heavily.

"I want to live my own life!" Cherry answered, after a silence during which her tortured spirit seemed to coin the hackneyed phrase.

"That stuff!" Martin sneered, under his breath. "Well, all right, I don't care, get your divorce!" he agreed, carelessly. "But I'll have something to say about that, too," he warned her. "You can drag the whole thing up before the courts if you want to—only remember, if you don't like it much, you did it. It never occurred to me even to think of such a thing! I've done my share in this business; you never asked me for anything I could give you that you didn't get; you've never been tied down to housework like other women; you're not raising a family of kids—go ahead, tell every shop-girl in San Francisco all about it, in the papers, and see how much sympathy you get!"

"Oh, you beast!" Cherry said, between her teeth, furious tears in her eyes. The water swam in a blur of blue before her as they rose to go downstairs at Sausalito.

Martin glanced at her with impatience. Her tears never failed to anger him.

"Don't cry, for God's sake!" he said, nervously glancing about for possible onlookers. "What do you want me to do? For the Lord's sake don't make a scene until you and I have a chance to talk this over quietly!"

Cherry's thoughts were with Peter. In her soul she felt as if his arm was about her, as if she were pouring out to him the whole troubled story, sure that he would rescue and console her. She had wiped her eyes, and somewhat recovered calm, but she trusted herself only to shrug her shoulder as she preceded Martin to the train.

There was no time for another word, for Alix suddenly took possession of them. She had had time to bring the car all the six miles to Sausalito, and meant to drive them direct to the valley from there.

She greeted Martin affectionately, although even while she did so her eyes went with a quick, worried look to Cherry. They had been quarreling, of course—it was too bad, Alix thought, but her own course was clear. Until she could take her cue from them, she must treat them both with cheerful unconsciousness of the storm.

They reached the valley and Martin was magnanimous about the delayed lunch. Anything would do for him, he said; he was taking a couple of days' holiday, and everything went. Kow was chopping wood after lunch, and he sauntered out to the block with suggestions; Alix, laying a fire for the evening, simply because she liked to do that sort of work, was favored with directions. Finally Martin pushed her aside.

"Here, let me do that," he said.

"You'd have a fine fire here, at that rate!"

Later he went down to the old house with them, to spend there an hour that was trying to both women. It was almost in order now; Cherry had pleased her simple fancy in the matter of hangings and papering, and the effect was fresh and good.

"Girls going to rent this?" Martin asked.

"Unless you and Cherry come live here," Alix said boldly. He smiled tolerantly.

"Why should we?"

"Well, why shouldn't you?"

"Loafing, eh?"

"No, not loafing. But you could transfer your work to San Francisco, couldn't you?"

Martin smiled a deep, wise, long-enduring smile.

"Oh, you'd get me a job, I suppose?" he asked. "I love the way you women try to run things," he added, "but I guess I'll paddle my own canoe for a while longer!"

"There is no earthly reason why you shouldn't live here," Alix said pleasantly.

"There is no earthly reason why we should!" Martin returned. He was annoyed by a suspicion that Alix and Cherry had arranged between them to make this plan the alternative to a divorce. "To tell you the honest truth, I don't like Mill Valley!"

Alix tasted despair. Small hope of preserving this particular relationship. He was, as Cherry had said, "impossible."

"Well, we must try to make you like Mill Valley better!" she said with resolute good-nature. "Of course, it means a lot to Cherry and to me to be near each other!"

"That may be true, too," Martin agreed, taking the front seat again for the drive home.

Alix was surprised at Cherry's passivity and silence, but Cherry was wrapped in a sick and nervous dream, unable either to interpret the present or face the future with any courage. Before luncheon he had followed her into her room and had put his arm about her. But she had quietly shaken him off, with the nervous murmur: "Please—no, don't kiss me, Martin!"

Stung, Martin had immediately dropped his arm, had shrugged his shoulders indifferently and laughed scornfully. Now he remarked to Alix, with some bravado:

"You girls still sleeping out?"

"Oh, always—we all do!" Alix had answered readily. "Peter has an extra bunk on his porch; Cherry and I have my porch. But you can be out or in, as you choose!"

Martin ventured an answer that made Cherry's eyes glint angrily and brought a quick, embarrassed flush to Alix's face. Alix did not enjoy a certain type of joking, and she did not concede Martin even the ghost of a smile. He immediately sobered and remarked that he himself liked to be indoors at night. His suitcase was accordingly taken into the pleasant little wood-smelling room next to Peter's, where the autumn sunlight, scented with the dry sweetness of mountain shrubs, was streaming.

He began to play solitaire, on the porch table, at five, and Kow had to disturb him to set it for dinner at seven. Alix was watering the garden, Cherry was dressing. It was an exquisite hour of long shadows and brilliant lights.

Kow had put a tureen of soup on the table, and Alix had returned with damp, clean hands and trimly brushed hair, for supper, when Peter came up through the garden. Cherry had rambled off in the direction of the barn a few moments before, but Martin had followed her and brought her back, remarking that she had had no idea of the time and was idly watching Antone milking. She slipped into her place after they were all eating, and hardly raised her eyes throughout the meal. If Alix addressed her she fluttered the white lids as if it were an absolute agony to look up; to Peter she did not speak at all. But to Martin she sent an occasional answer, and when the conversation lagged, as it was apt to do in this company, she nervously filled it with random remarks infinitely less reassuring than silence.

"How long do we stay here?" Martin cautiously asked his wife after dinner. "Stay here?" she echoed, at a loss.

"Yes," he answered, decidedly. "I can stand a little of it, but I don't think much of this sort of life! I thought maybe we could all go into town for dinner and the theater tomorrow or Saturday. But on Monday we'll have to beat it!"

"Monday?" Cherry's heart bounded.

"Martin, isn't it a mistake to go on pretending—" she began bitterly. But Peter's voice, in the drawing room, interrupted her. "I'll let you know—we'll talk about it!" she had time to say, hurriedly, before he came out to them. He flung himself into a chair.

CHAPTER XVI.

The evening dragged. Alix had suggested bridge, but Martin did not play bridge. So she went to the piano, and began to ramble through various songs.

Cherry and Peter, left at the table, did not speak to each other; Peter leaned back in his chair, with a cigarette; Cherry dreamily pushed to and fro the little anagram wooden block letters.

But presently her heart gave a great plunge, and although she did not alter her different attitude, or raise her eyes, her white hand moved with directed impulse, and Peter's casual glance fell upon the word "Alone."

When he laid his finished cigarette in the tray, it was to finger the letters himself, in turn, and Cherry realized with a great thrill of relief that he was answering her. Carelessly, and obliterating one word before he began another, he formed the question: "My office tomorrow?"

"Martin always with me," Cherry spelled back. She did not glance at Peter, but at Martin, who was watching the fire, and at Alix, whose back was toward the room.

"Come on, have another game!" Peter asked, generally, while he spelled quickly: "Will arrange sailing first possible day."

Alix, humming with her song, said: "Wait a few minutes!" and Martin glanced up to say, "No, I'm no good at that thing!"

Then Cherry and Peter were unobserved again, and she spelled "Mart goes Monday. Plans to take me."

Peter had reached for a magazine; he whirled through the pages, and yawned. Then he began to play with the anagrams again.

"Can you get away without him?" he spelled.

"How?" Cherry instantly asked. And as Peter's hands went on building a little bridge of wooden letters, she went on: "Alix to train, Martin with me to city, impossible."

"Give him the slip," Peter spelled. And after a pause he added, "Life or death."

"Difficult to evade," Cherry spelled, wiping the words away one by one.

"Must wait—" Peter began. Alix, ending her song on a crash of chords, came to the table, interrupting him. Cherry was now lazily reading a magazine; Peter had built a little pen of tiny blocks.

"I'll go you!" Alix said, with spirit. But the game was rather a languid one, nevertheless, and when it was over they gathered yawning about the mantel, ready to disperse for the night.

"And tomorrow night we dine in town and go to the Orpheum?" Alix asked, for the plan had been suggested at dinner-time.

"I'll blow you girls to any show you like," Martin offered.

Remarking that he was tired, Peter went to his room. Cherry, with only a general good-night, also disappeared, to find Alix arranging beds and pillows on their sleeping porch.

"Oh, Alix—I'm so worried—I'm so sick with worry!" Cherry whispered. "He won't listen to me. He won't hear of a divorce!"

"I know!" Alix said, distressedly. "But what shall I do—I can't go with him!" Cherry protested.

Alix was silent.

"What shall I do?" Cherry pleaded again.

"Why, I don't see what else you can do, but go with him!" Alix said, in a troubled voice. "You are his wife. For better or worse, for richer or poorer, till death—"

It was said so kindly, with Alix's simple and embarrassed fashion of giving advice, that poor Cherry could not resent it. She could only bow her head desolately upon her knees, as she sat, child-fashion, in her bed, and cry.

"A nice mess I've made of my life!" she sobbed. "I've made a nice mess of it! I wish—oh, my God, how I wish I was dead!"

"A Nice Mess I've Made of My Life!" She Sobbed.

"My own life has been so darned easy," Alix mused, in a cautious undertone, sitting, fully dressed, on the side of her own bed, and studying her sister with pitying eyes. "I've often wondered if I could buck up and get through with it if some of that sort of thing had come to me! I don't know, of course, but it seems to me that I'd say: 'Who loses his life shall gain it!' and I'd stand anything—people and places I hated, loneliness and poverty—the whole bag of tricks! I think I would. I mean I'd read the Bible and Shakespeare, and enjoy my meals, and have a garden—" Her voice sank.

"I know it's terribly hard for you, Cherry!" she ended, suddenly pitiful.

Cherry had stopped crying, dried her eyes, and had reached resolutely for the book that was waiting on the little shelf above the porch bed.

"You're bigger than I am," she said, quietly. "Or else I'm so made that I suffer more! I wish I could face the music. But I can't do anything. I'm sorry. One knows of unhappy marriages, everywhere, without quite fancying just what a horrible tragedy an unhappy marriage is! Don't mind me, Alix."

Alix was conscious, as she went out to speak to Kow about breakfast, and to give a final glance at fires and lights, that this was one of the times when girls needed a wise mother, or a father, who could decide, blame, and advise.

Coming back from the kitchen, with a pitcher of hot water, she saw Martin, in a welter of evening papers, staring at the last pink ashes of the wood fire. Upon seeing her he got up, and with a cautious glance toward the bedroom doors he said:

"Look here a minute! Can they hear us?" Alix set down her pitcher of water, and came to stand beside him.

"Hear us—Peter and Cherry? No, Cherry's out on our porch, and Peter's porch is even farther away. Why?"

"Take a look, will you?" he said. "I want to speak to you!"

Alix, mystified, duly went to glance at Cherry, reading now in a little funnel of yellow light, and then crossed to enter Peter's room. His porch was dark, but she could see the outline of the tall figure lying across the bed.

"Asleep?" she asked.

"Nope!" he answered.

"Well, don't go to sleep without pulling a rug over you!" she commanded. "Good-night, Pete!"

TWILIGHT VESPERS

The first of the "twilight vespers" at Union church drew a considerable audience last Sunday evening in spite of the stormy weather. And it proved to be one of those occasions that any effort to brave the adverse elements was repaid many fold. The concert was of the highest order by well known artists. Miss Louise Melvin of Watertown is a young harpist of fine promise. Her rendering of "Weigelt" by Schaefer was especially pleasing. The harp as solo instrument with violin accompaniment of Charpentier's "Melodie" brought out all the rare charm of this royal instrument of the ancient pharaohs.

Walter E. Loud, who is a violinist of great experience and wide renown and who studied in Europe under the great Ysaye, showed his mastery of the bow. His violin sang as though possessed of life. Kreisler's "Hindu Chant," while in Handel's Largo with the pipe organ in a duet, Mr. Loud without the score before him, abandoned himself to the wonderful measured cadences of the great master.

Mr. DeRoss McAllister's voice—smooth, liquid and sympathetic—captivated the audience in his first daring selection, the Aria from Handel's oratorio "Jephthah." One was transported to ancient Israel and with the undulating refrain: "Waft her, angels to the skies" felt the vision of the prayer. The press comments that Mr. McAllister is the equal of the grand opera stars were confirmed.

Miss Dorothy C. Avery, organist of Union church, was enthusiastically encored for her solo selections on the pipe organ, the favorite of the audience being "Fantasia" by Merkel. In its rendition Miss Avery brought out the varied compass of the instrument and evidenced a wonderful skill in technique. To her, also, is due great praise for her work as accompanist during the entire program, playing the most difficult pieces with smoothness and apparent ease. Miss Avery's performance as organist of Union church is being favorably commented on, revealing an increasing mastery of her chosen instrument.

Thanks are due Mrs. Albert E. Avery, chairman of the committee who brought the twilight vespers to Weymouth, with the expressed hope that others will be given during the season.

Chats With Your Gas Man

"Your gas blackens my cooking utensils," exclaimed a housewife the other day.

We investigated and one look at her gas range was enough.
It had not been properly cleaned in weeks, perhaps in months. The top burners were dirty and greasy, the holes to the air mixers were partially clogged and when the gas was lighted it burned with a long, yellow, smoky flame.

An hour later you wouldn't have known that range. The holes to the air mixers had been cleaned out and the burners had been washed in a strong solution of hot water and washing soda and then carefully rinsed and replaced. When the gas was lighted, it burned with a clear, blue, feathery flame.

Often, as in this case, blame is placed upon the gas supplied, when in reality the trouble is caused by the manner in which the gas is being burned.

How clean is your your gas range?

and Rev. Mr. Handanian played violin duets. Fred V. Garey presided at the Handanian. Selections were rendered by the chorus of young folks.

sermon delivered by Rev. Earl E.
Story in the Methodist church Sunday

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING VITAL

After 57 years in some of the large retail drygoods houses of Boston
James Macmahon retired last week.
In an interview he says:
"The show window of today is an important fact in merchandising; and of course advertising has become an absolute essential in merchandising.
Why, the advertising department in some of the big stores in Boston today employs more people than all the stores employed 50 years ago.
Advertising has become an art as well as a profession.

"It was rather difficult to make some of the old-timers see the value of newspaper advertising and I think some of them failed because they didn't wake up to it. I remember when I had charge of the advertising for the old firm of Houghton & Henderson, I invented the phrase 'The Business Corner on Boston's Busiest Street' and I had been using it on both corners of my ads for some time before Mr. Houghton noticed it. Finally he saw the value of it and had signs made all over the store with those words.

"The real value of newspaper advertising came to me one Monday morning when I got to the store. Saturday morning a case of brass rods came to one of the departments and the man in charge came to me with about eight lines announcing the sale of these rods. I had just room to squeeze it into my Sunday ads and thought nothing more about it until I came in Monday morning and I saw a crowd of people on the floor where those rods were for sale. I asked what was up, for it was very unusual to see so many people on that floor. They told me there had been a crowd there all the morning after those brass rods. Now that I fixed the value of advertising in my mind as nothing else had, for those brass rods were an entirely new thing in our store."

The children of Mr. and Mrs.
George Hodgdon, who have been confined to their home on White street by illness, are much improved.

Leon Thomas has returned to the Massachusetts Agricultural school at Amherst, having spent the holiday season at his home on Hollis street.

Rev. Francis A. Poole, Ph. D., of St. Johnsbury, Vt., conducted the service in the Old South Union Congregational church on Sunday morning. Rev. Mr. Poole is a candidate for the vacant pastorate caused by the resignation of Rev. Ora A. Price.
A special service was held in the evening and Rev. F. A. Poole had charge, assisted by the choir.

Mrs. Frederick Andrews of West street has been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Francis Andrews of Manchester and Mr. and Mrs. Francis Andrews Jr. of Bridgewater.

Miss Mary Cullinane of Central street has returned to St. Joseph's Academy in Brighton, having spent the holiday and week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Cullinane.

Arrangements have been completed for the fair which is to be held under the auspices of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Pond Plain Improvement Association this week. The program for Friday night is a miscellaneous entertainment under the direction of a committee from the Improvement Association and Saturday night's program will be given by the Pond Plain orchestra with Fred Lotterhand, soloist.

The December number of the Lyceum Course will be given under the auspices of the South Weymouth Community Association on Friday evening, Dec. 9, when Phidela Rice, monarch, is scheduled to entertain in the Community Building.

Miss E. Frances Paine has returned to her home on Pond street, having concluded a week's visit with her cousin, Mrs. Ruth Wright of Braintree.

Joseph L. Jannell and Charles Burrell are now well established in their new public garage in Independence Square, known as the Wessagaset garage. It is a large modern building with storage for a large number of cars. They deal in used cars and are also expert in repairing.

HOLT-BOWKER

Miss Marion Alberta Bowker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bowker of East Weymouth, was united in marriage on Saturday, Nov. 26, to Willis William Holt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Holt of Hingham, the ceremony being performed in the Church of St. John Evangelist by Rev. Daniel Randall Magruder, rector.

The bride was attended by Miss Abbie V. Holt, a sister of the groom, and Sidney Bowker, a brother of the bride, was best man. The bride was gowned in white tulle with silver lace trimmings. Her tulle veil was held in place with orange, blue and white roses. The bride carried a bouquet of white roses. The maid of honor wore pink georgette with hat to match and carried yellow chrysanthemums.

Mr. and Mrs. Holt left for a wedding trip to Niagara Falls and Chicago and then to Tracy, California, where they will make their home.
The bride is a member of Amanda J. Bosworth Rebekah lodge of Hingham. The groom is a World War veteran, having served as a sergeant in Co. K, 101st Infantry, 26th Division.
He is affiliated with Old Colony lodge,
I. O. O. F., of Hingham.

CHRISTMAS SCRIBNER'S

The December Christmas number of Scribner's Magazine comes to us this year with a special cover in red of a strikingly distinctive character. In keeping with the cheerfulness of the outside, the number contains three Christmas features. "The Nativity"
A Miracle Play in New England by Ella M. Boulton, has some appropriate Christmas illustrations and decorations by Beatrice Stevens. There is a "Christmas Canticle," by Clinton Scollard, with an illustration by Charles E. Cullen and "The Point of View" is entirely devoted to delicately intimate recollections of an old-time Christmas in a big Middle Western home.

HELPFUL WORDS

From a Weymouth Citizen

Is your back lame and painful?
Does it ache especially after exertion?
Is there a soreness in the kidney region? These symptoms suggest weak kidneys. If so there is danger in delay. Weak kidneys get weaker fast. Give your trouble prompt attention. Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys. Your neighbors use and recommend them. Ask your neighbor! Read this Weymouth testimony:

Mrs. C. Ferguson, 53 Phillip street, Weymouth, says: "I can indeed say a good word for Doan's Kidney Pills.
I have used them on a number of different occasions with satisfactory results. My back was lame and sore and my kidneys were also sore and acted too freely. A few boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills have always relieved the trouble in a short time."

ply ask for a kidney remedy—get

Not Pushing Himself.
"Did you interview many prominent people while you were in Washington?"

"Why, no," replied the modest citizen. "I remarked to a rather imposing doorman that I thought it was a hot day, to which he agreed, but the only other important person I conversed with during my stay was a hotel clerk."

Liar.

"There's always one time when you can be sure a man is not telling the truth."

"When is that?"
"When he tells a friend either that he had forgotten that he had lent him money, or had forgotten that he had borrowed some. Those are inclications no one ever forgets."

Definition.

"What is your idea of a true statesman?"

"A true statesman," replied Senator Sorghum, "is a man who feels the pulse of the people and then prescribes what he honestly believes is good for them instead of prescribing a patent medicine in which he is interested."

Gave It Up, Anyway.

She (pointing)—You said two years ago, before we were married, that you'd go through fire and water for me.

He—I guess you misunderstood me, dear. I probably said I would give up firewater for you, and I did, didn't I?

Had It Before.

"This stage beauty is a haughty creature."

"Her hauteur is not acquired, though."

"No?"
"She was a salesperson before a musical comedy scout found her."

Two or Three.

Country Cousin—Well, I went through your beautiful statehouse today.

City Host—That's nothing to brag about. I know two or three fellows living right here in Boston who've been through it.

MUST HAVE AN OBJECT
"Can you get your wife to economize?"

"Sometimes. All depends on how we are going to blow the money we save."

Clear as Mud.

Some folks eat to live, they say,
and others live to eat.
But I am just the other way—
My system can't be beat.

Couldn't Live Up to It.
"Why did you take down that 'Do It Now' sign hanging over your desk?"
"I couldn't stand the way bill collectors looked at it when I told them to call around tomorrow," replied the sensitive and impecunious citizen.

How He Described it.

De Style—I saw Miss Hildyer at the opera, and she had on a fairly dress made of very flimsy material.
Gumbusta—Clifford?
De Style—Well—er—no—it seemed more like chiff off.

Setting Him Right.

"Ha, woman!" he exclaimed, sitting up suddenly in bed, "I have found you out."
"Oh, no!" she said as she continued accumulating the change, "you are the one that's out."

The Moral.

"Pa, the Sunday school lesson is about Noah and we've got to tell what the story teaches us."

"It teaches us that we should all provide something for a rainy day, my son."

Just Like a Man.

Mr. Timsead—I see none o' them women statues has any clothes on.
His Wife—Them statues are more'n 2,000 years old. I s'pose you think a woman's clothes ought to last forever.

A Frequent Effect.

"Never make up your mind until you have heard both sides of a story."
"Sometimes that leaves you more perplexed than ever. Any man will tell you that who has ever done jury duty."

Birds.

"When the pie was opened the birds began to sing."
"I've been one of those birds at a banquet."

INTERESTING HISTORY

Among the "Library Notes" of the Thomas Crane Public Library at Quincy, last week appeared the following paragraph:

Through the courtesy of the managing editor, Frank F. Prescott, the Weymouth Gazette has been added to the reading table of the library.
Weymouth has had an unusually interesting history, being the second town in the order of establishment and it I am not mistaken, the only town in the Commonwealth to retain its original boundaries. A series of articles on early Weymouth history by Rev. William Hyde was begun in August and they are now appearing weekly. The complete series is on file at the library. The writer shows a true historic sense and no one interested in local history can afford to miss his articles.

CAR IDENTIFIED

The automobile found abandoned on Washington street, East Weymouth,
Nov. 23, was identified as the property of Mrs. Frances J. Dowd of 6 Leroy street, Boston, Saturday. The machine was stolen in front of her residence Tuesday evening. In the automobile when found was a sledge hammer and other implements, indicating that the thieves may have used the car in committing burglary.

ST. JAMES THEATRE

Do you remember when you were just a care-free child, sitting on your mother's knee, how she told you that old, yet ever new, wonder story of Cinderella? Remember how your eyes grew bigger and bigger and your breath came in quick gasps, as the fascinating tale was unfolded? How many a maid has thought of this very story and longed for a fairy godmother to come and lift her out of her work-a-day surroundings and for some prince to come to woo and carry her away. Romance and beauty and youth—shall we ever forget them.

"Come Out of the Kitchen" is a play of all these and more. It is a story full of humor and pathos and an enchanting sweetness that lingers long in memory. It is Cinderella of the modern day played under the soft skies of Virginia, which somehow seem to conjure up pictures of lovers and music and tenderness and happiness.

"Come Out of the Kitchen" as presented by the Boston Stock Co. next week at the St. James theatre is A.
E. Thomas' dramatic version of a novel by Alice Duer Miller.

"Come Out of the Kitchen" is a play that all folks, both big and little, will find absorbingly entertaining and delightful. The full strength of the Boston Stock Co. will be seen in this play next week.

TREMONT THEATRE

"Only 38" is the unique title of the comedy which Sam H. Harris brings to the Tremont theatre, Boston, for a limited engagement of three weeks; commencing next Monday night with Mary Ryan as the featured player.
This comedy is by A. E. Thomas, who also gave to the stage "The Rainbow,"
"The Champion" and "Just Suppose."
It is breezy, wholesome and human and parkles with humorous dialogue.

Have you ever wondered how it feels to be 38? Well this is the theme around which Mr. Thomas has built his delightful play which has been fascinating the New York theatre patrons all this season. Mary Ryan, who is well remembered in "The Fortune Hunter," "The House of Glass," "On Trial" and "The Little Teacher" plays the role of Mrs.
Stanley, who is "Only 38" and feels even younger.

Mr. Harris has surrounded Miss Ryan with a most excellent cast.
Harry C. Browne, who played with Miss Ryan in "The House of Glass," is again her leading man. Percy Pollock, Neil Martin, Ruth Moro, Leon Cunningham, Margaret Shackelford Helen Van Hoose and Kate Mayhew also appear in the cast.
Matinees will be given on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Cheer up! Christmas Eve falls on a night—(Hint (Mich.) Journal.

Mr. Gimlet's Best Christmas Present

CHRISTOPHER G. HAZARD

LD Mr. Gimlet was sitting all alone by himself. The cold December wind was driving the snow against the frosty windows, and now and then it seemed to fairly screech at him. Some of the snow appeared to have got into his hair, and some of the frost into his beard, for he looked old, and cold, and grim. The firelight shadows that played on the wall were like the thoughts that went to and fro in his mind in the light of the memories of the brighter days of the past. The empty chairs reminded him of his friendlessness, the slow ticking of the old clock, as it tried to be a companion, only made him feel how lonely he was. He felt as much out of the world, as far away from its gladness as the picture of his grandfather that hung over the shelf.

Mr. Gimlet was wondering what he would get for Christmas. He had spent many years in wondering what he would get, and had gotten a good many things. No one had a better house than he, few had as much money as he had. There was a park, there was a garden; within and without and all about him were the things that money can buy. Yes, Mr. Gimlet was as rich as money and things can make a man. And yet, although all these things had not made him happy, he was wishing for more. He did not know any better than to wish for more, and, though he could not think of anything that he needed, he hoped that someone would think of something or other that he might want and that might give him a gleam of real Christmas joy.

Away out on a prairie the Bump family were holding a consultation, after the children had gone to bed. At that moment the father and mother of the family were perplexed and even a good deal worried. The Bumps had been practicing farming for some time, but without anticipated results. The children didn't see anything the matter with farming. The move out of the smoky city had been an entrance into paradise for them. Donald had ten hens and a rooster. Dorothy owned two Muscovy ducks, with green feathers. Kenneth had a little pony that they called "Bigger," because they thought he would grow. Small Edith kept a flower bed that she called her "garden." There was a pony cart. They had raised a 43-pound watermelon. Father had said that the rest of the garden wouldn't amount to a hill of beans, but it had. There was apt to be enough for yum yum cake, with raisins in it, to go around. Why, it was like a perpetual picnic! And even now, with all things under the snow blanket, and the pony and the two cows safe in the barn, farmer Bump had laughed with the happy, rosy children, as the dog Jake toiled up the hill with the sled, so that they all might go shouting down again. "They're a jolly bunch," said farmer Bump. But that night the Bumps were holding a consultation. Although the two cows in the barn were bare, yet there was a blanket on them. The consultation was about that blanket. Farmer Bump called it a mortgage and didn't know how he was going to pay it. No wonder it was an anxious consultation. Short crops and a mortgage! Enough to flatten out even the Bumps! But while the Bumps were talking things over, the children were having dreams. They had laid awake for a while, talking about the best place to hang up Christmas stockings, and a part of the conversation downstairs, the mortgage part, had come up to their ears. A little of the worry, too, had come with it, so that they fell asleep with a little uneasiness about the blanket that does not keep things warm, but makes them cold, and wondering what a mortgage could be, and why no one could take it off without money. In his dream Donald heard a boy singing this song:

"Sing, little Jesus, sing for me. There's nothing on my Christmas tree."

You see, this little boy had a tree, but there wasn't a thing on it, not even a leaf. So he planned how to get something to grow upon it. Finally, he sang the song that Donald heard in his dream, and the next time he looked out there was his tree, full of red and gold apples, with leaves on all the twigs and many pretty things among them, and Donald saw it all in his dream. So, when he awoke, Donald thought he would sing the song too, and see if Jesus couldn't take the shadow of that awful mortgage away, and he sang:

"Sing, little Jesus, sing for me! There's a mortgage on our Christmas tree."

When Dorothy awoke she remembered that she had dreamed about writing a letter to Santa Claus, and so she went and wrote it. This was the letter:

Dear Santa Claus:
There's something the matter with our cows. They've got a mortgage on 'em. Only money can cure 'em. Please come and cure 'em, so's we can have a Christmas tree. I will be good.
Your hopeful
DOROTHY.

Then, when father went to town, with the little pony, Bigger, he put the letter into the post office, only he directed it to Mrs. Bump's brother, Mr. Ephraim Gimlet.

Mr. Gimlet was very much surprised to hear from the Bumps. He had forgot that he had a sister, and that there were a lot of little hopeful Bumps. An old trouble had made him bitter and forgetful, and he had felt more alone in the world than he really was. As he sat again by the firelight, but on a clear and moonlit night, he mused on things past with a new tenderness in his heart and welcomed a new thought that came warmly to him and brought a lovely purpose with it. He would play Santa Claus, and give himself the surprise of making others happy!

So, the day before Christmas things happened at the Bump house. As Mr. Bump went to the wayside post box he found two letters. One of them made him sad, for it was from the man who held the mortgage, and it said that the time for payment had come. It meant to Mr. Bump, "your money, or your cows." But the other letter was from Mr. Gimlet, and it made Mr. Bump laugh until he cried, for it was a check for $300, with some kindly, friendly words and good wishes, enough to cure the cows and all the family troubles.

The next day the carrier brought a most promising looking big box from Uncle Gimlet, so that the Christmas tree was full of happy surprises for the little folks and a gift or two for the big ones. Mother made a big pile in the dishpan and the children found out what was in it. Dorothy poked a hole through the pasteboard crust and pulled out a maple sugar heart. Donald got a red sugar heart. Kenneth got a white sugar heart. Edith got a yellow sugar heart. Mother said it was Uncle Gimlet's kind heart that had made them all so happy.

Then Mr. Gimlet got another letter. It was a round robin from all the Bumps, with the little Bump names and marks upon it, too. It made the old man very happy. He was sitting among a lot of pleasant things that had been sent in for his Christmas tree, but he was not thinking very much of them. He sat with the letter in his hand and a far-off look in his eyes as he thought of the sweetness of love, and felt that the best gift that he had received was the happy surprise that he had given to the people on the prairie farm.

"Divinity" Two cupsful of granulated sugar, one cupful of maple syrup, one cupful of water and a tablespoonful of vinegar until a little of it hardens when dropped in cold water, and then add a teaspoonful of vanilla and take from the fire. While this mixture has been cooking, a cupful of granulated sugar should have been put over the fire in another saucepan, with a half-cupful of cold water, and boiled until the mixture spins a thread from the tip of a spoon. This should at this stage be beaten up with the stiffly whipped whites of two eggs, and this stirred into the first preparation, which should by now have cooled slightly. Beat the two hard until they begin to stiffen, when turn in two cupfuls of chopped nut kernels. Drop on paper or pour into pans and cut in shapes desired.—Delineator.

A Christmas Movie

her. Her face was not a happy one, for her memories were freighted with a sadness that had shadowed her life for nearly ten years.

She had wedded Rodney Durand, a close friend of her brother, now dead, and both had been employed in the prosperous mercantile house of her father. He, too, had now passed away, and Mabel was alone in the world, except for her little daughter, Erma, only ten years old. The little one came tripping joyously into the room at that moment.

"Oh, mamma," she cried, "what do you think? Our neighbor in the next flat, Mrs. Brayton, wants us both to be ready in an hour to go with her to the movies."

Mrs. Brayton had been a cheering element in the lonely life of Mabel Durand for over two months.

Mrs. Durand had more than once during their brief acquaintanceship conversed with the neighbor she seemed to especially like about her past history. It was a tragic one. Two years after her marriage to Rodney Durand her husband had been arrested and sentenced to prison for embezzlement from her father.

"I loved Rodney and I always shall," insisted Mabel. "There must be some mistake in the fearful charge they have brought against him."

"There is none," replied her father sternly. "He has disgraced us. He stole from me boldly."

Still Mabel hoped and waited and at the end of two years when Rodney was released from prison she bore silently the reproach of never hearing a word from him.

So Mabel had talked of her broken life and now it was Christmas time again and the occasion brought a sad remembrance of those days in the happy past when she and little Erma had known a tender-hearted husband and a gentle indulgent father.

Mrs. Brayton, chatted casually all the way to the theater and told her she had seen the picture play twice and was greatly impressed by it.

"It is the story of the life of a wronged, misguided man," she said, "and I know it will interest you."

The screen outlined the course of business in a modern counting room. Then as there entered a new figure, little Erma pressed close to the side of her mother and exclaimed:

"Oh, mamma, that actor looks just like the picture you have of dear, absent papa."

Mrs. Durand gasped and tottered in her seat. The gentle, soothing hand of Mrs. Brayton steadied and quieted her.

"Do not be startled or excited, dear friend," she whispered. "I had a purpose in bringing you here, as you will soon know, perhaps gratefully. The principal of this movie is Rodney Durand, your husband and my brother. For his sake I have got acquainted with you; for both your sakes I have brought about this climax."

The story of the embezzlement crime was faithfully depicted and it showed another as the real criminal—her own brother. Her husband had taken his blame, bearing the penalty and reproach to save her brother from disgrace.

At a critical moment her brother had sent a full confession to Rodney, taking the blame for the crime. In plain view Rodney, in the action of the piece, destroyed it.

"Do you comprehend now?" questioned Mrs. Brayton softly.

"Oh, how we have wronged my poor, dear Rodney," sobbed Mabel. "Can you forgive him? Will he ever forgive me? Oh, that I could find him."

"You shall," and when they reached home, Mrs. Brayton left her friend for a few moments to reappear with her brother.

Higher swung the glad some chime bells, merrily echoed the happy sweet voices, and beside the little Christmas tree that had been trimmed for Erma, those three earnest souls joined in the joyous knowledge that their paths would lead together from the threshold of that Christmas eve into broad sunny pastures of love and happiness.

Georgetown, Ill.—"After my first baby was born I suffered so with my left side that I could not walk across the floor unless I was all humped over, holding to my side. I doctored with several doctors but found no relief and they said I would have to have an operation. My mother insisted on my taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I soon found relief. Now I can do all my own work and it is the Vegetable Compound that has saved me from an operation. I cannot praise my medicine too highly and I tell all of my friends and neighbors what the Compound did for me."

—Mrs. MARGARET MCCUMBER, 27 S. Frazier St., Georgetown, Illinois.

Mrs. McCumber is one of the unnumbered thousands of housewives who struggle to keep about their daily tasks, while suffering from ailments peculiar to women with backache, sideaches, headaches, bearing-down pains and nervousness,—and if every such woman should profit by her experience and give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial they would get well.

WILLIE HOPPE'S SUCCESS DUE TO GREAT POWER OF CONCENTRATION

Willie Hoppe, Champion Billiard Player.

William Hoppe of New York has been the billiard champion so long that people almost forget when he first won the title. However, it was in 1906 when he defeated Vignaux, in Paris, for the 181 championship, and Hoppe was just eighteen years old at the time. He has not held the championship uninterruptedly all this time, though pretty near it. He has held the 181, 141 and 182 professional championships.

Never Takes a Chance.

Hoppe is a careful player who never takes a chance. He frequently refuses to play a difficult shot that would give him theoretically a perfect position, but plays instead the shot that is the easier, content with a less perfect position. Making the shot is paramount in his mind. This is what makes him such a good match player. If he is weak at any part of the game it might be the masse, as he frequently refuses that style of shot to play a bank shot. He is deadly accurate on a one-cushion shot. He excels over the other players on a dead ball.

Willie's power of concentration is remarkable. During a game the world does not exist beyond the limits of the brass rail surrounding the table. He uses a short cue weighing 20 ounces and about 53 inches long. He has a short stroke, depending more for most of his play on a snappy wrist motion rather than upon the forearm. Yet when occasion requires he can carry his forearm well forward, giving a perfect follow-through stroke.

Always in Condition.

Hoppe is well built, almost stocky, quick and muscular. He always seems to be in perfect condition and has never smoked or used liquor. Some little discussion has arisen from time to time as to the relative abilities of Hoppe and the late Frank Ives, but it seems to be the opinion of the majority of billiardists who have seen them work that Hoppe is the greatest billiard player that ever lived.

800 in Chess Match.

Details of a monster team chess match, arranged to establish a new world record, have come to hand from London, where 800 players sat down in a contest, 400 on a side, between the North of the Thames and South of the Thames. The North won by a margin of 35 games on totals of 217½ to 182½. Comparatively few games were adjudicated.

O'NEILL ASPIRED TO BE VILLAGE BUTCHER

Became Big League Football Coach by Accident.

Started Career as Target for Battering Rams of St. John's Military Academy—Coached Syracuse and Colgate.

Frank J. ("Buck") O'Neill is a big league football coach by accident. If he had followed his boyhood ideal, he'd have been a small-town butcher at Manlius, N. Y., where he grew up.

"When I was a boy," said "Buck," "I thought a butcher was the greatest man in the world."

"I determined to make that my life work, and got a job at the village meat market."

"One day St. John's Military academy ran shy of scrub football talent."

"Buck" O'Neill.

They asked my employer if he could spare his husky apprentice. He was good-natured, and let me go.

"I tagged around all afternoon as a target for the battering rams of the cadet varsity. It was rough work, but I liked it. And I went back."

"When the varsity fullback left school, the cadet coach had a hunch. He suggested that I enter school and plug up the hole in the back field."

"That's how I got into football."

"Buck" played at Williams and later at Syracuse. He took law with his football. "Couldn't help taking law," says "Buck." "There's so much practice in it, like football."

He coached Colgate and Syracuse eleven before going to Columbia. Winning teams follow in his wake.

THERE IS VIGOR IN RICH BLOOD

Pepto-Mangan in Liquid or Tablets—A Blood Builder.

Vigor and strength have as their base rich red blood. Blood is rich when there are plenty of red corpuscles. They are the tiny red cells which swim in blood and give it its color. Without red corpuscles blood would be white. When overwork, or straining, or illness weakens the blood, it diminishes the number of red cells. Without a sufficient number of red cells the blood becomes watery, the body weak. Vigor and strength fall off, so that physical life diminishes like a fading plant. The physical pleasures of eating and sleeping and exercise lose all attraction. There is no zest in living.

After Gude's Pepto-Mangan has been taken for a while the blood becomes rich with red cells. They help to nourish the entire system. With good blood at work there is a great difference in living. Eating, sleeping and exercise are enjoyed. All druggists sell Gude's Pepto-Mangan. Advertisement.

Masonic Installation Of a New Master

The Masonic Temple at East Weymouth was taxed to its capacity Wednesday night at the banquet and public installation of officers of Orphans Hope lodge for the ensuing year. Nearly 300 sat down to an appetizing feast well and abundantly served by Cann and Humphrey, caterers. Because of the large number attending, two sittings at the tables were necessary, which delayed the exercises up stairs. During this wait the Concorde Male Quartette gave several pleasing numbers.

The installing officer Wor. Bro. Frederick L. Putnam, almost too well known for a further introduction, having been Grand Lecturer for a number of years, and a favorite with all Orphan Hope members, for his witty and pleasing way of installing the officers. His acquaintance with many of the members thru years of visitations enable him to call them personally by name and his charges could be classed often times as a parent's good advice to a son.

Orphans Hope Lodge has a new master this year in John Leonard Bicknell, who because of years of faithful service and attendance, and helpful support to the retiring master, richly deserves the new honors now bestowed upon him. He should make a good master and Orphans Hope is fortunate in him as a leader. The wardens installed were Charles Edgar Stiles and Albert Lewis Soule. Rev. Earl E. Story of the Community Church is the new Chaplain.

The installing officer in a reminiscing way spoke of installing (serving as Grand Marshall) John Evans as master in 1900 and as Installation officer of Frank Torrey as master in 1903, so that he felt all he could say to John and Frank was to continue the good work they were doing.

Frank Torrey is treasurer and John Evans secretary of Orphans Hope.

W. Lincoln Pratt was installed as marshal.

The new deacons are John P. Lovell and Burton E. Durgin; for stewards Andrew T. Moore and Murray G. Parker were installed.

Sheldon W. Lewis will act as inside sentinel, Leon M. Brooks as tyler, and Bertrand M. Maxim as organist.

In his charge Brother Putnam, extended his heartfelt sympathies to the retiring master who had experienced a sad bereavement. Then reviewing the years he had spent in masonic work he had no regrets for the time served, but felt that in justice to his faithful partner, he should have more time at home. So on the 27th of this month he retires as grand lecturer, after many busy years. For if the time was all put in successive order it would mean every night for over 3 years, he felt well repaid if his efforts had helped to make better men.

A pleasant feature of the evening was the award to Major Bicknell and secretary John Evans of Henry Price medals. To the former for being a Mason over 50 years, and the latter for nearly 30 years of active work. The Concorde Male Quartet during the exercises rendered several very sweet and beautiful selections.

Presentation of a Master's apron by the retiring master to the new master.

And Major Bicknell in his characteristic and witty vein presented a past master's jewel to Henry P. Tilden, in words of appreciation for his work and guidance of Orphans Hope lodge the past two years.

BODY OF ANOTHER HERO
Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Donovan of 12 Franklin street received a telegram from the War department on Saturday stating that the body of their son, Thomas F. Donovan Jr., would arrive at Hoboken, N. J., tomorrow. The young man was a first class private attached to Co. M, 9th Infantry, 2d Division. He was on outpost duty with three others at St. Etienne Arknnes, France, on the morning of Oct. 4, 1918, when he was hit by a shell and instantly killed, the others escaped with severe injuries. The deceased was one of the best known young men of the town and was a member of the Oriental Fife and Drum Corps.

THE MAN WHO ARRIVES

The annual "Wild Goose Dinner" of the Men's Club of Clapp Memorial Association drew out an unusually large number Wednesday evening, but the members, guests and waiters had their fill and enjoyed the feast for 27 guests and 28 ducks were provided for the 110 people. Of course all the fixings were there, too—dressing and gravy, baked potatoes, squash, cabbage salad, celery, rolls, corn, ice cream and cake. Every man in town is invited to join the club and enjoy the feast and good times each month.

President William J. Holbrook presided and the only business was the election of officers for 1921-22, the following being chosen:

President—Parker T. Pearson.
Vice President—W. J. Holbrook.
Secretary—F. W. Preston.
Treasurer—W. A. Hodges.
Executive Committee, Horace R. Drinkwater, James D. Bosworth, Frank P. Abbott, Dr. F. L. Doucette, Charles W. Kemp, J. Edward Mulligan, Carl F. Prescott, B. B. Sylvester and Prince H. Tirrell.

Hospitality Committee—Dr. J. Herbert Libby, W. A. Wheaton, M. Sheehy, W. C. Earle, F. M. Crocker, P. A. Conathan, Dr. J. C. Fraser.

The club is now ten years old and has had an average membership this season of 91. It is in a good financial condition, but is making a drive for more members.

The speaker of the evening was Frank T. Speare, president of the Northeastern College and his subject: "The Man Who Arrives" proved exceedingly interesting and awakened thought in those present. He said the man that arrives is the man who gets there. Personally he blocked out his work five years in advance, audited it each year and was usually successful. Man should live to be 100 years; if he did not there was something wrong. At 75 he should be healthy and genial. He should eat smartly, work 8 hours a day, play 8 hours and sleep 8 hours. It is the man with surplus energy who succeeds.

The man who talks shop all the time is the most tiresome person of all. Everyone should have a hobby. Without a hobby he should be pitied. The man who arrives should gain intellectually, he should have some social instincts, a financial sense and able to save 10 to 20 percent annually, he should be a good citizen and ready at any time to meet his God.

No brief synopsis of the address would do it justice, but it was meaty and good and the speaker was given a rising vote of thanks.

At the head table were: W. J. Holbrook, Frank P. Speare, Horace R. Drinkwater, S. Preston Moses, N. L. McKay, P. T. Pearson, Stetson Foster, W. C. Earle, J. A. Madan, Byron Leonard, W. H. Fletcher, C. F. Keegan, Walte G. Summers, Max O. Whiting, F. A. Simmons, Robert L. Summers, E. A. Whitmarsh, J. E. Fabyan and W. A. Hodges.

At the other tables: H. L. Morris, Arthur Cunningham, A. C. Hawkes, Dr. F. E. Doucette, Dr. J. H. Libby, Dr. Joseph Chase, Dr. J. C. Fraser, Frederick Humphrey, H. F. Reynolds, R. M. Church, Joseph Kelley, Joseph W. McDonald, David J. Toomey and Frank E. Driscoll.

SOCIAL CLUB ELECTION

Wednesday evening was held the annual election and business meeting of the Social Club of Union Church. The occasion was also the regular monthly supper and entertainment. The 150 places were sold out a week before, and more than 50 people applied to late for reservations.

Promptly at 6.30 the grand march was started for the dining room which was soon taxed to capacity. A delicious supper was served by Mrs. G. H. Gross, hostess; assisted by Mesdames E. George, J. R. Jermyn, W. D. Aiken, B. Y. Knight, L. Hyde, F. Appleyard, B. T. Whitmarsh, W. Muirhead, G. R. Dobson, P. Raasch, S. W. Johnson, R. Dexheimer J. Edward Bates, Annie E. French and Walker Charlesworth.

The entertainment was in charge of Miss Susan Avery and was divided into two parts: Part I was an Art Gallery of the months as follows: January, Robert Carr representing winter throwing snowballs; February, Virginia Barham as a valentine; March, Eleanor Garwin flying a kite; April, little Robert Moulton in a raincoat; May, Alice Mosher as May Queen; June, Barbara Senior as the sweet girl graduate; July, Robert Moulton as the Glorious Fourth; August, Doris Hanny as the Bathing Girl; September, Virginia Barham and Miriam MacDowell, as the school girls; October, Dorothy Carr, Gladys Ryan and Marjorie Barham representing Harvest and Hallowe'en November, Virginia Welsh and Robert Moulton as Priscilla and John Alden; December, [Martha Whittle and Maud Williams, Xmas Eve.

Part II was a play entitled "School Days," in which the antics of grown-ups dressed as children brought screams of laughter. The characters were as follows: School teacher, Ragna Hagan; Pupils: Jnlous Smith, with black eye; Howard B. Hall, Bilious Smith, Morrill Allen; Henie, Herbert Poore; the Chink, Harold Lane; Rastus, colored boy, Francis Partridge; Harry, the boy who wants to sit with the girls, Edgar H. Bolles; the girls: Mamie the "I don't know girl," Ella Johnson; Etta, Margaret Vining; Dorothy Ophelia, "teacher's pet"; Dorothy Avery; her baby sister, Mrs. Lloyd Mosher; Philipena, Italian, Miriam MacDowell; Laura, the lip-sing girl, Mrs. Amelia Lockyer.

Mrs. C. P. Kimball the retiring president presided at the business meeting and election of officers. The reports revealed the large growth of the Social Club and the fact that at every monthly supper, large numbers could not be accommodated because the Club had outgrown the capacity of the dining room. It was voted to refer to the incoming cabinet the matter of having two sets of the supper committees for the serving of twotables.

The following officers were then elected for the year 1922: president, Mrs. George D. Bullock; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Ralph P. Chadbourne 2nd vice-president, Mrs. William Hea; secretary, Miss Dorothy Avery; treasurer, Mrs. Edith Welsh; chairman entertainment committee, Miss Rachel Kempf; house committee, Miss Abbie L. Loud, Miss L. May Chessman, Miss Mildred A. Macauley.

The departure of Reynolds Post 58 G. A. R., in holding regular meetings in the afternoon is a success. This week 22 of the 77 registered members responded to the rollcall in Grand Army hall. A committee was appointed to consider the election of "Associate Members."

Gazette Building Has a New Owner

Suddenly it has been discovered that the Weymouth Gazette and Transcript is published on the most valuable site in town, at least Chester H. Rogers thinks so, for he has purchased the property from Mrs. Ella C. Richards. The property includes the Gazette office building and the "Old Arnold Tavern" said to have been built in 1734, and about 11,500 square feet of land, the frontage being about 125 feet.

The old Arnold Tavern is probably the oldest house in Weymouth, and was the meeting place in 1775 of the Committee on Public Safety. At times members of the Weymouth Historical Society have expressed a desire to own the house and furnish it with antiques, and make it one of the show places of the town. But it is said Mr. Rogers contemplates improving the property, in which case the old house will be razed, and another building erected, possibly a block of stores with a movie house on the lot in the rear.

The Gazette building will have a new front, and otherwise improved, but will continue to house the Gazette and Transcript.

The sale price is said to have been about $3,000.

WHITE CHURCH FAIR

The Ladies Social Circle of the "White Church," Mrs. Edward Hunt, president, held their annual fair on Wednesday and Thursday. There was a large attendance. A bountiful supper was served in the dining room in charge of the Friendship Class.

The entertainment the first night was the operetta "Princess Chrysanthemum" under the direction of Mrs. Bertha Mae Gibson. This consisted of a cast of 20 characters, with Japanese costumes and scenery, with Miss Isabelle L. Lovell as pianist and accompanist, and Charles L. Gibson, drums and traps. The characters were impersonated by Misses Lesley Lovell, Mary Keith, Marjorie Stetson, Grace Wheaton, Ellene Raymond, Louise Wing, Louise Smith, Doris Briggs, Isabelle Briggs, Florence Starr, Marion Nash, Eleanor Smith, Gladys Ryerson, Margaret Willis and Celia Joy.

Norman Dizer, Wilbur Morrill, Jack Horsley, Stuart Briggs and Russell Power. Between the acts Master Robert W. Pratt gave recitations. It was a very pleasing entertainment and a credit to the management, as well as the various members of the cast which was composed of the members of the Sunday school.

The tables were laden with pretty and useful home-made Christmas gifts, and were well patronized. They were in charge of the following: Fancy table, Mrs. William C. Earle; Domestic, Mrs. Lewis Denbroeder; Food table, Mrs. Frank Sylvester; Candy table, Grace Taylor, Snip table, Mrs. Libby's Sunday School class; Men's table, William C. Earle; Ice cream, Mrs. Herbert Rockwood.

On Thursday a cafeteria supper was served and the entertainment was by the Weymouth Orchestra Club under the direction of Dr. Harry M. Stetson.

EX-SERVICE MAN

With the account of Sergt. York in a Boston Sunday paper, the hero of the late war honored and loved by all who admire his splendid attitude; that required giving up the ideals he had been raised upon, that of not fighting; and turning out to be one of the greatest heroes of the world; still going about his humble farm duties with the faint hope that yet the Government will do a little more for the ex-Service men in bettering their position; due to the economic losses they all experienced in 1918-1919; it behooves all of us with approaching session of Congress to make more pronounced our impression on the Congressmen that the adjusted compensation bill should be passed.

As illustrative of the fact that the Government can pay, has paid and continues to pay, an adjustment of compensation, all civilian employees in Washington who were employed by the Government during the war and are still employed, are receiving gratuities or a bonus for services rendered, of from ten to thirty dollars per month and remember, these civilian employees received and continue to receive not less than $1200 per year. The men in the army or the navy received no such gratuity and there are today at least 500,000 ex-service men without employment.

The spending of large sums of money by the Government has benefited one class of people and injured other classes of people. On the whole the wealth of the country doubled on account of war, but a man with a uniform on his back, who worked or fought for $20 per month, less $3 for Liberty Bonds, less $7 for insurance, less $15 for his dependents, has not shared in this prosperity. Rather, he had returned to pay taxes to defray the cost of the war in assisting the Government to pay interest on the money borrowed from the people.

WASHINGTON SQUARE FIRE Again at midnight last Friday night the Burrell skating rink building, just over the Braintree line was visited by fire which threatened all the property in Washington Square. Weymouth firemen rallied to the assistance of the Braintree department and the fire was confined largely to the shoe store of John V. Donovan, whose stock was ruined. Sharau's bakery suffered from smoke and water and he should have the assistance of his friends at this time. Some newspapers have placed the loss on building and contents as high as $25,000, but probably $5000 would cover everything.

ST. JAMES THEATRE

A real gripping melodrama of love mystery and exceeding interest is to be the new offering of the Boston Stock Company at the St. James theatre.

The trial of a very famous murder case has just come to a close. Kenneth Whitrop, wealthy, influential, respected, has just been acquitted of any possible implication in the crime. In triumph he returns to his home vindicated and free from all suspicion.

A group of reporters are awaiting his home coming and among the number is Joe Conway, whose family was formerly the recipient of benefaction at the hands of the murdered philanthropist. There is no doubt that his aged friend was murdered and Conway hints that he is not satisfied with the result of the trial. Here follows a series of mystifying and intensely interesting experiences which throw suspicion on first one and then another of those caught in this little web of life.

There is love and there is laughter to give relief to the tense scenes. There is action, rapid, snappy or exasperatingly delightful and exciting. A full strength of the stock company will be required and a number of new people added for the week.

ROBERT EMMET COUNCIL

A reception was given to Rev. Michael O'Flanagan at the Copley Plaza hotel last Tuesday evening. D. J. Toomey was on the reception committee. The Misses Katherine C. and Mary Fogarty also attended. The parade from the hotel to the Boston Opera House was a triumphal procession and when the opera house was reached 15,000 people were outside the building, unable to gain admittance.

The building holds about 5000. Fr. O'Flanagan is Ireland's greatest Soggarth Aroon and one of the foremost orators in that great institution—the Catholic church. He has a delicious brogue and can speak four or five languages. He has long been a thorn in Britain's side.

"Then, and not till then, let my epitaph be written." These were the last words in a speech made by Robert Emmet, one of Ireland's many noble, self-sacrificing martyrs, who died that their native country might live. But their is no death for that band of heroes who, each in his turn took up the gauge of battle through seven centuries, that each in his turn laid down—with his life.

And today what do we see? That Emmet's long-delayed epitaph can now be written. For the enemy that once ruled by the right of might and intrigue—has agreed to depart in shame and humiliation from her shores forever. And it was not the British sense of justice and fair play that accomplished this. It was the strong right arm of the Irish Republican Army, and her able leaders and statesmen; the undying courage and determination to persevere, born of an ideal—love of country!

What an inspiration this is to Americans. Not that Americans need inspiration, but that it teaches us that we should appreciate our liberty more, for the common good of our great beloved America.

—The Ladies Sewing Circle of the Universalist church held a successful two days fair last week. On Wednesday evening a comedy was given entitled: "A Double Deception." In the cast were: Addison Dingwall, Frank Powell, Mary Hesse, Amy Powell and Viola Sherman. On Thursday evening "The Country Minister" was finely staged by Sterling Powell, Roger Marble, Benjamin Litchfield, Alfred Gardner, Harry Stiles, Ernest Keene, Charles Wolfe, Irving Morgan, Mary Ford, Mrs. Dora Nash, Greta Garfield, Mrs. Alice Ames and Mary Hesse.

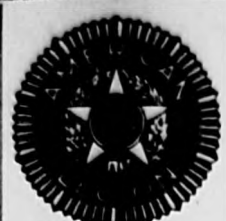

—The Porter church on Sunday evening Arthur L. Fish of Rockland delivered an interesting and instructive address on: "The Problem of Japan and China."

TOWN AND VICINITY

—A touch of cold weather and ice for the youngsters to skate on. The glass was as low as 16 above zero this morning.

—What first appeared to be a gruesome find but later turned out to be a case of somebody discarding a skull and bones, probably used for exhibition purposes or medical research was found at a public dump on Main street South Weymouth, and turned over to Chief of Police Pratt. It is probably some 20 or 25 years old. How long it may have been covered over, or why it has just come to light is still a mystery.

EARLY HISTORY OF WEYMOUTH

By Rev. William Hyde

No. 14—The Wessagusset Plantation

We have now come to a time when Robert Gorges and Thomas Weston are no longer in Wessagusset, and the settlers have to look after themselves and make their own government. It is said that Gorges left the people under the direction of Rev. William Morrell, and he seems to have acted for a time at least.

The settlement was not large, as so many had gone to Virginia and others to Maine, and to England, but it was not the small and unimportant settlement that some writers make it out to be. The settlers had now set themselves out to building and planting and the beginning of a town had been started. It was only a little village, but it had growth in it and in the course of time it was bound to increase.

Some of the leading families of Weymouth can be traced back to this time and therefore the dates 1622, 1623 and 1624 are important dates in the History of Weymouth. The people in Wessagusset were the remains of the Weston and the Gorges companies and all that was necessary now, was the natural growth, as there were families among them and new emigrants began to come in.

Prince, in his Chronicles, states that in 1624 there came a small company to Wessagusset from Weymouth in England and that they had with them a non-conformist minister named Barnard. There may have come such a company, but there are serious doubts about the Rev. Mr. Barnard which we will deal with later. The only authority for this addition is the statement of Prince and he gives as his authority, letters from old residents in Weymouth.

None of these letters exist today or any copies of them, hence some writers, like Charles Francis Adams, doubt the whole thing, but Gilbert Nash in his "First Twenty Years of Weymouth History" argues very strongly for the truth of this statement.

Rev. Thomas Prince knew some of the children of the earliest settlers in Weymouth and he could easily have received a letter giving the facts, and he knew so many of them that it is not likely he would have made such a statement unless it was true.

Prince himself expresses some doubt of the Rev. Mr. Barnard, as he could find no trace of him in any way. There are other things not mentioned by Mr. Nash, which help in the matter.

Christopher Lovett, for instance, states in his narrative that in 1624 there were several vessels from Weymouth, England, at the fishing stations in Maine. These fishing vessels sometimes carried passengers and it is not at all unlikely that some may have come over in one of those vessels.

Then Governor Bradford in his "History of Plymouth" tells of the "Charity" coming in 1624 with aid to Plymouth. She was sent out by the Council for New England and some of the Adventurers. She brought food and cattle, utensils, machines and other aid to Plymouth. When the "Charity" left Plymouth, she went, Bradford states, to Cape Ann. Edward Winslow and Robert Cushman were on board coming from England and there was also some news from Weston. As she was sent out by the Council for New England and some of the Adventurers had an interest in her, it is most unlikely that they would sail for Cape Ann without stopping at Wessagusset and the company from Weymouth, England, may have come in the "Charity."

This vessel, as already stated, was one of those that brought the Weston people to Wessagusset and thus we have another reason why she would call at Weymouth.

She seems to have been made use of for merchant service for the government in England formed a merchant fleet and we find in 1625 that the "Charity" was one of that fleet and in March, 1627, John Pennington, Esq., was appointed admiral of the merchant ship "Charity" and eight others. (See Historical Manuscripts Commission in manuscripts of the Earl of Cowper, 1:300.)

As to Mr. Barnard he will be considered in the "Religious History of Wessagusset."

There seems to be a disposition among the early writers of Massachusetts Bay to belittle the Weston and Gorges settlements at Wessagusset, and write of them as being small and of no importance and as having ceased to exist. It seems to me that enough of facts have now been given in these articles to disprove all such statements, and we can look upon both settlements as being the foundation of the Town of Weymouth.

WEYMOUTH 70 YEARS AGO

Editor Gazette and Transcript:

The following statistics compiled from the census of the Town of Weymouth, taken June, 1850, may be of interest in comparison with the figures printed in a recent issue of the Gazette:

The manufacturing interest of the town amounted to nearly $1,300,000, giving employment to 1653 males and 636 females. The amount paid for labor by the various manufacturers of Weymouth was $515,000.

There were 1672 persons over 15 years of age engaged in the boot and shoe business; also 76 carpenters, 145 farmers, 80 laborers and 126 engaged in the iron business.

CONTINUES WITH DETROIT

That Manager Ty Cobb of the Detroit baseball club thinks a lot of our own Dan Howley's ability as a baseball mentor is testified by the fact that Cobb has signed him for next season and has given him $1000 as a bonus for signing as battery coach.

Howley left last Saturday for Buffalo, where the minor league magnates held a convention the first of this week. He met Cobb, and they put through some deals in the hope of picking up some star—at present unknown in the baseball firmament.

From Buffalo everybody pulled stakes for New York city, where the major league magnates will hold forth. Dan may put John H. Moran of East Weymouth in the way of something good. Moran "discovered" Howley about 15 years ago and got him his first baseball contract; that was with Indianapolis.

Dan expects to spend the rest of the winter in Detroit with his wife, where he will rent an apartment. At present Mrs. Howley is staying with her immediate relatives in St. Paul.

He will take a pair of Clapp's shoes to his trainer, Jimmy Duggan, who nursed his broken arm back to normalcy.

There have been some great "fanning bees" at the Commercial Square Forum while Howley has been with us, and the boys will all miss him, including Charlie Horse.

A LITTLE SUNSHINE

The old folks of Braintree Town Home on Union street, including Weymouth and Braintree, were indebted to some of the young folks of East Braintree and Weymouth for an afternoon's enjoyment Saturday, Nov. 26. The young people were Mrs. Lucretia Dalton, who gave some very fine dances and Madeline Dugan a reading; her sister Leah danced the Highland Fling in costume; Miss Anna Garrity of Weymouth danced several solo dances beautifully, also the clown dance in costume and gave several readings.

Miss Alice Garrity gave readings; many musical solos were given by Alice Mosher, piano; Kenneth Mosher, cornet, and Harold McCusker, violin. They all joined in singing "Yankee Doodle," "Poor Old Joe" etc. Mr. and Mrs. Christian, who have charge of the home thanked the young folks for their kind efforts to carry a little sunshine into the heart of others.

Silver Anniversary of the Monday Club

The Twenty-fifth anniversary of the Monday Club of Weymouth will pass into history as one delightful evening for a large number of members and invited guests. The festivities opened with a banquet at 6.30 P. M., excellently served by Martin, caterers, of Quincy. After the delightful menu of grapefruit, bouillon, roast chicken, potatoes, string beans, salad and ices, Mrs. J. Herbert Libby, president of the club, opened the remarks of the evening and welcomed those present. She called on her husband, Dr. Libby, to act as toastmaster, and he in turn mentioned from the first to the present time, the presidents of the club, those present responding and letters and notes were read from those absent. In this way the busy and active twenty-five years of work of the club was briefly told. A letter of regret from Mrs. Charlotte Lovell Prime, the first president, was as follows:

Yonkers, Dec. 4, 1921

Madame President and Members of The Monday Club:

Please accept very cordial greetings and sincere congratulations on your growth and progress since, twenty-five years ago, I had the honor of presiding at the first meeting of the club.

These years have, I know, been full of worthwhile accomplishments, of which others will speak. But I am thinking of the first four winters, when I was with you and I am ever lastingly grateful for the fragrant memories which they gave me. Memories of loyal friendships, and faithful service--memories of climbing the heights with some of the rare minds--and souls!--of yesterday.

I bring a sprig of rosemary to the empty place which once belonged to Mrs. Josiah Reed--whose advice was invaluable to me in my inexperienced efforts to preside fairly and wisely. And another sprig to the hallowed thought of Alice Freeman Palmer--whose presence was an inspiration and a benediction every time she came to us.

And still other sprigs to each of those early members whom we have "loved and lost awhile."

On this happy birthday it is especially desirable to give honor to whom honor is due--so I have to confess that, although the first in power, none of the glory of creating the Monday Club belongs to me.

It had its inception in the mind of one woman--she alone had the vision,--and she also had the energy not only to dream, but to do. It was she who called together the original committee; she was sure a woman's club in Weymouth would be a success.

So all honor, today to Mrs. Mabel Jones, who should have been your first president, but refused to lead the organization she had created.

I wish I were celebrating with you. Please invite me to your fiftieth birthday, and may your prosperity continue meantime.

I have faith that, like David Livingstone, you will "go anywhere provided it is forward."

Very sincerely yours,

Charlotte Lovell Prime

Mrs. Mabel B. Jones, who was hailed as the organizer whose vision was responsible for the founding of the club and who was the second president gave in her very entertaining and always delightful way the early difficulties encountered in those formative days, recalling the dear prophecies at that time that the life of the club would be short. However, she thought the record of twenty-five years discredited these false prophecies. Mrs. Jones read a list of the names of the thirteen charter members, who were: She also spoke of the choosing of the name of the club, in place of the one desired in the beginning, as the Secretary of State informed them that there was a Twentieth Century Club. Mrs. Jones was presented with a beautiful bouquet of chrysanthemums. Mrs. Elizabeth B. Pratt, who has just passed her 83d birthday, in her sweet and pleasing manner, spoke of the two years she gladly served as president, stating that the growth of the club made it necessary to move from the Knights of Honor hall to the new Masonic hall; that during her term she served as delegate to the National convention, where an interesting controversy took place in regard to the admission of colored women's clubs to the Federation.

A letter from Mrs. Albert P. Worthen, also a past president, regretted exceedingly her inability to accept the kind invitation of the Monday Club for its 25th anniversary on December fifth, but wishes for the club many more years of success and prosperity.

Tribute was paid to Mrs. Anna D. Heckman, the sixth president, who served during 1904-1906, the only president of the club who has passed to the Great Beyond.

The seventh president was Miss McGregor who extended her congratulations and good wishes to the Monday Club at this season of its twenty-fifth anniversary and sincerely regrets that she is unable to accept the club's invitation for Monday, December the fifth.

The president who served during the World War wrote:

I regret very much that I shall be unable to be the guest of the Monday Club on December fifth. It would be very difficult for me to get there in the evening, I think. Thanking the club for its kind invitation and wishing for it a very happy and prosperous year, I am sincerely,

ALICE L. NEAL

High St., North Scituate

The sad feature of the evening was the enforced absence of Mrs. Jennie B. Worster, who has recently lost her son and she was greatly missed by all the members. She has been twice honored as president, serving for the term of 1908-10 and 1916-18. A note and report which she had hoped to deliver herself covering the progress of the club were kindly read by Mrs. Alice Pierce Jewell, who followed Mrs. Worster as president in the term of 1919-21.

To the President and Members of The Monday Club

Nov. 28, 1896, Mrs. James H. Jones called a meeting of twelve women to form a club for mutual improvement of the members on literature, art and the leading topics of the day. On Dec. 9th, 1896, a meeting was held and a constitution and by laws were drawn and it was voted to call it The Monday Club of Weymouth. Officers were chosen and an opportunity given for others to join. The first meeting was held in Temple of Honor Hall Jan. 4th, 1897 and there were 75 women present. Others joined later and the number of members varied from 200 to 250 or 275 during the different years, but my object is to tell you of the good things we have accomplished in the twenty-five years we have lived as a club. Our first gift was to the Weymouth High school: Merrill's "Vision of St. Anthony" which cost $25. Later we paid $30 for setting out trees. Then a lantern we helped to pay for $143.98; also a hot water heater for domestic science class, for buying music $20, making a total of $250.28 for the High school. We have our scholarship fund of $1000. We have educated a girl in Kentucky at an expense of $200. We have given to the Boston floating hospital $200, to the Weymouth Hospital Association $100, to the Visiting Nurse at different times $238, for sewing in the schools (Continued on page 13)

MY CHRISTMAS WISH

A Good, Glad Christmastide, my friend,
To you and yours is the wish I send.
May all your tomorrows have skies of blue,
And all your friends be loving and true.

*Bell Ringing,
One of the Oldest Christmas Customs*

WHAT would Christmas be without the melody of the bells ringing good will toward men?

Bell ringing is one of the oldest of Christmas customs. At one time, in England, the ringers gave their services free, nor would they accept any special payment. The peal was rung as a matter of course, and was the natural expression of English joyousness. The merry music of the bells in Great Britain and wherever churches have peals of bells, is today as much a feature of Christmas as the decoration of church and home with evergreens, or the provision of the good cheer which always marks this festive season.

What an outcry there would be if an edict were issued forbidding the ringing of the bells during the coming festive season! Yet this was actually done during the Commonwealth, for in 1652 the wise men of parliament gave orders that "no observation shall be had of the five-and-twentieth day of December, commonly called Christmas day."

It is quite certain that this edict was disregarded in many places, while in others it led to open rioting. At Canterbury the mayor of the city tried to enforce the new rule, but the people were not going to be deprived of their pleasures so easily, so they took the law into their own hands, broke the mayor's windows—and some of his bones as well—and affirmed their intention of keeping their Christmas in their own fashion, just as their fathers had done before them.

A Good Modeling Material.

It is often very difficult to keep a child confined to the house amused. But with a modeling material with which they can make animals, beads, etc., they can be kept amused for hours. Take four tablespoonfuls cornstarch, eight tablespoonfuls salt and eight tablespoonfuls boiling water. Mix the dry ingredients and pour on the boiling water, stirring until the mixture is soft. Put on the fire and stir until it forms a soft ball, then remove from the stove and stir for ten minutes. A little color may be added. Wrap in oiled paper when not in use to keep from hardening.

THE GIFT I CHOOSE.

GIVE me the hearthstone with the glow that warms the soul within;
I choose the gift of kindly smiles, that wealth can never win.
The laugh that ripples to the lips from hearts where peace sublime Reigns in the fullness of content to bless the Christmas time.

Uncompromisingly Morose.

"Christmas comes but once a year," said the ready-made philosopher.
"Yes," replied Mr. Growcher; "a tornado doesn't come even as often as that. But consider how long it takes to get over it."

The Christmas Card

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

I AM a Christmas Card. I was born shortly before Christmas of 1913. I was put away in a box after Christmas and the next year I came forth again, and the price put upon me had risen from two cents to five.

The next year I cost ten cents. Still I did not sell.

"We'll have to charge a quarter for that card," my owner said, "and get up the prices of some of these others, or they won't be bought."

So I was a quarter. And then I cost 50 cents and was purchased.

The price mark has been left on me. I've been traveling with it written on my back ever since. Sometimes, too, I get around to a number of places around Christmas time, especially if I'm started off early in the first place.

So far, too, I've been greeted with joy, and an exclamation I do not quite understand.

"Oh, good! Here's a card which is marked fifty cents. Who would believe it possible, but no matter, it did! And it's not written on, either!"

I do not understand their joy over me, but they never keep me with them!

Christmas Fish.

A fish which resembles a cod is considered by the people of Sweden as an indispensable adjunct of their Christmas feast. This fish is buried for days in wood ashes or else soaked in soda water, then boiled and served with a milk gravy.

CHAPTER XVI—Continued.

"Good-night, old girl!" Something in the tone touched her, with a vague hint of unhappiness, but she did not stop to analyze it. She went back through his room, and through the little passage, and rejoined Martin. The freedom of Peter's apartment Alix had always taken as naturally as she did the freedom of her father's.

"Can't hear us, eh?" Martin asked, when again she stood beside him.

"Positively not!" she answered. "Look here," he said, abruptly. "What brought me up here is this. Who's making love to Cherry?"

Indignant, and with rising color, she stared at him.

"Who—what?"

"She's having a nice little quiet flirtation with somebody," Martin said, with a significant and warning smile. "Who is it?"

"I don't know who's been talking to you about Cherry, Martin," Alix said, sharply, "but you know you can't repeat that sort of rotten scandal to me!"

"I don't mean any harm—I don't mean any harm!" he assured her, with a quick attempt to quiet the storm he had raised. "Don't get mad—don't get mad! But I happen to know that there's some attraction that's keeping Cherry here, and I came up to look over the ground for myself, do you see? Come on, now, put me on!"

Alix made an effort at self-control. "Martin, you're mistaken!" she said, quietly. "You have no right to listen to any one who tells you such things, and if it wasn't that you're Cherry's husband I wouldn't listen to you! But you'll have to take my word for it that it's a lie. We three have lived up here without seeing any one—any one! Cherry has hardly spoken to a man, except Peter and Antone and Kow, since she came!"

"Who is this George Sewall?" he asked, shrewdly.

"The lawyer! Oh, heavens, Martin! Why, George was a beau of mine; he's a widower of fifty, and has just announced his engagement to the trained nurse that took care of his boy!"

"H'm!" Martin commented.

"If any one mentioned Cherry's name in connection with George," Alix said, firmly, "that was a perfectly malicious slander!"

"Sewall's wasn't mentioned!" Martin said, hastily.

"Whose name was mentioned, then?" Alix pursued, hotly.

"Well, nobody's name was mentioned," Martin took a great many creases and rubbed papers from his vest pockets, and shifted them over. Finally, with a fat, deliberate hand he selected one and put the others away.

"This is from my mother," he said. "My aunt, Mrs. North—"

"We saw her here, a week or two ago!" Alix said as he paused.

"Well, she was in Portland, and saw the folks," said Martin. "And my mother writes me this—"

And after a few seconds of searching he read from the letter:

"Bessie North saw Cherry and Mrs. Joyce in Mill Valley, and if I was you I would not let Cherry stay away too long. A wife's place is with her husband, especially when she is as pretty as Cherry, and if Bessie is right, somebody else thinks she's pretty, too, and you know it doesn't take much to start people talking. It isn't like she had a couple of children to keep her busy."

"That's all of that," said Martin, folding the letter. He eyed Alix keenly. "Well, what do you think?" he asked, triumphantly.

"I think that's a mean, wicked thing to say!" she said, indignantly. "No, Martin," she said, silencing him, as he would have interrupted her, "I know she is beautiful and young, and I know—because she's told me—that you and she feel that your marriage is a mistake, but if you think—"

"Oh, she said that, did she? Now, look here," with his air of assurance. "By George, she had something on her mind when she met me today. She was fussed, all right, and it wasn't all the surprise of seeing me, either. First she wanted to telephone you—then she fussed over your message—"

"Cherry gets flustered very easily!" Alix reminded him.

"Well, she was fussed all right this morning. She said not to mention it to Alix, because she had promised that it should go on time. I thought maybe she meant that you wanted her to go herself; no, she said, a note would do—"

"I don't know what you're talking about!" Alix said, puzzled.

"Your note!" Martin explained.

"What note? I didn't write any note. Cherry telephoned—"

"No," he said, patiently and perfunctorily, "you wanted—Cherry—to—say—good-by—to—to—those—people—who—were—sailing! That was all. She wrote it; it got there in time, I guess. Anyway, I heard the girl say to rush it to the boat!"

"Oh!" Alix said. "Oh—" she added. Her tone betrayed nothing, but she was thoroughly at sea. "Did I ask Cherry to say good-by to any one?" she asked herself, going back to the beginning of the long day. Instinct warned her that nothing would be gained by sharing her perplexity with Martin. "I give you my word that she hasn't been five minutes alone with any one but Peter and me!" she said, frankly, looking into Martin's eyes. "Now, are you satisfied?"

"Sure, I'm satisfied!" he answered. "I'll take your say-so for it." He yawned. "Trouble with Cherry is, she hasn't enough to do!" he finished sapiently.

"I'm a poor person with whom to discuss Cherry!" Alix hinted, with an unsmiling nod for good-night.

And she looked at Cherry's corn-colored head, ten minutes later, with a thrill of maternal protectiveness. Cherry was evidently asleep, buried deep under the blue army blankets. But Alix did not get to sleep that night.

She did not even undress. For it was while sitting on the side of her bed, ready to begin the process, that through her excited and indignant and whirling thoughts the first suspicion shot like a touch of flame.

"I'll tell Peter all this when Martin has gone," Alix decided. "He'll be furious—he adores Cherry—he'll be furious—he thinks that there is no one like Cherry—"

The words she had said came back to her, and she said them again, half-aloud, with a look of pain and almost of fear suddenly coming into her eyes.

"Peter adores Cherry—"

And then she knew. Even while the sick suspicion formed itself, vague and menacing and horrible, in her heart, she knew the truth of it. And though for hours she was to weigh it and measure it, to remember and question and compare all the days and hours that she and Peter and Cherry had been together; from the moment the thought was born she knew that it was to be with her an accepted fact for all time to come.

For a few seconds Alix felt ill, dazed, and shocked almost beyond enduring. She sat immovable, her eyes fixed, her body held rigid, as a body might be in the second before it fell after a bullet had cleanly pierced the heart.

Then she put her hand to her throat, and looked with a sort of terror at the silent figure of Cherry. Nobody must know—that was Alix's first clear thought. She was breathing hard, her breast rising and falling painfully, and the blood in her temples began to pound; her mouth was dry.

With a blind instinct for solitude she went quickly and silently from the sleeping porch, and into the warm sitting room. For a few minutes Alix stood, with one foot on the chain that linked the old brass fire dogs, her elbow on the mantel, and her cheek resting against her arm.

"No," she whispered, almost audibly, "no—it can't be that! It can't be Cherry and Peter—Oh, my God! Oh, my God, it has been that, all the time, that, all the time—and I never knew it—I never dreamed it!"

"It's Peter and Cherry! They have come to care for each other—they have come to care for each other," she said to herself, her thoughts rushing and tumbling in mad confusion as she tested and tried the new fear. "It must be so. But it can't be so!" Alix interrupted herself in terror, "for what shall we do—what shall we do? Cherry in love with Peter. But Peter is my husband—he is my husband—"

And in a spasm of pain she shut her eyes, and flung her head as if suffocating. The beating of her heart frightened her. "I shall be sick if I go on this way!" she reminded herself. "And then they will know. They mustn't know. But Peter—" she whispered suddenly. "Peter, who has always been so good to me—so generous to me—and it was Cherry all the time! Even those years ago, when we used to tease him about the lady with the crinolines and ringlets, it was she. But why didn't he ask her instead of me?" wondered Alix, and with an aching head and a frowning brow she began to piece it all together.

The terrible truth rose triumphant from all her memories. Sometimes for a second hope would flood her with almost painful joy, but inevitably the truth shut down upon her again, and hope died, and she realized afresh that sorrow, stronger than before, was waiting to seize her again.

"Well—I can't stand it in here!" Alix said, suddenly. She crossed to the door, and opened it, and slipped noiselessly out into the night, catching a coat from the rack as she passed.

The night was wrapped in an ocean fog, there was no moon and no stars, but the air was soft and warm. With no goal in view, Alix climbed upward, walking rapidly, breathing hard, and frequently speaking aloud, as some poignant thought smote her, or standing still, too sick with pain, under an unexpected rush of emotion, to move.

"He would have told me about it—why didn't I let him!" ran Alix's thoughts. "I thought of some older woman, I don't know why—anyway, I didn't care so much then. But I care now! Peter, I care now! I can't give you up, even to Cherry. It is nonsense to talk of giving him up," Alix told herself, sitting down in the inky dark, on a log against which her wild walk had suddenly brought her, "for we are all married people, and we all love each other. But oh, I am so sorry! I am so sorry, Peter," she whispered, as if she were speaking to him. "You couldn't help it, I know that. She is so pretty and so sweet, Cherry—and she turns to you as if you were her big brother!"

She got to her feet and went on. "What am I thinking about—It's absurd! Can't people like each other, in this world, just because they happen to be married! Peter would be the first to laugh at me. And is it fair to Cherry even to think that she would—"

"Oh, but it's true!" the honest impulse interrupted, mercilessly. "It is true. Whether it's right or wrong, or sensible or absurd, they do love each other; that's what has changed them both."

And she began to remember a hundred—a thousand—trifles, that made it all hideously clear. Words, glances, moods subtler than either, came back to her. Cherry's confusion of late, when the question of her return to Martin was raised, her indifference to her inheritance, her restless talk during one hour of immediate departure, and during the next of an apparently termless visit; all these were significant now.

"I am desperately unhappy!" Cherry had said. And immediately after that, Alix recalled wretchedly, had come a brief and apparently aimless talk about Alix's rights, and her eagerness to share them with her sister.

"Poor Cherry!" the older sister said aloud, standing still for a moment, and pressing both hands over her hot eyes. "Poor little old Cherry—life hasn't been very kind to her! She and Peter must be so sorry and ashamed about this! And Dad would be so sorry; of all things he wanted most that Cherry should be happy! Perhaps," thought Alix, "he realized that she was that sort of a nature, she must love and be loved, or she cannot live! But why did he let her marry Martin, and why wasn't he here to keep me from marrying Peter? What a mess—mess—mess we've made of it all!"

As she used the term, she realized that Cherry had used it, too, this same evening, and fresh conviction was added to the great weight of conviction in her heart.

"Oh, Peter—Peter—Peter!" she moaned, writhing as the cry escaped her. "Why couldn't it have been me, why couldn't I have loved me that way? I know I am not so pretty as Cherry," Alix went on, resuming her restless walk, "and I know that those things don't seem to mean as much to me as to most women! But, Peter," she said softly, aloud, "no wife ever loved a man more than I love you, my dear!"

She remembered some of his half-laughing, half-fretful reproaches, when he had told her that she loved him much as she loved Buck, and that, in these respects, she was no more than a healthy child. "I may be a child," said Alix, feeling that a dry flame was consuming her heart, "but a child can love! My dear—my dear—"

"I wish I could cry," she said suddenly, finding herself sitting on a log where low oaks met the forest and the open meadows. "But now we must face this thing sensibly. What is to be done? They must not know that I know, and in some way we must get out of this tangle. Even if Peter were free, Cherry would not be free," she decided, "and so the only thing to do is to help them, until it dies away."

No suspicion of the truth stabbed her, although she remembered Martin and his strange tale of a message and wondered about it a little in her thoughts. To whom had Cherry been sending that telegram if not to Peter? And if to Peter, why had she not simply telephoned? Because she had known that Peter was not in his office, because she had been going to meet him somewhere. But where? Well, at the boat. Martin had heard her tell the boy that he must catch the boat. Alix did not guess the truth. But she guessed enough to make her feel frightened and sick. She could not suppose that Cherry and Peter had planned to go away on that boat together, because at most her thoughts would have grasped the idea of one or two days' absence only, and they had given her no warning of that. But until this instant the thought of the passionate desire that enveloped them had not reached her; she had imagined Cherry's feeling for Peter to be something only a little stronger than her own.

Now she thought of Cherry's beauty, her fragrance and softness, the shine in her blue eyes and the light on her corn-colored hair, and knew that life for them all, of late, had been mined with frightful danger.

"Cherry would be disgraced, and Martin—Martin would kill her, if he found her out! . . . Oh, my little sister! She would be fawned; she is so reckless, she would do anything—she would be a public scandal, and the papers would have her pictures—Dad's little yellow-headed Charity! Oh, Dad," she said, looking up into the dark, "tell me what to do! I need you so! Won't you somehow tell me what to do?"

Silence and darkness. But even in that gloom Alix could tell the fog was lifting, and a sudden sweep of breeze, like a tired breath, went over the tops of the redwoods.

Steadily came the change. The darkness, by imperceptible degrees, lifted. "Light!" Alix whispered, awestruck. And a few moments later she added, "Dawn!"

It was dawn indeed that was creeping into the valley, and as it brightened and deepened and warmed momentarily, Alix felt some of the peace

she felt the boy that he must catch the boat.

Alix did not guess the truth. But she guessed enough to make her feel frightened and sick. She could not suppose that Cherry and Peter had planned to go away on that boat together, because at most her thoughts would have grasped the idea of one or two days' absence only, and they had given her no warning of that. But until this instant the thought of the passionate desire that enveloped them had not reached her; she had imagined Cherry's feeling for Peter to be something only a little stronger than her own.

Now she thought of Cherry's beauty, her fragrance and softness, the shine in her blue eyes and the light on her corn-colored hair, and knew that life for them all, of late, had been mined with frightful danger.

"Cherry would be disgraced, and Martin—Martin would kill her, if he found her out! . . . Oh, my little sister! She would be fawned; she is so reckless, she would do anything—she would be a public scandal, and the papers would have her pictures—Dad's little yellow-headed Charity! Oh, Dad," she said, looking up into the dark, "tell me what to do! I need you so! Won't you somehow tell me what to do?"

Silence and darkness. But even in that gloom Alix could tell the fog was lifting, and a sudden sweep of breeze, like a tired breath, went over the tops of the redwoods.

Steadily came the change. The darkness, by imperceptible degrees, lifted. "Light!" Alix whispered, awestruck. And a few moments later she added, "Dawn!"

It was dawn indeed that was creeping into the valley, and as it brightened and deepened and warmed momentarily, Alix felt some of the peace

she felt the boy that he must catch the boat.

CHURCH NOTES

UNION CHURCH

Weymouth and Braintree
Norfolk Square
"Success" an address especially to young people (and young couples) on Sunday morning at 10.30. Kindergarten during the same hour, under trained leadership. The church with the generous help of friends, has installed a large radiant-fire gas heater especially for the little tots, around which they will gather and be warm and cosy.

Community motion picture service at 7 P. M., with three-reel program: "The Lost Lie." An understanding heart—what a blessing that understanding heart proves to be to two mischievous boys caught in a misdemeanor. The man who had not forgotten his own boyhood lets the boys arrive at a realization of their error by their own healthy little boy-mind route. An interesting, gripping story, teaching the youth a fine lesson in the virtue of truthfulness and the adult the lesson that justice had best be tempered by mercy and gentleness and understanding.

The church where there is always the welcome waiting for you.

Is the world getting better or worse? Whichever way it is going, you are responsible. Are you doing anything to make it better? The churches could be a great power for human advancement, if only the manpower of the world would enlist under the banners of the churches and use their organization and equipment for the eradication of evil and injustice and the establishment of a better social order. ### BRAINTREE POINT

The Athletic Committee had a social evening for the Soccer club Friday night. Dancing, games and refreshments were provided and Miss Ritchie entertained with songs.

Church, the popular forward of the first string has the sympathy of the club in the loss of his father.

The soccer magnates have pulled a brand new one when they awarded Eddie Bradford six months probation for his fracas with Referee Welch. Men who have followed the game for the last 35 years claim that there is absolutely no rule covering this sentence and want to be shown the authority. Suspension and fines have always been the penalties and this "probation" stuff is something brand new. We imagine that "somebody's" pet was in line for a dose of medicine from the committee and in order to save him and punish Eddie, they concocted this probation sentence. Maybe they will award sentences of kitchen police or extra duty for future offences.

Soccer Notes

Braintree Welfare won over South Boston Rangers at the Strandway, Saturday, in the Boston and District league series. The game was all South Boston until the second half when Doherty seized a high cross from Bradford, and sent it through, for the tying goal. McAuley and Russell then worked the ball through with Mac sending over a big Bertha which Smith couldn't see. Braintree still leads the League. The grounds were in wretched shape, with large pools of water situated in the strategic positions. Watson park may not be the best ground available, but it is a better bad weather field than many.

Lineup:
BRAINTREE—Goal, Davison; backs Hamilton and M. Gunning; halfbacks, Ritchie, Littlejohn and Lyons; forwards, Doherty, P. Gunning, Russell, McAuley and Bradford.
SOUTH BOSTON RANGERS—Goal, Smith; backs, Burton and Pearson; halfbacks, Mahoney, Burke and Nicholson; forwards, Cosgrove, Cunliffe, McLean, Roy and Crothers.

Score—Braintree 2, Rangers 1. Goals: Doherty, McAuley. Crothers. Referee: J. Howe of Malden. Linesmen: J. Yeaton of South Boston, J. Kerr of Braintree. Time, 45 min. halves.

Manager Cameron and his "B" team made their debut Sunday in an exhibition with the Armenian-Americans. The youngsters made a good impression and showed up well. The Armenians worked hard and were willing, but they have a lot to learn about the game. For a team which has been going scarcely three months they show promise. The score:

BRAINTREE BEES—Goal, Salisbury; backs, Hamilton and Bodell; halfbacks, Murray (alias Ratican), McDonald and Estabrook; forwards Logan, Smith, Wylie, W. Salisbury and Gillon.

ARMENIAN AMERICANS—Goal, Davis; backs, Koresian and Hampik; halfbacks, Charles Tashjian, Baylik; forwards, Yesayi, Vahram, Ashoid, Seroupe and Haig.

Score—Braintree 8, Armenians 3. Goals: Wylie 2, Gillon, Logan 2, W. Salisbury 2, Smith, Koresian Ashoid 2. Referee, A. Catto, Quincy. Linesmen, Neubar and Campbell. Time 45 min. halves.

The coach intends to cut the squad to 12 men, so that he will be able to devote more time to the promising candidates.

HELPFUL WORDS

From a Weymouth Citizen

Is your back lame and painful? Does it ache especially after exertion? Is there a soreness in the kidney region? These symptoms suggest weak kidneys. If so there is danger in delay. Weak kidneys get weaker in delay. Give your trouble prompt attention. Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys. Your neighbors use and recommend them. Ask your neighbor! Read this Weymouth testimony:

Mrs. C. Ferguson, 53 Phillip street, Weymouth, says: "I can indeed say a good word for Doan's Kidney Pills. I have used them on a number of different occasions with satisfactory results. My back was lame and sore and my kidneys were also sore and acted too freely. A few boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills have always relieved the trouble in a short time."

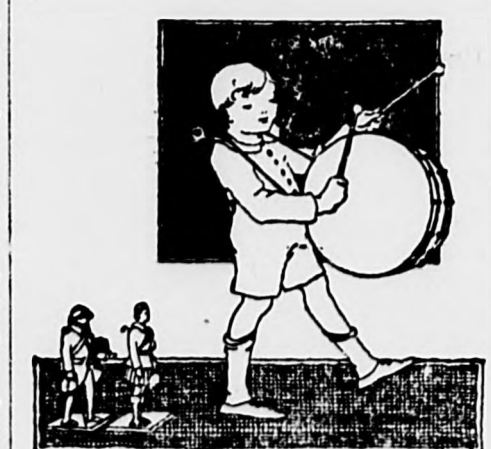

Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Ferguson had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y. (Advertisement)

$202.60, to establish the Stamp Saving system $100, to assist in the Boston Biennial $125, to the War Victory fund to establish a home for boys in France $150, for Belgian Relief $88, toward the Endowment fund of the General Federation $125, to the Endowment fund of the State Federation $55, to the Pond Home $60, to the Faint-up and Clean-up committee $35 to Miss Brassil for her work $20. During the war we bought one $50 bond and gave small sums to many worthy cases connected with the war. We have given to the Springfield International college and the Massachusetts Forestry Association also the National Audubon Society. We contributed to the Longfellow Memorial fund and to the Roger Wolcott Memorial fund, to a Model school in Georgia we gave $25, toward traveling librarian for out-lying districts $30, to the State Federation for educational use $25.

We helped restore Longfellow's birthplace, gave toward the Anne Hutchinson statue, helped the Social Welfare club; and in summing up I find it totals in amount of money $3433.28.

On Dec. 5, 1904 the club had 290 members. On Oct. 16, 1916 the club started the year with 248 members; 1916-1917 year closed with 250 members and eight on waiting list. We have paid general and State Federation dues, beside our regular expenses: rent of hall and our talent for our fourteen regular meetings, and until this last year our fee has been only two dollars each. When this club was formed we had members from South Weymouth, Quincy and Braintree, but clubs have since been formed in all those places and naturally took from our membership.

A business man I was talking with said no body of men that he was ever interested in could accomplish what our Monday Club has done since its formation on such small dues; he thought it remarkable that nearly $3500 had been spent.

We have 32 members who have held membership during the 25 years. I will give them alphabetically as I found them in the book of 1897-1898: Mrs. W. E. Ames, Mrs. Harriet B. Bachelder, Mrs. George H. Bass, Mrs. John Taylor (nee Clara E. Beals), Mrs. C. Will Bailey, Mrs. Wendell B. Clapp, Mrs. William O. Collier, Mrs. Albert Gladwin (nee Lillian F. Curtis), Mrs. John F. Cushing, Mrs. William A. Drake, Mrs. Henry Dyer, Mrs. William C. Earle, Mrs. James Ford, Mrs. John C. Fraser, Mrs. George M. Hoyt, Mrs. Henry L. Humphrey, Mrs. James B. Jones, Mrs. Preston Lewis, Mrs. J. H. Libby, Mrs. Edwin E. Merchant, Mrs. Charles C. Nash, Mrs. Elizabeth B. Pratt, Mrs. Frank J. A. Perry, Mrs. George J. Reis, Mrs. Ella C. Richards, Miss Harriet Ripley, Mrs. A. J. Sidelinger, Mrs. Walter Thompson, Mrs. F. P. Virgin, Mrs. Jennie B. Worster, Mrs. Warren Weston.

Mrs. Lottie G. Sampson, who was president during 1914-16, spoke of the scholarship fund which had been established by the club, from which a small sum is given each year to the most deserving pupil of the Weymouth High school, so that he or she may continue their education. This is an annual award and the beneficiary for 1921, was Miss Ada Leinonen of North Weymouth. Mrs. Sampson's address was most instructive and inspiring and was proof of her untiring efforts and interest in The Monday Club.

The address of Mrs. Ada Dillingham Pray, first vice-president.

The Monday Club—Its Future

The remarks of our ex-presidents and the interesting paper prepared by Mrs. Worster have unfolded a word picture of the beginning and growth of our club during the past quarter of a century. What a grown-up feeling that word "century" gives us, even though it is preceded by a fraction.

But what of the future. Although I cannot claim to have the gift of prophecy it does not need a prophet to know that if we for one moment rest on our laurels and think we have arrived at our full development, that moment we cease to grow.

My prophecy would be a vision of our endless possibilities awaiting fulfillment. Would you not like to picture in the future our locality so benedified by the work of our club through its various departments that those coming after us could point with pride at a model clubhouse, public playground, work along lines of Americanization, all the result of our civic ideals; dental clinics, health pictures in our moving picture houses and better local conditions, generally under the inspiration of our public health department; an education department, establishing a parent-teachers association, mothercraft and other increasing interests in the needs and desires of our public schools; limitless possibilities along lines of art, music, conservation, hospitality, legislative affairs and the various other departments that mean so much to the success of the club.

But there must be something besides work, necessary as that is. You perhaps read of the enthusiastic professor at the football game who exclaimed to the man sitting near him "What wonderful co-operation of endeavor, each man carrying on his own part, yet working with each other in such co-ordination as one body." "That may be as you say" replied the other doubtfully, "but I think team work is what really counts." No matter which way you word it, that team work is just as essential in the club room as on the stadium.

All these things seem possible and not even very remote, but we must not forget that centenarians seem to be coming into fashion. What of our Monday Club then? Will they attempt to show our accomplishments on that distant day in the form of a monster pageant? Episode Two, Scene I may strive to reproduce this twenty-fifth anniversary. One can picture the hunting over attic treasures and old diaries for information as to costumes and customs of the Monday Club way back in that winter of 1921. Surely history is in the making. Are we building sane and strong? Choosing right, discarding wrong? Growing as we go along toward our tercentenary?

Help us then to stay steadfast, Only gleaming from the past, Lessons that will make us last, Till our tercentenary.

After the banquet those present passed to the upper hall which was beautifully decorated in the club colors, having yellow wistaria held with violet ribbons arranged in an effective manner. Mrs. Frederick Alden and Mrs. Oliver Horton were the banquet hostesses.

Owing to a contrary auto, the entertainer was an hour late, but when he arrived he took his hearers in an imaginary airship which could be heard if not seen on a trip to a farm where one heard farm sounds from feeding the porkers to recitations by varied nationalities and some really fine whistling imitations of bird songs. Then came the dancing, which was thoroughly enjoyed and at last the end of the 25th anniversary.

HEALTH WEEK PRIZE ESSAYS
The prize winners for essays awarded by the Weymouth Health Week committee were announced in the Gazette-Transcript last week and this week the best two are printed in full. The grand prize was won by Miss Louise White of grade IX of the Hunt school who wrote on

GOOD HEALTH
"What is more important to a person than health?"

"Without health life loses much of its value. To gain the best results and to be successful, one must be strong and healthy. To be strong and healthy one must take proper care of the body. Many people are born strong and healthy, yet through ignorance or neglect of simple health rules lose this blessing.

"Most everything depends upon our mothers. Those who are so unfortunate as not to have a good mother can learn much from the good training received in all the school. Since this is so, there are not so many excuses for neglecting our bodies.

"Food that is not chewed cannot be properly digested and this often causes stomach trouble later. Too much liquid taken with the food does not aid the stomach or digestion and should be avoided. Our meals should be eaten regularly and not hurriedly. Chew our food well in order to aid the stomach.

"The teeth should be properly and perfectly cleaned. We should care for them daily. If any are decayed they should be treated without delay as decayed teeth affect the whole system.

"Aside from properly chewing food and caring for the teeth, the greatest of care should be given to the body, to keep it clean. Daily bathing, if possible, is helpful. Clean underclothing regularly is necessary. Particularly keep the hands and face clean and avoid handling all that is not clean. Bathing opens the pores and helps to keep the skin clean and free from germs.

"Fresh air is another thing that is important. We should try to be in the open air as much as possible. Try to avoid closed and poorly ventilated rooms. Also sleep with your windows open and inhale fresh air on all possible occasions. Deep breathing develops the lungs and gives one a healthy appearance. Deep breathing has also been known to cure many diseases, so it is to be highly recommended.

"A person who is growing should always walk and stand very straight, so as to get plenty of fresh air into the lungs. Do not sit, walk, or stand with your shoulders all rounded, but stand up as though you had some life to you.

"With good carriage, plenty of fresh air, proper food and good common sense there is no reason for ill health. And all these are worth our attention as there is nothing to be compared to good health. It may mean success instead of failure in life."

Miss Pauline Blackwell of the High school, who took for her subject "Perfection" in the Health Week essay contest, won first prize among High school pupils. Her essay is printed in full:

PERFECTION

"Somewhere in the far-distant future so far that it may scarcely be seen, but still distinct enough so that one may know it is there, stands a wonder city. And the name of this city is Perfection. The streets speak for themselves. One is Health; leading from it Prosperity, Riches and Happiness.

"The inhabitants of this city, in the prime of good health and joy, have learned the true meaning of the laws of life. The city itself, laid out in wide, clean, streets; not with towering skyscrapers and dingy tenements surrounding them, but with spacious gardens, rushing fountains and roomy sun-flooded homes; with parks and trees, and all the wonders of Nature free to all for the taking.

"The slogan of this community is: Health first, and then comes all other things worth while.

"Everything about this city is ideal, but not impossible. Well regulated laws govern the health and welfare of the citizens in as great a degree as they govern their morals and behavior. The daily life of each citizen is carefully guarded; and the result is

WAR WITH CHINA AVERTED

Diplomatic relations with China were severely strained by an incident that occurred in Washington Square, Weymouth, last Saturday evening. It really was an unfortunate occurrence as international complications might have resulted that would have put Uncle Sam in an embarrassing position. But even that gentleman cannot keep his eye on all his children—particularly the small boy. Our uncle is an avowed friend to China, and such an incident as that to be related below, does not help him in his difficult position as peacemaker at the Arms Conference in Washington.

Two small boys went into the laundry of Ching Chang, and while one was asking him why it was that hens in China laid glass eggs, the other picked up the end of the string that was lying on the counter and walked nonchalantly out the door with it. Pretty soon Ching in his bland and unassuming way was aroused to the situation, and ran to the door swearing in Chinese at both miscreants, who by this time were well on their way toward East Braintree. It never occurred to the chink to break the string, and besides string costs money.

In the meantime the night patrolman at the Landing followed to the missing end of the string that led around a building and found the boys, who gave their names as Mark Antony and Julius Caesar.

In order to pacify the furious Oriental they later went back on the q.t. and offered him a dime for the loss of his string, but he was not in a forgiving mood and said that "pleecee take clare clare." But they told him that the police had ordered them to pay the dime, so he ungraciously accepted it, muttering Chinese as the boys departed chuckling.

The Old Folks' Christmas

By Christopher Grant Hazard

THE Old Folks decided that it was time for them to be young again. So they set up a Christmas tree in a corner of the big dining room.

Santa Claus came bustling in and began to make things pleasant. Tied to his belt there was an alarm clock. Its bell was ringing like everything. This was to wake the Old Folks up.

First, he called the roll, to see if they were all up and awake. Then, he began to pick the presents off the tree.

Soon the room was gay with dolls, horns and jumping jacks. A doll was riding in her carriage, squeaking and rising up every few feet as she rode along.

There was a talking doll, too. She sang and talked when they pushed the buttons on her dress.

There were hot dolls for cold nights and cups and balls for the Old Folks to play with when they could not sleep.

The Old Folks all played with their presents. They blew on their horns, and amused themselves with the jumping-jacks, and sent the moving toys running about the room all at once. But, after all, the Old Folks thought it wasn't so very much fun because there were no real children there. So they sent out to see if they could find some.

They found Lucy, Peter, Billy, Mary, Sally, Hilda, Ruth, and some other children, who all came to see the Old Folks' Christmas tree.

Lucy told the Old Folks the story about her dog Trump.

Trump was a tramp dog, but he could do some tricks. He loved to be dressed up in a blanket, with a belt. Then, with a beribboned straw hat on his head, he would walk across the room upon his hind legs.

After Lucy came Peter.

Peter said that he did not know any stories, but once he carried the flag or the big boys' baseball team, and they let him go in to see the baseball game, free.

Then Billy told a story.

He said that once he sat up all night, waiting for Santa Claus to come and fill his stocking. That is, he tried to sit up all night; but Santa Claus didn't come and so he fell asleep in the dark. The next day the doctor came to see him. The doctor told him he had "stockingitis."

Billy said, too, that when he woke up in the early morning and found that Santa Claus had forgotten to fill his stocking, he was going to throw himself on the floor and pound his heels on it and holler. But then he happened to remember how ugly his brother Harry looked when he did that. So Billy thought he wouldn't; and he didn't.

Mary told about the songs she sang to her doll.

She said that the song that her doll liked the best was:

The little dog went to the market town, With one foot up, and one foot down; But when he came to a muddy place, He jumped cle-e-e-a-n over!

Mary said that she always jumped her doll at the "jump" part.

Sally thought that it was a long time since she had known a story, "most as long as the night before Christmas," but she did remember a ride she once had on a little donkey. She said they had to send the old donkey on ahead to make the little donkey hurry.

Then she remembered about the cats at her grandma's house. There was a big cat for the big mice, and a little cat for the little mice.

Hilda told a story about a little blind boy she once saw.

When she said her evening prayer that night, her mother said to her: "What are you going to say, in your prayer tonight, about that poor little blind boy you saw to-day?" So Hilda asked God about him.

The very next day she took the little blind boy a big orange.

It was now Ruth's turn.

"Once I asked a little girl if that was her sister," said Ruth. "The little girl said: 't ain't a sister. It's a baby.'"

One of the other boys now had a story to tell.

"Once I saw a cyclone come around the corner of a street," he said. "A man had a tent there with a lot of dolls in it. The man wanted to sell the dolls, but the cyclone took the tent right up into the sky, with all the dolls in it."

"Another man asked him: 'What are you making such a fuss about? Weren't your dolls for sale?' and everybody laughed except the doll man."

The Old Folks were having such a good time listening to the stories that they thought the children ought to have a good time, too. So they took all their presents that had come off the tree and gave them to the little folks who had come in.

Every boy and every girl had a toy and a box of candy—Lucy, Peter, Billy, Mary, Sally, Hilda, and the others.

Then, all the young Old Folks and all the children marched around the dining room singing.

They sang "Merry, Merry Christmas," and so the fun ended.

But I guess it didn't quite end then, either. For, as the young Young

Every Boy and Every Girl Had a Toy.

Folks went out of the door and down the street, the young Old Folks could hear them laughing, long after they turned the corner.

Besides, the young Old Folks have been talking about their "Old Folks' Christmas" ever since.

FESTIVITIES OF OLD TIMES

Lord of Misrule Was Important Functionary at Yuletide Celebrations of the Long Ago.

THE Lord of Misrule was an important functionary at the Christmas festivities of those long-ago times. An account of this important personage has been preserved by the historian and antiquary, John Stow, who lived during the reign of Queen Elizabeth and during the first year of the reign of King Charles I, and was, therefore, a contemporary of Shakespeare.

"In the feast of Christmas," writes Stow, "there was in the king's house, wherever he lodged, a Lord of Misrule or Master of Merry Sports, and the like had ye in the house of every nobleman of honor or good worship, were he spiritual or temporal. The mayor of London, and either of the sheriffs, had their several Lords of Misrule."

At Cambridge university the Lord of Misrule was a master of art, elected to superintend the representation of Latin plays by the students, besides taking charge of their games and diversions during the Christmas season. A similar Master of Revels was chosen at Oxford.

In the Inns of Courts in London, where the barristers had their offices and belongings, a Lord of Misrule reigned with great splendor, "being surrounded with all the parade and ceremony of royalty, his guard of honor, and even his two chaplains who preached before him in the Temple church."

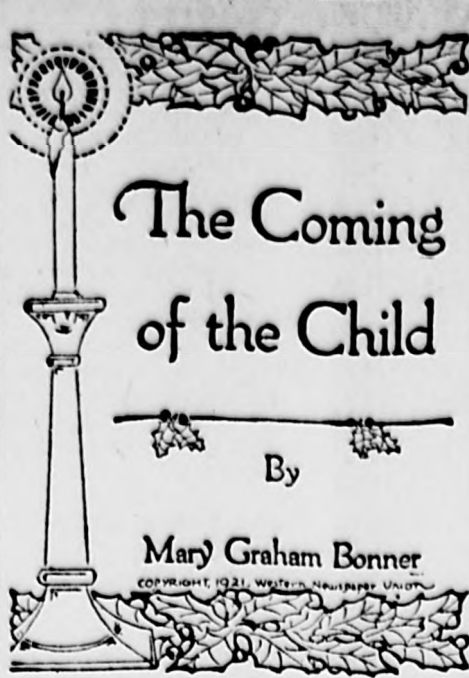

On the Twelfth day he abdicated his sovereignty, and we are informed that in the year 1635, this mock-representative of royalty expended in the exercise of his office about two thousand pounds from his own purse, and at the conclusion of his reign was knighted by King Charles I at Whitehall.

Saving the Leftovers.

Instead of always frying up any leftover potatoes, why not use them for hot tea scones? They only take a few minutes to make. To half a pound of cold potatoes add two ounces of flour and a teaspoonful each of salt and baking powder. Knead them all together, then add just enough milk—sour milk if you like—to make a stiff dough. Roll out and cut into either squares or rounds with a pastry cutter or tumbler and bake on a tin in a quick oven.

To Sweeten Musty Teapot.

To sweeten a metal or enamel teapot which has become musty, fill it with boiling water and drop in a red-hot cinder, close the lid and leave for a short time. Then rinse out with clean water.

lose you. And I couldn't lose you. Don't you see it was because I loved you so that I lied to you?" she cried. "I loved you so," she repeated.

"My darling, I'm so relieved," he said. "All I care about is that you love me."

"I know that," she told him. "But the heritage of my life has been punishing me. Even though I know you don't think now that children make any difference I know I cheated you, whom of all others I cared most for."

"Marjorie, Marjorie dear," he caressed her, "I am so relieved that I know now what has been worrying you. I was afraid you had ceased to love me."

"It was never that, it was never that," she said.

"You see, Marjorie," he went on, "if at first you had told me you were to have a child I would have been delighted—it would have seemed the conventional idea of the completion of married life which I had pictured in my mind. Afterward I realized that the most important of all was that I had you and loved you and that you loved me."

"Lately I've become very jealous of your desire for children because I thought I didn't count so much. How dreadfully we've groped in the dark even though we have been so close together."

She was happy then as she hadn't been before, happy in the love that he now gave her, the love for which she had braved a lie.

And even as he held her close she thought of it—and life—so full of perplexing moral issues. Had she not lied to him would she have fulfilled their own happy destinies? Would they have not rather gone their separate ways, yet two more unhappy mortals whose lives were but a makeshift?

Yet she had lied and in that lie she had cheated him, the one whom of all others she had cared most for she had cheated most completely. Perhaps he didn't care for children now. Perhaps he would never think of them again. Perhaps, oh perhaps, a hundred conjectures!

But clearly standing above the others were these two issues—she had lied to win him and because of that lie she had cheated and played false to the one she loved.

A lie is a vigorous parent, imbuing its offspring with its ever powerful blood of doubt and worry. Always, she felt, she would think from time to time that she had cheated him, and that in the deep recesses of her mind he would feel her love had been a very frail and weak thing.

Yet again and again reverted to her mind the knowledge that had it not been for that lie when she had spoken it Gregory and she would never have been happy.

And these doubts and worried thoughts were the heritage of a lie such as hers had been.

It seemed like a miracle. She had given up all hope. Still at times the lie she had told in the first place of all haunted her, because she felt she had cheated Gregory. He never referred to it. He seemed radiantly happy. But she had worried.

And then some time after she had told him, she knew. She was glad she had told him. She was glad that he knew her weaknesses and faults and all. Her happiness over the coming child was so much greater because she had told him.

"And it's to be an anniversary child," The Christmas carols were pealing forth when a small boy opened his eyes upon the world so new to him.

"I'm sorry it's not a girl so we can call her Marjorie," Gregory smiled.

"I'm delighted it's a boy and that we can name him Gregory," Marjorie whispered.

"Merry Christmas," Gregory said, a little later. The clock just struck twelve.

"Merry Christmas," Marjorie answered.

And the small boy gave a shrill little cry.

"That's his way of saying 'Merry Christmas,'" Marjorie added.

"I'm delighted to have it explained to me," her husband chuckled.

Freshening Rolls.

Frequently muffins, gems, cornbread, branbread etc., are a part of the evening dinner and seldom are all eaten during the evening meal, some being left over. The question comes to the conscientious housewife, "How can I serve them again in their original freshness?" It can easily be done.

Grease a piece of brown paper, using plenty of grease. Wrap in it the muffins, bread, etc. Place in hot oven for ten or fifteen minutes, unwrap, serve, and, if you did not know, you would think they were just baked.

But one evening she came to him.

"Gregory," she said, "I have so much to tell you. Let me begin from the beginning. I've been going to tell you this so many times."

"When I married you I lied to you. Now, don't interrupt me, dear. Yes, I lied about my age. I loved you. I was afraid if I told you that perhaps I was too old to have children that you wouldn't marry me—that I would

Kissing Time and Christmas Time

By GENEVIEVE ULMAR

Copyright, 1921, Western Newspaper Union.

ELL!" Mrs. Nancy Blair uttered the word in a profound gasp of bewilderment. For the first time in twenty years her husband, Alvin, had kissed her. His face took on a sudden flush of color, showing that his strangely unusual act had moved her to the depths.

"It's the Christmas spirit," flattered Nancy, but she was wrong, and stood staring after the man she had taken as a life partner because she had truly loved him.

"What in the world does that mean?" she murmured.

But Alvin was gone, as if half-shamed at his impulsiveness and hurried to his wagon outside.

"Kissing time!" he soliloquized, and, aptly, it transpired. "I couldn't help it. Poor dear! She seemed to prize that first token of romance of the dull plodding years."

Alvin hummed an old love song that took him back to the early days of courtship. He slowed up the horses as he peered through the leafless trees of a grove near the road. Then he chuckled as he caught sight of a slim, girlish figure and a companion. She was Luella Morse, the daughter of a neighbor, and beside her was his own handsome, stalwart son, Noble Blair. They stood near together, fairly face to face, and their attitude betokened acknowledged lovers.

"This will give Nancy a genuine surprise," ruminated Alvin. "Well now, look at that—more surprising still!"

This time, near the dairy barn, Alvin noticed his hired man, Alan Dayton, conversing with Marty Remick, and then he kissed her. Alvin thought of how his wife had feared that the helpful, dependable Dayton would soon leave for his home in the next county.

"He will stay and they will marry," declared Alvin, "and I will be glad to let them have the little cottage, for it solves the farm management. Oh, this golden kissing time! He bent his ear attentively as the echo of music reached him from the direction of the house.

"The old organ, cracked, broken, pretty well out of commission," he said reminiscently. "And Nancy so enjoys music. If it takes the last cent, I've got she shall have a Christmas present worth shav'ing, and the memory of the kiss and the holiday tinge to everything about the business portion of the town influenced an hour of brisk, practical shopping. Then Alvin started homeward; back in the wagon, cased up, was a fine victrola.

He found Nancy strangely excited when he went into the evening meal. More than once her hand went secretly to her dress pocket which held a precious letter she had received that day. Then she began speaking of their daughter Elsa, who had eloped two years ago with Ronald Bruce.

"Alvin, I have heard from Elsa. They are longing to pay us a visit."

"They?" repeated Alvin, a deep frown crossing his face.

"Yes. Oh, Alvin, don't be pitiless! I have heard grand news. Ronald has steadied down. Elsa is so happy. Can't they come?"

"I shall not exactly abuse them," he uttered, "but it will not be pleasant to think they ran away."

"To mend it again, for oh, Alvin! they love the old home, and you and me. They will be here tomorrow ready for Christmas and your blessing."

He came into the house just after dusk the next evening and from the parlor proceeded strains of music that told that Nancy was already enjoying the victrola. Then in the darkened hall Alvin stumbled over a baby carriage and then—

"Oh, Alvin, is that you?" cried out Nancy joyously.

He entered the parlor. It was to stand transfixed as Nancy held towards him a smiling, happy-eyed little child who put her baby arms about his neck and then kissed him.

"Your present, Alvin," spoke Nancy in a quiver of delight. "Their baby, only a year old—ours—" and Alvin pressed the little treasure to his heart and forgot all the past.

solves the farm management. Oh, this golden kissing time! He bent his ear attentively as the echo of music reached him from the direction of the house.

"The old organ, cracked, broken, pretty well out of commission," he said reminiscently. "And Nancy so enjoys music. If it takes the last cent, I've got she shall have a Christmas present worth shav'ing, and the memory of the kiss and the holiday tinge to everything about the business portion of the town influenced an hour of brisk, practical shopping. Then Alvin started homeward; back in the wagon, cased up, was a fine victrola.

He found Nancy strangely excited when he went into the evening meal. More than once her hand went secretly to her dress pocket which held a precious letter she had received that day. Then she began speaking of their daughter Elsa, who had eloped two years ago with Ronald Bruce.

"Alvin, I have heard from Elsa. They are longing to pay us a visit."

"They?" repeated Alvin, a deep frown crossing his face.

"Yes. Oh, Alvin, don't be pitiless! I have heard grand news. Ronald has steadied down. Elsa is so happy. Can't they come?"

BEFORE AND AFTER CHILDBIRTH

Mrs. Williams Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Kept Her in Health

Overpeck, O.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me both before and after my baby was born. I suffered with backache, headache, was generally run down and weak. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the newspapers and decided to try it. Now I feel fine, take care of my two boys and do my own work."

I recommend your medicine to anyone who is ailing. You may publish my testimonial if you think it will help others."—Mrs. CARRIE WILLIAMS, Overpeck, Ohio.

For more than forty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been restoring women to health who suffered from irregularities, displacements, backaches, headaches, bearing-down pains, nervousness or "the blues."

Today there is hardly a town or hamlet in the United States wherein some woman does not reside who has been made well by it. That is why Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is now recognized as the standard remedy for such ailments.

When the body begins to stiffen and movement becomes painful it is usually an indication that the kidneys are out of order. Keep these organs healthy by taking

THE DOOR SLAMS ON HAPPINESS

Poor Blood Makes Bad Health—Then Come the "Blues."

Once the vigor of red blood becomes sapped of its strength, the door to happiness is literally slammed. Weariness of body follows and it unfailingly engenders depressed thoughts. To be reserved and cheerless becomes a habit. After a time there is an almost flimsy dimness in the expression of the eyes and a pallor to the skin. Days seem dull and dark and difficult. A sense of insufferable gloom pervades the spirit.

Then it is that Gude's Pepto-Mangan is the great help. It is a red blood builder. It puts red into the blood—increases the number of corpuscles which make blood rich and red. When the blood is restored to its natural healthy state, the sensation of well-being returns. Instead of shuffling along carelessly, there is the firm and springy step, the bright lusterful eyes, the clear complexion, identified with the strength and vigor of good health. The druggist has Gude's Pepto-Mangan in both liquid and tablet form. Advertisement.

TY COBB, GREATEST OF 'EM ALL, IS STILL GREAT IN 16TH SEASON

GEORGE SISLER

BABE RUTH

TY COBB

Three Great American League Ball Players.

After years of undisputed sway as the best drawing card in baseball, Ty Cobb has been supplanted by Babe Ruth, whose sensational slugging has made him the greatest box office attraction the game ever has known, but when it comes to all-around ability there never has been and probably never will be any one to compare with the Georgian.

Sisler Has Chance.

Of the performers now active only George Sisler is conceded to have any chance to parallel the remarkable work done by Cobb. Sisler last season established two marks in addition to leading both leagues with the imposing batting average of .407—for most hits and total bases, making 257 bingles for an aggregate of 399 bases.

But Cobb has given the Brownie and all the rest of them something to shoot at with the highest batting average of .420; most runs, 147; stolen bases, 96, and earning the crown as batting champion 12 years, nine of them in succession.

And this is Ty's sixteenth season in major league baseball, all spent with the Detroit club!

Rolly Zeider's Plans.

Rolly Zeider, according to his contract with the Vernon club, is a free agent. He will return to his home in Fort Wayne, Ind., and if plans work out as expected may take the Fort club in a re-organized Central league. If the Central in its re-organization does not include Fort Wayne then Zeider will seek a berth as manager of some minor league club. In any event he is done with playing ball in the Far West.

Sporting Squibs of All Kinds

Bill Klem has umpired in ten world series and Charley Riger in seven.

Cornell won decisively from Harvard in their annual cross-country run 29 to 87.

After having been closed to boxing for thirty years, Keene, N. H., has lifted the lid.

Jack Kelly, world's champion single sculler, is playing basketball in Philadelphia.

Carl Mays of the Yankees pitched only one shut-out during the season and one in the world series.

The golf player, who fails to make a partner out of the caddy, is missing a fine art of the sport.

The Williamstown basketball team will be coached by John Shanahan of North Adams again this season.

Elmer E. Shaner, Slippery Rock, Pa., has been elected president of the American Trapshooting association.

Bill Kenworthy, so report from Portland has it, is to be part owner as well as manager of the Portland club.

Ruddy Knepper of Sioux City annexed the Princeton golf championship, beating Ed Carruth, 5 and 4, in the final round.

Walter Maranville is quoted by an Eastern sport writer as saying he expects an increase in pay from the Pittsburgh club next season.

Midnight tennis parties are popular in the Shetland islands, where in late June and early July there is perpetual daylight.

Ontario Curling association includes over 100 clubs located all over the province representing 5,000 devotees of the roaring game.

The St. Louis Cardinals believe they may have another outfielder as good as Clarence Mueller has developed into a home boy named Earl Senzotta.

The efforts of the Washington club to get Shortstop Jimmy Caveney from San Francisco are said to have been abandoned. Charley Graham could not see the players offered.

Lieut. Elmer Oliphant, famous West Point football player of a few years ago, will lead the New York basketball team this season. Oliphant is considered one of the most capable forwards in the East.

HANDS DESERVE PROPER CARE

Three Top-Notchers Recently Shelved With Busted Mitts—Boxer's Best Investment.

Tommy Gibbons' suggestion that fighters should take better care of their hands should be put into every boxer's bible.

Three top-notch ring men shelved with busted hands.

Benny Leonard cracked his thumb on the eve of a fight with Lew Tendler.

Georges Carpentier forced to postpone his match with Gibbons. His injury cost him probably $100,000.

Bob Martin broke his knuckle knocking out Frank Moran. Martin doesn't draw the big purses, but he fights often and a payoff is money out for him.

Good hands are a fighter's best investment.

MASK IS GAINING IN FAVOR

Johnstone's Recently Invented Device Gives Better Protection to One's Face.

Jimmy Johnstone's recently invented umpire's mask has gained favor with catchers and umpires of the major leagues and many were being used before the close of the season. The new mask does away with the crossed wires and instead has several strips of light but strong metal across the face. The mask is lighter in weight than the old style protector and gives better vision. Johnstone formerly umpired in the National League.

CLAIM BOXING TOO BRUISING

Spaniards Prefer Open-Hand Smacking and Do Not Relish Fight With Closed Fists.

Spaniards do not understand boxing and do not want to, according to Georges Carpentier. On his recent visit there only a few hundred turned out for his exhibition. He was told that as long as boxing continues to be a fight with closed fists it will not catch on there; but arrange a match with open hands and a crowd will gather to witness it. The Spaniard claim boxing is too bruising—they prefer the open-hand smacking.

Actors From France.

Americans have to doff the derby to Georges Carpentier and Suzanne Lengien.

They out-act us. They were born for the stage, but gave the footlight game the double cross. When Carpentier faced that 90,000-odd gathering at Jersey city, he smiled, he pantomimed, he acted with the finish of a Barrymore.

When Suzanne skipped onto our tennis courts for the first time at Forest Hills, she tossed herself into everybody's heart.

Georges lasted four rounds. Suzanne—well, she had a break of tough luck.

SCHMIDT OF PIRATES STAR OF MANY YEARS

Backstop Receives Few Plaudits, but Plays Great Game.

Pittsburgher Is Remarkable Thrower and Is One of the Fastest Catchers in National League—Surpasses Killifer.

Publicity is given to many star ball players in the National league, but there are also many great athletes who are overlooked. One of them is Catcher Schmidt, who is with the Pittsburgh club. He has been a star in the National league for several seasons, but little has been heard about his true ability. Ball players of inferior skill have received more attention than he has because they are given to sensationalism on the field, while Schmidt contents himself with playing steadily and the easiest way he knows how, writes Oscar Reelchow in the Chicago News.

Schmidt is much like Charley Deal of the Cubs. These two men are brilliant ball players and rank with the best. Yet they are not boosted to the skies like Eddie Roush, Rogers Hornsby, Heinie Groh, Walter Maranville, Max Carey, Charlie Hollocher, Bill Killifer and Grover Alexander. All these players deserve to be praised because they possess merit of an unusual degree. It is doubtful, though, if any one is more proficient at his position than Schmidt and Deal are at theirs.

Deal goes along day in and day out playing the same steady brand of baseball. He does not do acrobatic feats in making stops of hot grounders as does Heinie Groh, but gets in front of the mad hoppers with ease and grace because he is an excellent judge of a batted ball and plays accordingly.

Schmidt is not only possessed of real baseball intelligence, but he is a remarkable thrower, plays the game with a great deal of intuition, has a wonderful arm and is the fastest backstop in the league. Considering his throwing ability, speed and hitting, it would not be unfair to say that he is now the top-notch catcher of them all. He surpasses Killifer in all those departments, which is something that demands consideration. The latter, because of his experience, his smartness behind the plate and in handling pitchers, is still regarded as the leader.

AUSTRALIAN BOXER IS STAR

Archie Bradley of Gympie, Queensland, Lightweight of Class, Has Been Unearthed.

A new lightweight sensation has been unearthed in Australia, according to the latest dope from the land of the kangaroo. Archie Bradley, of Gympie, Queensland, is the name of the new star and he stands 5 feet 9½ inches in height, with a reach of 72 inches. He must have some class, as he recently defeated Sid Godfrey, the new Australian lightweight champion, in a 20-round battle at Brisbane. This was before Godfrey met and defeated Lew Edwards and Harry Stone for the title. Bradley, according to reports, is a clever boxer and had it all over Godfrey from start to finish. He is just about the same height as Pinky Mitchell, of Milwaukee, and with a reach just as long. He scales just 25 pounds, so there is a chance of the Queensland boy taking the title from Mr. Godfrey if they meet in the near future.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper. Advertisement.

The Greater Danger.

"Landslides and the like are not the only things to be feared in the Alps," says an American traveler.

"An American bride and groom were spending their honeymoon in Switzerland. One day, as they were climbing over the difficult passes, admiring the scenery, they suddenly came upon a bear.

"Oh, Henry, look!" exclaimed the terrified wife. "Let's run for the valley, quick!"

But the young man stood still, undecided. "Impossible!" he said.

"Impossible?" "Yes, my dear. Why, we'd run right into the clutches of the hotel keepers!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

MOTHER! CLEAN

CHILD'S BOWELS WITH CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP

Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup." If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, cross, feverish, full of cold, or has colic, give a teaspoonful to cleanse the liver and bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation poison, sour bile and waste out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

Slow to Learn.

"How long have the Gawkers been rich?" "Oh, long enough to get used to a butler."

"That's ambiguous."

"How so?" "I know an old gentleman who made his pile in the first Yukon gold rush, and he still gets fussed when his butler catches him sitting around the house in his sock-feet."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Conclusive.

"Algernon, I cannot be engaged to you any longer." "Why not? Some whim, I suppose." "Because yesterday I married Mr. Flubdub." "In that case, I guess I'll have to release you, kid."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Real Rest Depends Largely Upon the Depth of Your Sleep

A warning to "light" or "poor" sleepers

The deeper and sounder you sleep the better you feel. Five hours sound refreshing sleep does you more actual good than ten hours restless, disturbed sleep.

This is because the final conversion of food into vital tissue and nerve cells goes on more rapidly when the physical and mental forces are at rest.

You can't get sound, refreshing sleep if your nerves are agitated with tea or coffee. Both these drinks contain caffeine, which is sometimes very irritating to the brain and nervous system.

If you want to know the joy, vigor and stamina that comes to the person who gets sound, healthful sleep, why not stop taking tea or coffee for a while, and drink delicious, invigorating Postum instead.

Thousands of people everywhere have found that this was the only thing they needed in order to bring about these very happy results.

Order Postum from your grocer today. Drink this delightful cereal beverage of coffee-like flavor, for a week. Perhaps, like thousands of others, you'll never be willing to go back to tea or coffee.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tin) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

NEW CHANCELLOR

The annual meeting of the Delphi lodge, K. of P., resulted in a lively and closely contested election for some of the offices. Victor H. Hall will be the new chancellor commander. He will step into this position after years of faithful and active work in the offices leading up to chancellor commander. With him and the list of officers below the lodge has chosen wisely and the coming year for Delphi should be a busy one. The new officers are:

Vice chancellor, Grant E. Chase.
Prelate, Lawrence E. Pray.
Master of Work, Elmer L. Goodspeed.

Keeper of record and seal, Russell E. Desheimer.

Master of finance, Franklin P. Whitten.

Master of exchequer, Francis M. Brown.

Master at arms, Lester W. Tisdale.

Inner Guard, Christopher Wade.

Outer guard, Sylvanus Richmond.

Trustee for three years, George E. Ludden.

Trustee for two years, William E. Pray.

On Tuesday evening the members of the lodge had an opportunity to listen to an able and instructive address by Past Grand Chancellor Harlan P. Knight, who gave some of the ideals for which the Pythian Knights should aspire. He felt that greater friendship should be shown in daily life.

Instead of the mad rush for mercenary purposes more consideration should be given to those around us.

He pointed out the fact that much havoc can be wrought by a sarcastic tongue, while in contrast much help can be rendered by a few words of friendly advice. He felt that capital and labor should be closer friends, instead of pulling against one another and that the Conference at Washington was an expression of the love of this country in an endeavor to eliminate forever armed conflicts. His opinion was that more had been accomplished in Washington in the brief space of 32 minutes than has been accomplished in centuries in the past.

In business life also, if love were shown in dealings and with associates better results would be obtained. Mr. Knight stated that his experience in his own profession had borne out this fact.

The lecture was most instructive and inspiring and had much material and many ideas for those present to carry away with them for use in their daily life.

The Pythian Sisters served oyster stew and a social evening was enjoyed.

W. T. A. ENTERTAINMENT

The music lovers of Weymouth who delight in hearing a concert of songs and selections by the best artists in their respective positions were rewarded Tuesday evening when they attended the entertainment under the auspices of the Weymouth Teachers Association given by Myrtle Jordan Trio, assisted by Joseph Ecker, baritone.

Those who could not attend missed a rare treat for it was a most excellent and enjoyable concert.

Particular mention can be made of the violin solos, Hejre Kati by Hubay, yet all the numbers were excellent and beautifully rendered. The Myrtle Jordan Trio includes Edith Roubound, violin; Mildred Ridley, cello; Myrtle Jordan, piano; assisted by Mr. Joseph Ecker, baritone.

CARRY ON CLUB

On Wednesday, Nov. 30, the Welfare committee of the American Legion Auxiliary visited the West Roxbury hospital and this time the dainties which they distributed among the boys were provided by the pupils of the grades occupying the upper floor of the James Humphrey school. The ladies who made the visit on this occasion were Mrs. Annie J. Libby, Mrs. John Riley, Mrs. Joseph Delory and Mrs. Bettincourt and they had plenty of fruit, candies, cakes and cigarettes as usual to supply every boy there.

We have been asked who were on the Welfare committee, so far the benefit of those who would like to help "Carry On" the work they may do so through the following ladies in the various parts of the town, and no matter how large or small the donation may be it will be duly appreciated by both the committee and the boys who receive it. Join the Carry On Club and make their Christmas a pleasant one.

To Make Drive For Anniversary Fund

The Weymouth anniversary committee of 25 met at Clapp Memorial building Saturday evening, Dec. 11. The committee on a play or pageant reported in favor of several short plays with a musical program. The general committee approved of the report and gave them power to go ahead on the line recommended. Mr. Reed, the chairman of the full committee reported on the question of the park and on a drive to raise money for the celebration and that he had secured Mr. Charles Chubbuck of East Weymouth to take charge of the drive.

The committee approved of Mr. Reed's plan in reference to the park and monument and gave him power to go ahead in the way he had reported. The committee of five on a play will meet this evening (Friday) with Mrs. Kate Pierce Thayer at 8 o'clock.

RADCLIFFE ENDOWMENT FUND

On Saturday, Dec. 10, at 3 P. M. Mrs. Robert S. Hoffman of 621 Broad street, East Weymouth, opened the hospitality of her beautiful and artistic home for a Radcliffe Endowment Fund Benefit. The following speaking, musicale and reading program under the direction of May Nash Valin, chairman of District 2, was presented.

Mrs. Lars Anderson demonstrated ably her full understanding of the social, economic and political conditions of present-day Japan by a keen and clear presentation of the subject and illuminated her discourse by frequent flashes of humor. Also reminiscences of her residence in Japan, while Mr. Lars Anderson was ambassador there, gave the assembly an accurate insight into the manners and customs of the Japanese people.

NARROW ESCAPE

Four young people had a narrow escape from drowning on Whitman's pond Tuesday evening. Two small daughters of Mrs. Monk and two sons of Mrs. Clough were sliding on the lake and on their return from the island, the smallest girl slipped and cracked the ice and fell in, pulling her sister in with her. Robert Clough heard the splash, rushed, and tried to pull the girls out, but in doing so also fell in. Charles Clough attempted to pull his brother out, but the ice gave away and he struck his head on the ice. Stephen Lucas, fishing on the opposite side of the lake, heard the cries of the children and hurried to their assistance. It was a hard struggle before he landed them all and he was wet thru. The children were completely exhausted and it was a narrow escape for them. The parents are loud in their praise of Lucas and his timely rescue of the children.

Oil Company Claim Oil Nuisance Abated

On Tuesday the State Health Council suspended until Jan. 10 next an order directing that the Massachusetts Oil Refining Co. of Braintree cease operations in parts of its plant objectionable to complainants. Some months ago the order in question was suspended until Dec. 13, when it was thought that the changes recommended to eliminate noxious smells and other annoyances would be put into effect. The company asked that the order be revoked in view of the fact that the changes have been made. The health council desires to make a test of the new arrangements and for this reason decided to lay the matter over until the new date it specified.

DAUGHTERS OF VETERANS

Plans have been completed for the annual Christmas party given to the G. A. R. veterans on Tuesday evening Dec. 20. Supper will be served at 5.30, to be followed by a short entertainment and the distribution of gifts to the comrades. Each sister is requested to donate one gift for the tree and unless otherwise solicited to donate pastry for the supper.

Installation of new officers will take place on Thursday evening, Jan. 5, and a large attendance is desired. The officers as elected are H. Estelle Whelan, president; Nellie G. Loud, senior vice-president; Amelia I. Severance, junior vice-president; Helen Lewis, chaplain; Louise Maynard, treasurer; Harriet Fern, patriotic instructor.

Sister Bell has the sincere sympathy of the Tent in the loss of her husband.

Sister Cowing is being congratulated on the birth of a son.

Don't forget the Christmas party. Come and help give the veterans a good time.

The chairman of the Daughters table at the W. R. C. fair feels that she is in luck. After boarding a Braintree car for home Dec. 7 she discovered the loss of her hand bag, but it was found by William Kezer, who promptly returned it. His kindness was appreciated.

CALL EXTENDED

A meeting of the Old South Union Congregational Church Society was held in the vestry of the church on Thursday evening and John F. Robinson was chosen moderator. The Supply committee submitted their report through the chairman, Roy A. Moorar and it was unanimously voted to extend a call to the Rev. Francis A. Poole, Ph.D., of St. Johns street and Rathskeller scenes.

A savings account encourages thrift.

Teach your children to save.

One dollar deposited every week for 15 years will provide a college education for your son or daughter.

You will not miss it in living expenses.

Large amounts are not necessary for deposit.

It is the spirit that counts.

Provide for the future of your children by Christmas gifts of savings bank books.

MEANS MUCH TO WEYMOUTH

The Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston has added to its real estate holdings in Weymouth by the purchase of additional land on the harbor side of Bridge street, adjoining the Weymouth Fore river and directly across the street from the property which it purchased about a year ago for a new power station. The new parcels contain about six acres of solid land and 10 acres of flats, having a frontage on the Weymouth Fore river of about 1800 feet. The company now owns all the land necessary for the complete equipment of the 300,000 kilowatt turbine station. Plans will be immediately prepared for the first section of such a station, although actual construction work will not be started for a year or two.

BUSINESS REVIVAL

Many signs point to a business revival. It is true that the negotiations in Washington looking to a reduction of the tax burden by a limitation of armament have not been reflected by any upward movement in the stock market; but on the other hand, the metal market which would seem to be more directly affected by a reduction in war preparations, has not had the expected slump. In fact, copper, which enters largely into the construction of projectiles and other war devices, has recently advanced. The feeling seems to be that with armament burdens reduced, the normal activities of peace will be greatly increased.

SHIPPING INDUSTRY

As the Herald says:
"The railroads can, if they will, help the government and people of the United States to confirm the sudden, great renaissance of our ocean shipping industry. Shipbuilding, navigation by the sea, are things which the West cannot take away from us of New England. The ocean and its trade are ours by right of location and right of heritage. Ship, owned in Massachusetts, officered and manned in Massachusetts, making their disbursements here and their overhauling and repairs here, mean very much more for the well being of this community than ships built, owned, officered and manned abroad. On the railroads, created as most of them were by the generous aid of the cities, towns and commonwealths which they are serving, rests a particularly strong obligation to do their fair share in the development of American ship lines, which are after all essentially the extension of American transportation services overseas. Preferential contracts should be made with American Merchant Marine, rather than foreign shipping lines."

CHRISTMAS MESSAGE

Office of the Postmaster General

To the Boys and Girls of The United States:

Christmas is almost here.

Your great Post Office Department has a big job ahead and needs your help.

Think what it means to be Santa Claus to our 100,000,000 people and to deliver Christmas parcels to every family in this great country within the short space of a few days and without disappointment.

It can be done and we're going to do it if we may have your help. I want to enlist the active assistance of every boy and girl in the schools of our country in getting parcels mailed THIS WEEK to relieve the rush that comes directly before Christmas.

Will you go home today and take this message to your parents and friends:

"Our postmaster has asked us to mail our Christmas parcels THIS WEEK, for, unless we do, Uncle Sam's load may be so heavy the last few days before Christmas that he won't be able to deliver all the presents by Christmas Eve."

The parcels must be well wrapped and tied and addressed plainly in order that they may arrive in good condition with their Christmasy appearance unspoiled. You can put on your packages: "Do not open until Christmas."

And, there must be a number on your house and a mail receptacle, too, for if there isn't, Santa Claus' messenger, your letter carrier, may not be able to find the house where the present belongs.

There are some other things, too, in which you can all assist in improving the mail service and in saving our great Government millions of dollars a year that is now wasted because of our carelessness—yours and mine.

Every day that you drop a letter in the mail box, 40,000,000 other letters are already pushing and jamming through the postal machinery. One letter a day for each family of five persons in the United States is given to Uncle Sam to deliver.

When you send a parcel to the post-office for mailing any day there are about 8,000,000 other parcels ahead of yours passing through the postal hopper. This is in ordinary days; at Christmas time it is multiplied many times.

One family in about every ten puts a badly addressed letter in the mail every day. This mixes up over 2,000,000 half-addressed letters with the 20,000,000 fully addressed letters. That means that the fully addressed letters must wait on the slow moving, poorly addressed letters just like the larger boys and girls are delayed by a bunch of "bad kids" tagging along.

You boys and girls can help the Postal Service and save your father some money, because he has to help pay the cost of searching addresses on letters and parcels sent out by this one careless and thoughtless family in every ten.

First find out if your family is the careless one, then bear in mind that your letters must be handled by skilled mail distributors standing in postoffices and on swaying postal cars of a mile-a-minute mail trains, often under poor light.

The address on every letter, card, or package must be correct, complete and legible, including the house number and name of street, and the "From" address should be in the upper left-hand corner so that the mail will be returned to you in case it is not delivered. Do not abbreviate names of States, because so many look alike when abbreviated.

Put the proper amount of postage on your letters and wrap the parcels carefully. Avoid fancy writing, which causes postoffice clerks and letter carriers to stop and study, and thus lose time. Make the address plain and easily read and always use pen and ink or typewriter and light colored envelopes, so as to save the eyes of the postoffice clerks. Do not use envelopes of unusual size. The little ones that are so frequently used for cards and notes at Christmas and other holiday times cause an untold amount of trouble and labor, as they will not fit our canceling machines and must therefore be canceled by hand. Because of their size and tendency to slip out of a package, these small envelopes are more likely to be overlooked or lost.

Mail your letters and packages early in the day, because this avoids overloading and delaying mail at the end of the day.

Your local postmaster and your teachers will tell you more about the Postal Service.

Do these things and you will win the grateful appreciation of the people in your postoffice and especially of

WILL H. HAYS

P. S.—Don't forget to mail Christmas packages THIS WEEK.

The Junior C. E. of the First church will be omitted Sunday afternoon, Dec. 18, on account of the every-member canvass and on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 25, on account of the Christmas cantata.

The Christmas club will meet with Mrs. P. T. Pearson next Tuesday evening.

Miss Florence B. Nash represented Clark C. E. Union at the annual banquet of East Norfolk Christian Endeavor Union held at Wollaston Congregational church Tuesday evening.

Sunday afternoon the First church in Weymouth will hold their every-member canvass. The purpose is to promote good fellowship and closer co-operation to give information about plans for the year and to receive subscriptions for meeting both the local and world-wide responsibilities of the church.

Rev. John J. Walker, assistant to Dr. Emerick of the Home Missionary Society, will occupy the pulpit of the First church on Sunday morning. All persons who have been requested to work on the Every Member Canvass in connection with the First church are urged to be present, for in addition to the sermon Mr. Walker will give a charge to the canvassers. The community is cordially invited.

The annual fair and entertainment given by the Ladies Benevolent Society connected with the First church was held last Friday. The doors opened at 3 o'clock and the various tables were presided over by the following:

Candy, Mrs. Rufus Bates, Mrs. F. C. McDowell and Mrs. P. T. Pearson.

Next came a comedy in charge of the Misses Mabel Jones, Ruth Sladen and Doris White. The third feature of the program was unique and clever, being extravaganzas entitled "The Vegetable Brownies on a Frolic" in charge of Miss Agnes Hyde. This sketch included singing and speaking, and as it was filled with wit and humor, it caused much fun and enjoyment. Miss Agnes Hyde enacted the part of the cabbage head; Onion, Mrs. Alice Northup; Carrot, Mrs. Eva Ellis; Cucumber, Marguerite Beltring; Beet, Hannah Spense; Turnip, F. C. McDowell; Watermelon, Charles Wedlin; Potato, Elizabeth Hyde; Pumpkin, Donald McDowell; Man in the Moon, William F. Clark.

After the entertainment a sale of ice cream was carried on and the various tables were well patronized. The whole occasion was a big success, the sum of $202 being realized.

Boston Founded By Weymouth Settlers

EARLY HISTORY OF WEYMOUTH
By Rev. William Hyde

No. 15—The Wessagusset Plantation
Prince supposes that the name Weymouth was given to the settlement from the small company that came from Weymouth, England, in 1624.

During the last Presidential campaign, a life of President Harding was published under the title: "Warren G. Harding, the Man." The author was Joe Mitchell Chapin, and in this book he states that "the ancestors of the Presidential candidate once lived in Weymouth, that in 1624 Stephen and Richard Harding, his ancestors, arrived at Weymouth, Massachusetts, and later joined the Plymouth Colony."

Various other statements about the President's ancestors have appeared in the newspapers, but as the Weymouth origin has appeared in book form it seems to be most important.

When Captain Robert Gorges decided to go back to England, he had a settlement with Thomas Weston, and this was very much to the advantage of Weston. His vessel, "The Swan", was restored to him and compensation was made to him for his losses and inconvenience by being placed under arrest.

The settlement at Wessagusset having lost these two men who had so much to do with it, now went on its way and no doubt if we only had a complete history of its early days it would be most interesting.

Whatever may be said of the town of Weymouth, it has the honor of being the first permanent settlement on the shores of Boston Bay. It had great possibilities, but its settlers failed to select the key-point of the eastern coast of Massachusetts. That was Ferdinando Gorges' first aim. The head-waters of Boston Bay was his aim and had not the storm forced the Gorges Company into Wessagusset, Boston would have been founded in 1623 by the Gorges Company.

The people in Wessagusset soon came to realize that the site they had selected was not the best suited for a city or for trade with the outer world. The situation of Wessagusset was not very conducive to trade. The furs, the only product of the country, had to be brought from the interior on rivers and the canoe was about the only means of conveyance. There was the Monaquot river, it is true, at the mouth of which was the settlement, but it was too small for navigation and for large vessels, there was no proper harbor and the river could not be followed very far by anything but canoes.

Boston Bay was different; here were good harbors and into that bay flowed the Mystic, the Charles and the Neponset rivers, and just as soon as a settlement was made there it would outstrip all other settlements.

The people at Wessagusset learning the need of better communication with the outer world established a small station, or place of meeting at Hull, and here they were able to carry on some trade with vessels that came into Boston Bay, and the result of this was that some of the Weymouth settlers began to make visits to various points in Boston Bay.

In 1625 Rev. William Morrell went back to England. He saw no opportunity for carrying out the plans set forth in the Government Commission which he had received and he never even produced that commission, but when he was leaving for England and took the ship at Plymouth, he spoke of the commission to some of the authorities, although during the time he was in Wessagusset we are told he spent his time in a quiet way, attending to his own duties and causing trouble to no one.

This shows the good disposition of Morrell for he might have caused much trouble had he been a mischief-maker.

After Morrell had gone, others began to move also. Rev. William Blackstone went over to the North Shore, and settled on the western slope of the peninsula of Shawmut, now Beacon Hill, opposite the mouth of the Charles, where he became the first settler of Boston, and was called the "Lone man of Shawmut."

Thomas Walford, who came with Robert Gorges, was an English blacksmith, and after Blackstone had gone, he went over to Mashawam, now Charlestown, and there he built for himself and wife an English thatched house with palisades near the mouth of the Mystic river.

Among the names of the Gorges settlers we find those of Maverick, Thompson, Graves, Jeffreys, Bursley, Norton, Glover, Woolsey, Richard Cornish and Clement Briggs. Maverick who had gone back to England came out again with his wife Annas in 1624.

and built a house at Winnisimmet, now Chelsea, which he fortified with a Pillizado, and Flankers and guns which was a terror to the Indians and later become a trading station. The others remained in Wessagusset.

In the minutes of the Council for New England there is a petition from Edward Cox and others to join with Captain Robert Gorges in his plantation in New England. This minute is No. 40, and is dated March 18, 1623. The names I have given above were men of consequence, as for instance Norton was Captain Walter Norton, a member of the Council for New England.

BIG DAMAGE BY STORM

"Over 100,000,000 feet of various kinds of wire, or nearly enough to girdle the earth, has been temporarily laid on the ground or attached to poles and pole stumps during the past ten days, in order to restore our service at the earliest possible moment," said General Manager Driver of the Telephone Company the first of the week.

"To show the magnitude of our problem, two orders for copper wire aggregated 400,000 pounds each. We have on hand or on the way 13 carloads of crossarms, six carloads of pole line hardware, and over 50 carloads of poles. Other material aggregates thousands of items.

"A conservative estimate shows that the storm will cost us upwards of $1,500,000. Fortunately we have a reserve large enough to take care of this expense.

"We have over 3000 men at work clearing up the wreckage, setting new poles, running lines and connecting telephones. They are doing a big job in an orderly and systematic way.

"In Greater Boston we have connected about 5000 telephones and we hope to restore service to about 10,000 others during this week. In other cities and towns local service is being restored as rapidly as possible.

"Every available man who can be spared has been rushed from Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont and a number of toll line crews and trucks have come from New York, Pennsylvania and other states to help in Massachusetts. We have been able to relieve the employment situation to the extent of taking on temporarily over 1000 unskilled men to do salvage work, dig post holes and assist in stringing wires.

"Our men are out to break all previous records in an emergency and they are going to do it."

EX-SERVICE MEN.

Mr. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, in his disparaging letter on the Adjusted Compensation Bill, implies that its enactment would bankrupt the Nation. The President implies that it is impossible for the Government at this time to consider this proposition. Within thirty days, the specific request of the President and the Secretary of the Treasury, Congress authorized the War Finance Corporation to raise $1,000,000,000 to aid the farmers. At the same time, Congress authorizes the War Finance Corporation to advance to the railroads $500,000,000. This administration tells the soldiers it cannot pay this valid obligation, and immediately thereafter provides relief and aid to other groups who made their profits during the war, and this cannot be denied.

Theoretically, if a government cannot meet its obligations, it is insolvent. No person acquainted with conditions would dare to say that this Government is insolvent. The Federal Government has taken almost 5,000,000 people from ordinary pursuits of life; has required of them services which disrupted their lives, which broke up homes which caused serious financial losses and curtailment of ordinary gainful and happy pursuits of men. It was essential that its forces should be mobilized to defeat those powers who attempted to wreck our civilization. Therefore this Government owes to these 5,000,000 people whom it has used as it willed, some adjustment of the economical disadvantages they suffered as a result of their service. Both executive and legislative branches have by their words and actions heretofore recognized the validity of this claim for economic adjustment.

BRAINTREE POINT

The Ladies Club has suspended operations for the holidays, but expect to resume operations the first of the year.

The youngsters welcomed the snow on Tuesday and were out in full force with their sleds. They have an ideal place to roam, with no dangerous traffic.

Miss Marion Walsh entertained a party of friends at her home on Edge Hill road Tuesday evening. The occasion was a miscellaneous show in honor of Miss Mary McGillicuddy and Bartley Downing of Hingham, who are to be married Dec. 28. Guests were present from Hingham, Quincy and Quincy Point. Games and refreshments were abundantly provided and Francis Walsh entertained with cornet solos.

Braintree Welfare kept its place in the lead in Division A by defeating Farnum Shoe of Brockton 2 to 1 at Watson park Saturday. With the stiff wind at their back Braintree made things decidedly interesting for Farnum Shoe in the first period, keeping the ball in Farnum's territory nearly all the time.

The Bees got routed by the Vikings 2 to 1 at Franklin Field. This is the first victory of the season for the Vikings. As we scribe was busily following the fortunes of the first-string men we have meaning to offer in the way of a summary.

The Swedish-Americans visited Sunday and the Bees took them into camp 4 to 3 in a fast game. The Scandinavians were picked to win by anywhere from three to five to nothing. They deserved to win, but poor management lost. Somebody took Aronson out of goal and put him in the forward line. Before he could be replaced, Braintree got two goals. Aronson is one of the best goal keepers playing the game and with him out, the Swedes are badly handicapped. The Bees are working together well and will bear watching. Because of the holiday rush the Gazette columns are crowded and it is necessary to omit this week a more extended report of the games, also some interesting soccer squibs. More space next week.

BRIDGE HEARING

Not much was accomplished on Monday at the opening hearing on apportioning the cost of the Monatikot bridge on Quincy avenue, Braintree, which was advertised to be held at the Court House, Quincy, as Commissioner Mayberry was unable to be present.

Although Norfolk, Plymouth, Suffolk and Middlesex counties and many of the cities and towns in these counties were represented, it was decided not to proceed until all the three commissioners could be present.

The views of Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth are well set forth by City Solicitor McAnarney of Quincy, who contends that practically all of south eastern Massachusetts as well as Boston and the surrounding cities are directly benefited by the erection of the bridge and should be counted in when the cost is divided. He feels that too great a burden will be placed on Quincy unless these other municipalities are taken into the calculations.

Solicitor McAnarney's opinion is assented to by the representatives of Norfolk county and the other Norfolk county towns. Of course it is to be expected that the other places will oppose being considered when it comes to paying the bills and the Commissioners will decide the range of assessment for the bridge costs.

Every automobile which goes to Cape towns during the summer season and their number runs up into the thousands, pass through some Plymouth county towns and a very large percent of these automobiles use the Monatikot river bridge. Of course many autos take the shore route and go via Hingham, the Scituate and Marshfield, but the most popular route and perhaps the most used, is through Quincy, over the new bridge, through Weymouth to the new cement road through Hanover to the Cape. Those who take the other route branch off in Weymouth and go through Bridgewater, but going by either the Hanover or Bridgewater route, the Monatikot bridge is used.

A count has been kept of automobiles using the bridge and it is known where they hail from.

HENRICH NOT GUILTY

The Norfolk county grand jury reported last Friday, but found "no bill" against William B. Henrich of Weymouth, who was held by the District court at Quincy on the charge of manslaughter, it being alleged that he shot and killed Chester Bowles on the night of Aug. 21, while in the act of robbing his oil station on Washington street, Weymouth. Henrich was discharged.

WORLD WAR VETERAN

George E. Ewell, 33 years, a World War veteran and a member of Weymouth post, American Legion, died in the Quincy hospital last Friday. Ewell enlisted in June, 1917, as a musician drummer and went to Camp Devens for training. He soon went overseas and was assigned to the Headquarters band at Paris. He remained overseas until Sept. 1919. He was snare drummer in the Weymouth post band of this town. A military funeral was held at 6 Drew avenue, Sunday afternoon. The service was conducted by Rev. K. A. Handanlian of the Congregational church, Weymouth. Weymouth post, A. L., Bryan Lebnard, commander, attended and under escort of the post and post band the body was taken to the Fairmount cemetery, where the committal service was read by Rev. Handanlian. Three volleys were fired over the grave by the color guard and taps were sounded by the bugler. The pallbearers were Frederick Farrar, John Sullivan, Sumner Peers, Edward Phalen, John House and Ralph Cipullo. The firing squad and bugler were from Army headquarters in Boston.

hands;
Sing hymns that were sung by the stars of the morn,
Sing songs of the angels when Jesus was born!

With glad jubilation
Bring hope to the nations!

The dark night is ending and dawn has begun;

Rise, hope of the ages, arise like the sun,

All speech flow to music, all hearts beat
as one!

Sing the bridal of nations, with chorals of love,

Sing out the war culture and sing in the dove,

Till the hearts of the people keep time in accord

And the voice of the world is the voice of the Lord!

Clasp hands of the nations
In strong gratulations;

The dark night is ending and dawn has
begun;

Rise, hope of the ages, arise like the
sun,

All speech flow to music, all hearts beat
as one!

Blow, bugles of battle, the marches of peace;

East, west, north and south, let the long quarrel cease.

Sing of glory to God, peace to men of good will!

Hark, joining in chorus,
The heavens bend o'er us!

The dark night is ending and dawn has
begun;

Rise, hope of the ages, arise like the
sun,

All speech flow to music, all hearts beat
as one!

And the Postman Passed the House

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

IT WAS Christmas morning.
Old Hiram Palmer sat by the window waiting for the postman. Christmas eve had been rather bleak. He had seen, from the window, groups of people passing from time to time, hurrying, smiling, such gay, happy people.

Hiram was old, too old. He had outlived his friends, his immediate family, his day had long since gone
by. He had given generously to hospitals and charitable institutions and a number of personal presents. He always, for example, sent some of the large baskets of fruit the town's leading shop arranged so attractively, to those he knew would never buy themselves such delicacies.

The last Christmas he had only received two presents. One from his nephew out West and another from a grandchild.

He was waiting for these now.

The postman came along the street.

Eagerly old Hiram waited. And then he got up and went to the door.

But the postman had passed by.

"Are you sure you have nothing for me?"

he called out.

"Look more carefully. I was expecting some packages."

The postman looked again.

"I'm sorry, Mr. Palmer, but there is nothing here."

Slowly Hiram went back into the lonely little house. He had lived too long.

For his nephew had said:

"I guess I won't bother about Uncle Hiram this year.

It's a nuisance to shop, and anyway what does he care about a necktie?

He can buy all he wants!"

And his grandchild had said:

"I've got to cut down my Christmas list. It's so long."

And she had run her pencil through her grandfather's name.

For she had said:

"Christmas is for young people. He's too old to care about presents and a handkerchief or two which I might send him!"

longer than your ironing board, so that it laps over about two inches under the board. Then crochet an edge of six chain and fasten, and so on until you have edged the entire piece. Lay the cloth on the board, turn over and lace it with a stout cord or tape, the same as you would lace a shoe—using,
however, only about every fourth loop.
The cover can be easily removed and washed.

in the Kitchen

IN THE kitchen of an apartment building in the city was seated a large, husky man with a little girl of about seven, on one knee, and a boy of perhaps six, on the other knee.

"But grandpa, I don't see why Santa Claus doesn't come," said little Doris.

"We have waited so long out here in this old kitchen."

At this, Master Fred laboriously climbed down from his grandpa's knee and ran over to the kitchen door, and then to the window.

"Isn't it disgusting, grandpa? I can't even see him coming."

"Well, you know," said grandpa, as

Fred climbed back upon his knee,

"Santa Claus was a little boy once himself, and he knows how impatient little boys are. He has a hard time, though. Every year he has more boys and girls to bring toys to than he had the year before."

"But grandpa," said Doris, "I never knew Santa Claus was ever a little boy."

"Oh, yes," asserted grandpa firmly.

"Once upon a time a group of fairies were playing around in an open place under some trees and they found a little baby asleep.

They took the baby to their queen. The fairies loved the little baby, so they begged the queen to let them keep him and take care of him. The queen consented and the little boy 'Claus' thrived under the care of the fairies."

"S-h-h! Grandpa, I think he's coming, interrupted

Fred as he again climbed down and ran to the window. "Nothing doing," he said with much disgust and gave a signal with his arm like the flagman does when telling a train to go.

Grandpa obeyed the signal and continued: "He lived under the care of the fairies until he grew to be quite a man. Then the queen ordered her fairies to build 'Claus' a hut, as he was a mortal and could not live

the way the fairies did, any longer.

'Claus' had lots of time when he got into his new home and he occupied it by carving things. The fairies had taught him how to whittle and he began making all sorts of toys."

"There was a village some distance from his hut and every time he heard of a little boy or girl down in the village who was sick, he took them one of his little toys. The children grew to like him ever so much. After a while he became acquainted with so many children that he found it hard to get around and see them all so often. He decided that he would work all year making toys, and then go around and find out which of the children had been good, and leave them presents.

"When the fairies heard of this plan they were delighted and gave

Santa Claus four reindeer and a sled to help him out.

"After many years of this hard work Santa Claus began to show that he was growing old. The fairies realized that Santa Claus was a mortal and would die, so they—

"Santa Claus has come," some one shouted from the front room.

"Hurry and finish, grandpa.

What did they do?" queried Doris nervously.

"They gave Santa Claus everlasting life so that he could make little children happy always," finished grandpa.

"Oh, I am so glad," said both of the kiddies.

"Now, to see what Santa brought," said grandpa, and all three made a rush for the parlor.

CHAPTER XVII.

When Cherry came out to breakfast, a few hours later, she found Alix already at the porch table. Alix looked pale, but fresh and trim; she had evidently just tubbed, and she wore one of the plain, wide-striped gingham that were extremely becoming to her rather boyish type.

She looked up, and nodded at Cherry composedly. Cherry always kissed her sister in the morning, but she did not today. She felt troubled and ashamed, and instinctively avoided the little caress.

"No men?" she asked, sharing her grapefruit with her mail.

"Peter had to go to San Rafael with Mr. Thomas in his car, to do something about the case," Alix explained. "I drove them down, and at the last minute Martin decided to go. So I marketed, and got the mail, and came back, and the understanding is that we are to meet them at the St. Francis for dinner, at six, and go to the Orpheum."

"Is it almost ten?" Cherry said sleepily, gazing in surprise at the clock that was visible through the open door. "I'm terribly ashamed! And when did you get up, and silently make your bed, and hang up your things?"

"Oh, early!" Alix answered, non-committally. "I had a bath, and this is my second breakfast!"

Cherry, who was reading a letter, made some inarticulate sound that made Alix look at her in quick concern.

"Cherry, what is it?" she exclaimed. For answer Cherry tossed her the letter, written on a thick sheet of lavender paper, which diffused a strong odor of scent.

"Read that!" she said, briefly. Fearfully, Alix picked up the perfume sheet, and read, in a coarse and sprawling, yet unmistakably feminine handwriting, the following words:

"Dear Mrs. Lloyd: Perhaps you would not feel so pleased with yourself if you knew the real reason why your husband left Red Creek? It was because of a quarrel he had with Hatty Woods."

"If you don't believe it you had better ask him about some of the parties he had with Joe King's crowd, and where they were on the night of Aug. 28, and if he knows anybody named Hatty Woods, and see what he says. Ask him if he ever heard of Bopps' hotel and when he was in Sacramento last. If he denies it, you can show him this letter."

There was no signature. Alix, who had read it first with a bewildered and suspicious look, read it again, and flushed deeply at the sordid shame of it. She laid it down and looked in stunned conviction at her sister.

Cherry, who was breathing hard, raised her head, rested her chin on her hands, elbows on the table, and stared at Alix defiantly.

"There!" she said, almost with triumph. "There! Now, is that so easy? Now, am I to just smile and agree to my 'certainly, Martin.' Of course, Martin, dear! Now you see—now you see! Now, am I to bear that," she rushed on, her words suddenly violent. "And go on with him—as his wife—when a common woman like that—"

"Cherry, dear!" Alix said, distressedly.

"Ah, well, you can't realize it; nobody but the woman to whom it happens can!" Cherry interrupted her, covering her face with her hands. "But let him say what he pleases now," she added, passionately, "let him do what he pleases—I'll follow my own course from today on!"

Alix, watching her fearfully, was amazed at the change in her. Cherry's eyes were blazing, her cheeks pale. Her voice was dry and feverish, and there was a sort of frenzy in her manner that Alix had never seen before. To bring sunny little Cherry to this—to change the radiant, innocent child that had been Cherry into this bitter and disillusioned woman—Alix felt as if the whole world were going mad, and as if life would never be sane and serene again for any one of them.

"Cherry, do you believe it?" she asked.

Cherry, roused from a moment of brooding silence, shrugged her shoulders impatiently.

"Of course I believe it!" she answered.

"But, darling, we don't even know who wrote it. We have only this woman's word for it—"

"Oh, look at it—look at it, Alix!" Cherry burst forth. "Do decent men have letters like that sent to their wives? Is it probable that a good man would do anything to rouse some everybody woman to write such a letter about him?"

"Well, but who is she, and what do you suppose she wrote it for?" Alix wondered.

"Oh, I don't know. She got mad at him, perhaps. Or perhaps she is a champion of this Woods woman. They had some quarrel—how do I know? But you can see that she is mad, and this is the way she gets even!"

"Cherry, at least do Martin, the justice to ask him about it!" Alix pleaded.

Her sister seemed not to hear her. The misery in her beautiful eyes made Alix's heart sink.

"And that," Cherry said in a whisper, "is my husband!"

She paused, staring down at the table, one hand supporting her forehead, the other wandering idly among the breakfast things. Her look was somber and far away. Alix, standing, watched her distressedly, through a long minute of silence.

"Well!" Cherry said lifelessly, looking up at her sister with dulled eyes. "What now? It's still 'for better or worse,' I suppose?"

Alix sat down, and for a moment covered her face with a tight-pressed hand. When she took it away there was new serenity and resolution in her tired face.

"No," she said, with a great sigh. "I think perhaps you're right! He hasn't—he should have no claim on you now!"

"Alix," Cherry demanded, "would you forgive him?"

"Perhaps I wouldn't," Alix said, after thought.

"Perhaps you wouldn't!" Cherry echoed, incredulously.

"Well, I'm not very good," Alix said, hesitatingly. "But a vow is a vow, you know. If it was limited, then my—my fulfillment of it would be limited. I suppose, of course," she added, honestly, "I'm talking for myself only!"

"And you would quietly forgive and forget!" demanded the little sister, in bitter scorn.

"I say I hope I would!" Alix corrected her. "Even if this is true"—she added, with a glance at the lavender letter—"still, I suppose the rule of forgiving seventy times seven times—"

Cherry interrupted her with a burst of bitter and rebellious weeping. "Oh, my God, what shall I do!" she sobbed, with her bright head dropped on her arm.

"Don't cry, Cherry, Cherry!" Alix said, her own tears brimming over. She came to kneel beside her sister, and they locked their arms about each other, and their wet cheeks touched.

"Don't cry, dear!" she said, tenderly. "It'll all come straight, somehow, and we'll wonder why we took it so hard! Now listen to me, Sis," as soon as Cherry had somewhat regained her composure. "We'll ascertain about this letter; that's only fair. If Martin denies it—"

"Of course he'll deny it!" Cherry interrupted, from the bitter knowledge she had of him.

Alix again felt daunted for a second by the sheer ugliness and sordidness of the matter, but she returned to the charge bravely.

"Suppose we get Peter to ask him," she suggested suddenly. "Peter has a wonderful way of getting the truth out of people!" Poor Cherry, the very mention of his name makes her wince, Alix thought, watching her sister sorrowfully. "If Martin can convince Peter that it is not true, then that makes all the difference in the world," she added, aloud. "Then you tell Martin frankly that you have the old house ready to live in, and you want to live there. He—"

"He'll never agree to that!" Cherry said, shaking her head. "But if this is true?" she asked, again indicating the letter.

"Then tell him that unless he agrees absolutely to a separation," Alix said, "that you will get a divorce!"

"And live here, alone, under that sort of a cloud?" Cherry said, with watering eyes. "Oh, well!" she said, rising, and going toward the door. "It's horrible—horrible—horrible—whatever I do! What is your idea—that we should dine, and go to the Orpheum tonight as if nothing had happened, and let all this wait until you can ask Peter to cross-examine Martin?"

"I wonder if Martin would tell me? Why couldn't I pretend that I opened that letter by mistake and frighten him into admitting it, if it's true?" Alix said.

"You could," Cherry admitted, lifelessly. "But you may be sure it is true enough!" she added.

"Then leave it to me!" Alix said. "And don't feel too sad, Cherry. You're young, and life may take a turn that changes everything for you. You always have Peter—Peter and me, back of you!"

"Alix, you're the best sister—a girl ever had!" Cherry said, passionately, putting her hand on Alix's shoulder. "I wish I were as big as you are! And he's made me so wretched," whispered Cherry, with trembling lips. "That sometimes I've been sick of life! But I will investigate this letter, and if it's not true, I'll try again. Alix! I'll go away with him, if he wants me, to or I'll live here—and study French—and go to lectures with you—"

"You darling!" Alix said, with an aching heart.

That night it was simply managed that Martin should be next to Alix, in the loge at the theater, and she began to question him seriously at once. All through the strange, unaccustomed lay that followed her night of vigil

she had been planning what she should say to him, but she and Cherry had not spoken of the subject again. Cherry had dressed herself with her usual dainty care, and now, with the violets Alix had given her spraying in a great purple bunch at her breast, and her blue eyes ringed and thoughtful under her soft little feathered hat, she was so arrestingly lovely that Alix was well aware of the admiring glances from all sides to which she was so superbly indifferent.

"Martin," she began, "I read a letter intended for Cherry this morning. I—I open all the mail!"

She had to repeat it twice before he realized that there was something behind her earnest and significant tone. Then she saw him stop twisting his program, and veer about toward her. She murmured a question.

"Do I what?" he asked, in an undertone instantly lowered.

"Do you know a girl named Hatty Woods?" Alix repeated, cautiously.

All hope died when she saw his face. "What about her?" he asked, almost inaudibly.

"Somebody wrote this letter about her," Alix started, quickly.

"Who wrote you about her? What'd she say?" he demanded quickly.

"Just—I'll let you see it," she said. "I don't know who wrote it—it wasn't signed. Do you—do you know her? Do you know Hatty Woods?" She said—

"The letter said—"

"Oh, sure, I know what she'd say!" Martin conceded, furious at Alix's interference, trembling with anger and resentment, and only anxious to close the conversation. "I know all about her and her kind. I think I know who wrote that letter, too. You give it to me tomorrow and I'll manage it. There won't be any more!"

"Martin," Alix whispered, gravely, "if you have given Cherry any cause—"

"Her voice fell, and there was a silence. "There are a great many things in life that you don't understand, my dear sister-in-law," Martin said reluctantly, nettled, "a man's life is not

"Do You Know a Girl Named Hatty Woods?"

a woman's—isn't intended to be! If this woman says she has anything on me—Well, now, I'll tell you something and you can tell your sister—if this is a frame-up, that I'll fight Hatty Woods and fifty Hatty Woods! I—"

"Martin—for heaven's sake!" Alix warned him, as she pressed her violets against her face.

"Well," he said, surlily, "now you know how I feel about it!"

"Martin," Alix pleaded, feeling that her last hope was sinking away from her, "can you deny her story?"

"You get Cherry to deny that she's never lost a chance to beat it away from home ever since she was married," he said. "You get her to deny that she has said over and over again that she never wanted children, that her marriage was a mistake! You ask her to show you the letters I've written her, asking her to come back, and then I'll show you the answers I got!"

"Mart," Alix said, sharply, "there's no use in your taking that tone with me! That will do no good! If this poor girl, this Hatty—"

"I tell you to leave Hatty out of it!" Martin said. "The best thing you can do is to let the whole thing alone!"

But she saw that he was both nervous and apprehensive, and she knew that the inference she and Cherry had drawn from the letter was a true one.

"Does Cherry know anything of this?" Martin presently muttered.

"Do you want her to?" Alix asked, pointedly.

He shrugged his shoulders with a great assumption of indifference. "If she wants to have it all dragged to light, why, she can go ahead!" he remarked, carelessly. "I'm not stopping her!"

"At least I think you ought to let Cherry lead her own life after this!" Alix countered with spirit.

"Live in your old house, eh?" he asked, resentfully, as he flipped the pages of his program with a big thumb and stared at it with unseeing eyes. "What does she want to live there for?"

"The fact remains that she does," Alix persisted.

"Yes, and have just as good a time as if she never had been married at all!" he said.

"You know—"

Alix was beginning the denial that she had given him so confidently last night, but she interrupted herself, and stopped short. The conviction rushed upon her in an overwhelming wave that she had no right to repeat that denial now that the last dreadful twenty-four hours had changed the whole situation, and that she herself had better reason to suspect Cherry than either Martin or his gossiping aunt. She sat sick and silent.

Meanwhile, Cherry and Peter had their first opportunity to speak to each other alone. To both the thirst for speech was a burning necessity, and it was with an almost dizzy sense of relief that Cherry turned to him with her first words.

"Peter, I don't dare say much! Can you hear me?"

"Perfectly!" he answered, looking at his folded program.

"Peter, I've been thinking—about our plan, I mean! Martin plans to go on Monday. But something has happened since I saw you this morning, something that makes a difference! I had a letter, a letter from some woman, a connecting link with another woman, a Hatty Woods—she's notorious in Red Creek—and this Joe King crowd that he went with—I don't know who wrote the letter, or why she wrote," she said, hastily, as Peter interpolated a question. "And I don't care! As far as Martin goes, I am free now; what is justice to Martin, and kindness to Martin, will never count with me any more!"

Peter wasted no words.

"He goes Monday," he said. "We can go Sunday. This is Thursday night. Your suitcase I checked again yesterday? Was it only yesterday?"

"That's all!"

"We would have been on the train tonight, Cherry, flying toward New Orleans!"

Her small hand gripped his in the darkness.

"If we only were!" he heard her breathe.

He turned to her, so exquisite in her distress. Her breast was rising and falling quickly.

"Patience, sweetheart!" he said. "Patience for only a few days more! Tomorrow I'll make the arrangements. Sunday is only two days off."

Their eyes met in a wild rush of triumph and hope.

"This time we shall do it!" Peter said.

"Oh, Peter—you'll never be sorry?" she whispered.

"Sorry! My dearest child, when you give your beauty and your youth to a man almost twice your age, who has loved you all your life—do you think there is much chance of it?"

"Why shouldn't it be one of the happy-marriages?" said Cherry after a silence.

"It will," he answered, confidently. "As the weeks become months, and the months become years, and the beauty and miracle of it go on and on, we will think that what we feel for each other now is only the shadow—the dream!"

"Shall I just let Martin think I am quietly going away with him on Monday?" she asked, after a silence in which she was deeply thinking.

"Does he know you had that letter?" Peter said.

Some Spanish Priests Forbid Use of Word "Caramba"—Good Story in That Connection.

There is a church in La Guaira, Venezuela, which is said to have been erected with the proceeds of fines imposed upon the people of the parish who profaned their conversation with the word "caramba"—the common oath among all classes of people—or with stronger expressions. The church is therefore called "La Iglesia de la Santissima Caramba."

The word caramba is meaningless, but it is constantly in the mouths of all people, without regard to sex or condition, and is not usually considered reprehensible. But now and then a pious priest will be found who prohibits its use among the sheep and lambs of his flock.

A story is told of three pious friars who were traveling a hot and dusty road one day, driving a donkey which bore their luggage. The beast became obstinate, and finally lay down in the dirt, much to the damage of their property. One of them, more impulsive than the rest, forgot himself so far as to utter the first syllable of the forbidden expletive, and said "Caf!"

The second exclaimed "Ram!" and the third "Ba!" which completed the unholy word, and thus expressed their sentiments jointly without impugning their souls.—Philadelphia Ledger.

MARCUS E. WIGHT
 Marcus E. Wight, for many years prominent resident of Quincy and widely known along the water front of Quincy Bay and Fore River as a pilot, passed away at his home, 12 Bluff road, North Weymouth, Sunday following a brief illness in his 72d year.

Mr. Wight was born in Quincy, in what was known as Quincy Neck, Sept. 21, 1850, and resided there until the advent of the Fore River Ship building Co., when he sold his home, which stood about where the big machine shop is now located. He continued to live in Quincy, however, until six years ago when he took up his residence in North Weymouth.

Mr. Wight has been a pilot in Quincy waters since he was 18 years of age, and has held a pilot's commission ever since the Commonwealth began to issue them and he with his brother, Edward M. Wight of Quincy were the only two commissioned pilots on the river.

Mr. Wight was for many years prominently identified with the Quincy Point Congregational church and was its chorister for many years.

He is survived by his wife, two sons and a daughter. His sons are Marcus S. Wight, John M. Wight and his daughter is Minnie F. Wight. He is also survived by his brother, Edward M. Wight.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon.

WILLIAM F. BARTLETT

William Frank Bartlett, 81 years old, died suddenly at his home, 23 Grant street, Thursday, Dec. 8. He was a member of Crescent lodge and Wompatuck encampment, I. O. O. F. He leaves three daughters. Funeral services were held at the home Sunday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Earl E. Story of the Methodist church. Crescent lodge attended and the Odd Fellows committal service was read by Noble Grand Russell T. Knox and Chaplain Harry O. Belcher. The pallbearers were Herbert K. Cushing, George S. Simmons, Wendall T. Dizer, Samuel W. Burrell, George C. Maynard and George H. Manuel. The interment was in Fairmount cemetery.

CHRISTMAS PRIZES

The word "Christmas" was printed over 100 times in the Gazette-Transcript last week and early Saturday morning nearly 100 marked papers were received, that number of boys and girls being proud to say they had discovered the word Christmas 100 times. Ahead of all, however, was Charles O'Connor of 51 Commercial street, who is awarded the prize. The Gazette congratulates Charles, and requests him to call at the Gazette office on Saturday between 10 and 12 A. M.

Others to send marked papers were: Madeline Snow, Jack Parnell, Leonard Sweet, Vincent Loeffler, Betty Bates, Charles Price, Francis Cleveland, Russell Clapp, Roger Karstrom, Carrie Louise Randall, Marion L. Martin, Majorie Howe, Mira Newcomb, Emma P. Ellis, William Richmond, William McCulloch, Anna Briggeman, Esther M. Turpel, Emily Mehrman, Herbert Carroll, Edwin Peterson, Irene Butler, Nevel W. Huif, Dorothy L. Tirrell, Gladys E. Foley, Warren and Ruth Fogg and Albert Fraher.

Another prize is offered this week to the boy or girl who will find the word "Christmas" the MOST TIMES in this issue before 12 M next Tuesday. It is not necessary to send in the papers before Monday, as time does not count this time. As a first prize two tickets will be given to any movie show at the Bates Opera House (old Fellows Opera House) or the Alhambra theatre. The word "Christmas" should be underlined and the total for each column given at the bottom of the page. At top of page one put name, and address and number of times found.

ST. JAMES THEATRE

"My Lady Friends" will occupy the stage at the St. James theatre during the pre-Christmas week and furnish hilarious amusement to the Boston Stock Co. fans. It is so extremely funny that there is only one laugh in the show, but that laugh starts with the first curtain and lasts until after the curtain has fallen on the last act. That is, it's just one continuous scream from start to finish.

"My Lady Friends" was written by Emil Nityra and Frank Mandel from the famous novel "Oh James", by May Edington. It is crammed full of humor, tricky situations and delightful characters. It calls for the display of some stunning gowns by the ladies in the company and is as breezy as a June day at the seashore. The lines sparkle with wit and fun, the plot is new and delightfully original and the director of productions W. C. Masson, has given the play an especially fine production.

THE COPLEY THEATRE

"Charley's Aunt", that perennially popular farce, which has already been repeated on several occasions at the Copley theatre, will be acted there again next week by the Henry Jewett Repertory Company. Its mirthful appeal has been responded to by multitudes ever since it was first acted in London, some 30 years ago. What more emphatic evidence of its vitality could there be than the fact that it has had longer runs and more performances than any other play ever written and acted in the English language? It is one of few modern farces that represent the humorous spirit of the age on the stage. Its ability to arouse laughter is unquestioned and the laughter that it has aroused is immeasurable.

It is very evident that the public likes farce and such a farce as "Charley's Aunt", clean and wholesome as it is, has won success on its merits. No effort will be spared to accentuate its humor in our coming revival and it will be acted with an irresistible dash and comic spirit and liveliness. No one who loves laughter will want to miss seeing it and to renew his acquaintance with a masterpiece of modern farce-writing.

Tomorrow the C. M. A. Juniors play Haverhill Juniors while the C. M. A. Midgits play the Athens school. The C. M. A. is going strong in basketball and East Weymouth fans are following them around pretty close.

Lyons and Bailey, the wrestlers at the C. M. A., are to be in the amateur bout in Boston this winter. They are both very good at the wrestling game. William Ambrose Doherty is the star of the C. M. A. teams. Come on over and watch him cage the ball.

TREMONT THEATRE

"Only 38", the heart-winning comedy, now at the Tremont theatre, Boston, has made one of the most favorable impressions of any play which has been seen at the Hub in many a season. Because off previous bookings it was necessary to limit the engagement and thus there is but one more week in which to see this charming play.

"Only 38" is a play of youth and sunshine and is by A. E. Thomas who wrote "The Rainbow", "The Champion" and "Just Suppose." His idea was taken, however, from a short story by Walter Prichard Eaton. Mary Ryan is featured and has the role of a minister's widow, who is only 38. She has been denied the happiness which falls to most girls, but springtime finally comes to her, although a bit late.

The Boston critics have been unanimous in declaring the play to be distinctly different and well worth while.

WEYMOUTH A. A. WINS

The Weymouth A. A. defeated the Okos of Brockton last Friday to the tune of 21 to 11. Mahoney, Gannon, and Curtin were the stars for Weymouth and "Iron Man" Sney and Higgins for the Okos.

Monday night Weymouth journeyed to Whitman and defeated Whitman 34 to 17. The passwork of Weymouth was a treat to watch. Gannon and Curtin were in great form, each caging four baskets from the floor.

Tonight Weymouth plays the University five of Cambridge at East Weymouth. Next week's games are Bridgewater at Whitman, Monday night; Rockland at Rockland, Thursday; and Stoughton at East Weymouth, Friday.

AN INVITATION

Have you been to Quincy lately? When you are near there take a peek into Holden & Crout's in the square and look over their line of Christmas gifts for the youngsters not to mention the older members of the family, then among the others you will see some of the workmanship of Andrew Kennedy of Edinburgh, Scotland. The first bit of his work on display is a miniature of the Indian Scout, the world's greatest light machine. This 1.3 size working model motorcycle constitutes months of conscientious labor, truly a remarkable piece of workmanship. Go up and look it over. It will cost you nothing.

On the floor near it rests a Kiddie Car, but not in the form you are probably accustomed to seeing. It is in the form of an automobile to delight the heart and bring joy to anyone, to say nothing of the youngsters. Real lights, that light, rubber-tired wheels, one extra fastened securely to the rear, a clock, a switch, a real steering wheel of a stout wood, which will not break with the hardest use, everything sturdy and staunch. Stop in and be neighborly.

CHATS WITH YOUR GAS MAN

Every consumer fixes his own price. By using gas to replace other fuel he just naturally reduces the average rate.

In paying for the first hundred cubic feet of gas used each month a consumer pays his part of the overhead costs such as reading, billing, mailing interest and the like. The rest of the bill is for the gas he uses and costs him but 17.1 cents per hundred cubic feet.

There are no ashes to handle when you use gas.

A Christmas Dash for Happiness

A Tale of Old Detroit
By Bernice Stewart
IN THE DETROIT FREE PRESS

Editor's Note—This story is based on a tradition of Detroit's frontier days. "The Legend of L'Anse Creuse," preserved both in prose and verse form.

OLD, Detroiters used to say that young Claire Beauvais was beautiful beyond all believing—and arch, as behooved her French name. They told, too, how her father was a brave, impatient man, possessed of no little vanity. He had won many a victory over the Indians and the English, in company with La Foret, warden of the great La Salle, and with Tonty, Cadillac's right-hand man. He had fought with Du Luth, as well, and his name was one which made those earliest inhabitants of Detroit flush with pride.

Even when his warring days were over and he had settled down on the river bank, his prestige was such that people would step aside to let him pass as he came striding down the roadway.

Claire had a temperament not unlike her father's.
Their wrangles and their reconciliations were known all up and down the river. Yet they were passionately attached to each other and devotedly loved by the whole community. In particular was the fair Claire loved by one Beaulere, a lithe, dark young Frenchman who hunted more for the sport of the chase than for the profit of his pocketbook at the fur trading post. When Sieur Beauvais would see Philippe Beaulere's tall, straight figure at Claire's elbow walking down Ste. Anne street, now known as Jefferson avenue, his brow would darken threateningly. But he would find himself commenting secretly, despite his anger,
"Dieu, what a pair!" and he would add: "Mals, it isn't permitted for a good French father to let his daughter make a fool of herself for a penniless hunter just because he has the looks of a young god."

Then Claire would be hurried home. There was no man to quell the storm before it broke, for Claire's mother had withstood the rigors of the Michigan winter for only three years. So the old warrior and his gay young daughter would rage at each other for fifteen minutes and then fall into each other's arms. Peace would be made. Claire would go bathe her eyes, brush back the rebellious gold of her hair and come back charmingly dutiful to preside over the tencups and to welcome the other young men who came during the course of the evening to pay their respects to her in the presence of her sharp-eyed father—officers of the fort in their swagger uniforms, skilled trappers, a tradesman or two and men who owned many acres on which they raised Indian corn and wheat.

Among the latter group there called now and then rickety old Va-de-bon-Coeur. He was a shrewd old Frenchman whose broad lands down on the Rouge river bank outspanned every other sutor's. In spite of his physical unattractiveness, he was possessed of a good, kind heart and capacity for endless devotion. Sieur Beauvais always shrugged a little when he looked in old Va-de-bon-Coeur's direction, as if to shake off an unpleasant impression, but as the old fellow talked Beauvais generally would thaw out and say to himself, "He's really not half bad; he's really surprisingly good for an old man. And rich, tiens! how he could lavish wealth on my little Claire! Fancy, two estates for the girl, her own and his, one at each end of the village. She might be as rich as she is beautiful. And he's really remarkably kind and wise."

After their guests were gone the storm would break again. One night after this had been going on for more than a year the Seigneur of Beauvais determined that matters would have to come to a reckoning.

"This nonsense must stop!" His big brown fist came down on the heavy oak table. The red firelight played over his tall, warrior-like figure, glinting on the buckles of his uniform and gilding the hilt of his hunting knife and under his bushy brows little red flames danced, reflected in the pupils of his great black eyes. Claire rose from the small chair where she sat by the hearth, defiance in every line of her lovely little figure.

"You've got to settle down, you've got too many moonstruck fellows dangling after you. A dozen have asked me for your hand. And when I tell you, you only put me off. You've snapped your fingers at a dozen chances. Why? All for that languishing beauty in a raccoon hat. I'd like to see you settle down with Va-de-bon-Coeur. He's richer than all the rest of your dandies put together. Mals, I won't insist, I'm no ogre. Choose for yourself, but you must choose now. You've willy-nilly long enough!"

Claire stepped close to him, threw back her head.
"I won't marry anyone but Philippe Beaulere!
And you know it!"

"Ugh!" the deer slayer. Bah, he couldn't win you in a fair fight."

"Oh, couldn't he! Give him a chance—"
"Sacre, I will! We shall have a public match at Noel time and if he isn't wiped in the dirt you can have the moon-struck fool."

"Tres bien!" Claire was defiant and joyous. It was plain that she had no doubt of her lover's prowess.

But on second thought the old warrior decided he could not pick out the husband of his "petite ange" through a public brawl. So, thinking shrewdly of old Va-de-bon-Coeur, he decided on a race with sleighs Christmas day. "And whoever wins," he concluded, "you shall marry him and he shall have all your lands."

Now in the village good horses were a great luxury. Va-de-bon-Coeur had his stables full of the best ponies that money could buy. But Philippe had but one horse, unused to being driven with a sleigh, a good, sure-footed bay, excellent for hunting, but for cutter racing—Claire sighed doubtfully.

Sieur Beauvais decided on a race of sixteen miles on the ice of L'Anse Creuse, the shallow little bay on Lake St. Claire. A twisted tree on the far side was selected as the eight-mile turning point.

The contestants commenced to train their ponies.
Old Va-de-bon-Coeur was out every morning, lashing his choicest black stallion up and down the street, as he leaned forward in his light steel-runnered cutter that had been sent from the East.
Officers were seen impatiently nagging their orderlies to more careful grooming of their fine roan mares. Even the tradesmen bought horses, the best they could afford, and went flying along the snowy roads.

Only Philippe Beaulere remained aloof from the general excitement. As usual, he was gone into the forests at dawn, where it was said he spent the day hunting with the Indian chief, Menotepah.
Whenever he rode he was seen astride the same pony that had always borne him. It was known throughout the town that he had not even purchased a sleigh. It was wondered at, for his devotion to the fair Claire was an open secret.
Wasn't he going to race? The villagers cast compassionate glances at Beauvais's lovely little heiress. Her preference for him was an open secret, too.

At length Christmas morning dawned. Right after mass was said in the old church of Ste. Anne the crowd collected on the bank of the bay.

A little apart from the crowd stood Claire Beauvais and her father. Claire looked like an etherealized holly berry in great red dotman. Her eyes flashed with excitement and her little round chin was held up proudly out of her great collar. The good old Seigneur strutted about with a self-important air, giving orders and waving genial salutations to the townsfolk.

There were 12 contestants, of every kind and condition. There were cutters, jumpers, trains, pungs, sleds and carioles. The impatient drivers were accoutred in devious ways; some in leather doublets, some in furs, some in military manner, some in great woolen blanket-coats of rich color.

And in all that group of contestants none was more impatient than old Va-de-bon-Coeur, completely muffled in lavish furs of gray-brown raccoon. His cutter shone in the sunlight and his big, black horse was carried until he gleamed as if he were oiled.

But why were they waiting? Why was Lady Claire's face like a stricken flower, pale cheeks, despairing eyes that seemed to be seeking something beyond the excited crowd, down the long frosty road? Instinctively the hushed crowd followed Claire's glance. Instinctively they, too, looked and wished for the absent Philippe Beauclerc.

Then there swept around the corner and up to the astonished crowd, the most curious equipage that their eyes had ever beheld. Philippe Beauclerc, looking like some glorious savage clad in shaggy black buffalo robes, held taut the homemade reins of hison hide that guided a curious pony. He was small and shaggy and spotted like a quail. His neck was long and his head was lean.
His hind legs seemed shorter than his fore legs.
Beside the well-groomed horses of the other contestants he was a grotesque parody. The cutter was rudely wrought of ironwood. But the driver's face was serene and eager. He glanced toward Claire. Their look held. Claire smiled. Then they were off on the signal of the Seigneur.

The crowd loosed its pent-up laughter as they saw Beaulere's lean, dappled beast fall behind pace by pace. The other ponies were skimming on like swallows in the wind. But leading them all was old Va-de-bon-Coeur's black stallion. There was a sympathetic shudder for Claire. But she, seeming not to mind, was smiling like a dainty witch.

Va-de-bon-Coeur's black stallion was the first to dash up to the blasted oak. He was flecked with foam. His quivering flanks were streaked with the lashes of the old man's whip. It was plain he was well spent but his driver allowed him not a moment's respite. Off they sped again. Then two soldiers came galloping in, neck to neck. The others followed in quick succession.

Close on the heels of the last sleigh came Beauclerc, his shrewy little pony as stout and fresh as when he first set out, his reins still drawn taut.
He wheeled about deftly, then loosened the leather ribbons. The ugly pony stretched out his long, thin neck and leaped forward.

He galloped on the last horse, passed him. Sailed by the second, the third, passed the rest of them, was neck and neck with the leader, Va-de-bon-Coeur's panting black stallion. Farther and farther he stretched out his hoofs till he dashed by the leader.

On the bank the eager crowd craned their necks.
Their eyes opened with incredulity when in the flying shape that was dashing toward them they recognized Beaulere and his uncouth speckled nag. Off in the distance, far behind him, straggled his vanquished rivals. Instinctively the onlookers glanced toward Claire and, though she was hiding her rosy cheeks behind a great muff, they could see that her eyes glowed with the light that was never on land or sea.

The spectators surged up about the victor's sleigh. There was a torrent of welcoming cheers for the tall dark hero. But he had no ears for their acclamations. He was running to the little knoll where Claire stood beside her father, who in spite of himself was looking rather relieved and joyous.
They watched Claire as she put out her hands to the good looking but breathless youth who inclosed them in his own so eagerly. They watched him bend above them with grace of a cavalier. And as he did so they heard the old Seigneur exclaim,
"Sacre! where did you get that wind-shod demon?"

Philippe Beaulere's answer came back, laughing. "Oh, that's old Menotepah's Indian pony. I've been training him for weeks in the forest."

A Holiday Romance

By T. B. ALDERSON

Copyright, 1921, Western Newspaper Union.

TWO feet deep of snow. Why, it's a regular Christmas gift for me!" observed Rolfe Darlon hopefully, as he awoke from a night of profound slumber and glanced out through the street window of the chill bleak lodging house where he was one of wanderers who had no other home.

As he descended to the well-heated office room of the institution he paid little attention to the lounging crowd of idle and battered men. He paused only to address an old man with a pair of crutches by his side. He slapped him in a friendly, familiar way on the shoulder.

"If I can only get a snow shovel," he observed, "I will see to it that your meals and lodging are well provided for over Christmas."

"Bless you, my friend!" murmured the other gratefully. "You have been very kind to me," and Darlon left him with a genial good-by and started forth for a day of hard, earnest work.

Darlon was passing some cottages adjoining one another when the door of the nearest one was opened and a pleasant faced lady beckoned to him.

"You look as if you were seeking work," she said. "Would you clean off this sidewalk and a path to the coal shed for half a dollar?"

By the end of an hour he had his task completed.

"You must come in and share our lunch, if you will," invited the young lady. Chancing to glance through the window he noticed in the next yard a young girl battling with the heavy snow with a frail broom.

"She doesn't make much progress," he observed to his hostess. "If you will lend me your shovel I will soon clear a path around the house for her."

He lifted his cap politely, explaining his purpose. Alice Brill, young, frail, grateful, bestowed a winning smile upon the friend in need. She announced frankly that they could not afford to pay for the service offered.

Springing Free of the Roof.

"You needn't worry about that," he declared lightly. "It will make me feel the better for doing a little act of kindness, so near to Christmas."

Darlon regarded Alice Brill with more than ordinary interest. He had heard the girl and her father in the next house discussing their neighbor. It seems that the father of Alice had sold some store property in the town for over four thousand dollars, representing about all he had in the world.

He had hidden it in his bedroom, some one forced open the window and Brill awoke next morning to find his little fortune gone.

Darlon worked sturdily at sidewalk and garden paths and had pretty nearly completed his task when Alice came out on the rear step.

"I wonder if it would be too much to ask you to get the ladder and climb up to the kitchen roof and push off the massed snow there."

Darlon was only too glad to grant the request. He was pushing the last shovel of snow over the eave troughs when he startled Alice, who had come out again to watch the progress of his work, by springing free of the roof, waving a dark object in his hand.

"I found it lodged in the gutter spout, where it must have fallen from the hand of the thief," he announced breathlessly. "It is a pocketbook filled with money."

Just that it was, and Rolfe Darlon, a welcome spectator to the wild delight of the Brills, lingered long in the house, blessed by the gratitude of Mr. Brill and his beautiful daughter. What more natural than that they should invite this cherished guest to Christmas dinner, for a royal one they were sure of now, but Darlon surprised them and congratulated himself in appearing neat, trim and in a new suit, for at the lodging house that evening he found an unexpected letter from his estranged uncle containing a liberal remittance and asking him to return to the home roof and forget that they had ever quarreled.

Merry Christmas, indeed it was for that little group, and when Rolfe Darlon bade Alice Brill good night after a day of rare enjoyment and happiness, he wondered if the ardent hope of his soul might become a reality before another yuletide celebration in his winning of a Christmas bride.

DID YOU VISIT US?

How a Blind Woman's Friendly Call Left With Us a New Vision and Understanding

ONE of the most interesting of the many interesting incidents of our recent Telephone Week was the visit of an aged blind woman to one of our central offices.

"My telephone means so much to me!" she said. "The world would certainly be smaller for me without it; yes and much less bright and cheerful. So I thought I'd accept your invitation to call, in order to tell you that, Of course I can't see how you make all these connections, but I'd like to feel the switchboard and see if I could understand the process."

This and other incidents of Telephone Week gave us telephone people a new vision of our job, and a new conception of what telephone service means to those we serve. We appreciate more keenly than ever that the world would be much smaller for almost everybody but for the services of which we are a part.

And, being human, we desire to do what we can to make the world bigger and happier by giving the best possible service.

The good-will and understanding resulting from these visits make us wish that our patrons would feel that they are welcome to call on us during any week of the year.

We plan no special preparation and desire no formal notification. A call to the Chief Operator or Manager will be sufficient. That will enable us to fix a time when service demands will be least pressing and when our Service Committee can best arrange to show you around.

Don't feel that this is a bid for sympathy or praise. If you are having service troubles, come and tell us about them and see if in a spirit of friendly co-operation we cannot find a way to correct them.

You will be welcome at any central office in the Boston Division. Please plan to call in the afternoon, if possible.

Christmas Party For G. A. R. Veterans

Members of Reynolds Post, 58, G. A. R., were entertained at a Christmas party at Grand Army hall on Tuesday evening by Dorothea L. Dix, tent Daughters of Veterans, Mrs. Sadie A. Wolfe president.

Of the 44 members of the Post on the roll 24 were present to enjoy the program. A community sing, with Mrs. Lillian Hollis at the piano, was followed by speechmaking and then came "The Family Album" in a big gold leaf frame, with the characters impersonated by Mrs. Harriet Fern, Mrs. Helen Lewis, Mrs. Emily Files, Miss Louise Maynard, Mrs. Elizabeth Draper, Mrs. Jennie Morton, Mrs. Clara Maynard, Mrs. Una Robinson, Mrs. Anna Williams, Mrs. Estelle Whelan, Mrs. Mary Brassill, Mrs. Amelia Severance, Mrs. Alice Miller, Mrs. Susie Davy, Mrs. Fannie Smith.

During the grand march each comrade present received a Christmas remembrance from the gift table and to every comrade unable to attend a present was sent.

Past Commander Bradford Hawes, the occasion being the 78th anniversary of his birth, received a huge birthday cake illuminated with candles.

The committee in charge consisted of Mrs. Estelle Whelan, Mrs. Blanche Briggs, Mrs. Nellie Lough, Mrs. Lucy Miller, Mrs. Anna Williams, Mrs. Lillian Hollis, Mrs. Clara Maynard and Mrs. Alice Miller.

CHRISTMAS PARTY

Tuesday evening 21 members of the Young Ladies Auxiliary of the Baptist church met at the parsonage for their annual Christmas party. They entertained as their guests, ten young ladies from the Methodist church in East Braintree. The entertainment was in charge of Miss Bertha Beals, president of the club, and consisted of readings by Miss Madeline Boran of Quincy, assisted by Miss Gladys Allen at the piano, an original Christmas poem by Miss Gladys Price, games and the singing of Christmas carols by all present, as they gathered around a beautifully decorated tree laden with gifts for all and illuminated by tiny electric lights.

Later refreshments were served and a happy time was voted by all.

CHRISTMAS PRIZE

Many boys and girls read every line of the Gazette-Transcript last week searching for the word "Christmas" the publishers having offered a prize to the one finding Christmas the most times. The most popular advertisements were those which used the word frequently. It will surprise many to learn that Christmas appeared 168 or more times, but Vincent Loeffler of 16 Sterling avenue marked it that number of times and is awarded first prize. A second prize is awarded to John Parnell of 47 Richmond street whose total was 157. Honorable mention to Charles O'Connor of 51 Richmond street with 166. A few others claimed more, but they marked the word "Xmas" which is not to be counted.

Among those entering the contest and finding Christmas over 100 times were: Herbert Carroll, Richard Williams, Kenneth R. Mosher, Francis N. Brown, Emma P. Ellis, Helen Mace, George Snow, Joseph Nickerson, Carrie Louisa Randall, Ethel Remick, Helen Gilman, Carroll Pratt, Roger Karstrom, Clifton Williams, William Richmond, Gerald Briggman, Charles Curley, Ralph Cole and William McCulloch.

The prize winners will please call at the Gazette office Saturday between 10 and 12 A. M.

G. A. R.—W. R. C.

Invitations have been issued for a joint installation of Reynolds Post, G. A. R., and Reynolds Women's Relief Corps, to be held Tuesday, Jan. 2, at G. A. R. hall. The G. A. R. installation will be at 4 o'clock, to be followed at 5.30 with a supper served by a committee of Reynolds Relief Corps. The W. R. C. installation will be at 7 o'clock.

A Christmas Message

One big human family! That's what we plain, everyday people become this time of the year. We add to the crush in the department just to see the popping eyes and radiant faces of the children. And where is that human soul so frostbitten that doesn't enter into others joy just now? We have become human.

The Christmas Message is just that: "Be Human!" For what did Christ come? That humanity might re-discover itself—and just be human. And that is the divinest act we can perform.

Because He was the Son of God, Saint John says in the 13th chapter, Jesus did the human thing—the act of kindly service for others. Don't we love Jesus more because He was a baby—it was so human to come that way. "The Word was made flesh and dwelt among us and we beheld His Glory", and that Glory is where human and divine love meet.

Interesting Meeting of the Monday Club

Monday, Dec. 19, was a busy day for the Monday Club as a meeting of the board of directors was held at one o'clock and in addition to other business transacted the names of several women were presented and voted upon and all added to the waiting list of the club. The regular meeting of the club was a very busy one too, as in addition to the usual reports, Mrs. Bosworth gave a very interesting account of a decidedly unusual trip to the State Federation meeting at Worcester during the storm which did such damage in that vicinity. Mrs. Jewell read the Christmas greetings of the State Federation president with its wish for the broader work and wider vision of all clubs.

The president explained the sending out of the little bags with their suggested anniversary offerings as a method of the ways and means committee to raise funds for some necessities of the club. No one "must", but if many "do", it will be a case of "many a little makes a mickle" to help along. Rev. John T. Theodore gave a fifteen-minute talk on the Near East Relief and though given in a quiet manner, with but little of tragical detail, one felt the need and he left the room with nearly $40 freely given and the knowledge that the club had voted $15 for the fund.

After the work the play; and Mrs. Hazel Clark Leonard gave a group of four numbers on the violin and as usual all were pleasing. The cantata "Christmas Scenes" showed in living pictures accompanied by appropriate music the arrival of Father Christmas on Christmas Eve, the child with the hanging of the stockings, the carolers, the church service, home merry making and "last but not least", the plea for the poor. All the parts were taken by the members and dressed as a vested choir they gave solos and choruses in a manner that showed Weymouth's musical ability was not declining. The prettiest picture was the passing through the dim church up to the lighted organ and the singing there with organ accompaniment.

The three little ones, Evelyn Libbey, Robert Pratt, who recited "The Night Before Christmas", and Dorothy Bearas, who danced in the home festivities added a delightful touch. Miss Greta Garfield gave a reading describing an American Christmas in France that, showed how our boys had spread our customs across the sea. The music committee and those taking parts, Mr. Calderwood, the coach, deserve congratulations and a Merry Christmas.

CHRISTMAS REMEMBRANCE

President Harding, Governor Cox of Massachusetts and Mayor Peters of Boston each have written a letter which will appear in facsimile in the stocking of remembrance to be given every sick and disabled ex-service man in hospitals about Boston, according to the plans of the Disabled Soldiers Christmas Remembrances Committee. In the stocking, to be presented Christmas morning, there also will be substantial and useful gifts, having a retail value of $8. Each person contributing $2.50, the wholesale cost of the gifts, may enclose in the stocking his or her personal card of greeting. The organizations having the fund in charge are American Red Cross, American Women's Overseas League, American Legion, Boston Community Service, Disabled American Veterans of the World War, Knights of Columbus, Military Order of the World War, Red Triangle Club, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Women's Auxiliary of the American Legion. James J. Phelan, 60 State street, Boston, is treasurer and persons wishing to contribute may make checks payable to him. It is the intent of the committee to remember every one of the more than 200 veterans now in hospitals and a fund of $6000 is necessary.

LEGION
POST 79
Leonard
Commander

The first American Legion building financed exclusively through the sale of municipal bonds is that now under construction in Pasadena, Calif. The building is to be of the bungalow type, will stand in American Legion park, a public park of South Pasadena.

There is not one jobless ex-service man in Louisiana, the American Legion Employment Bureau of that state having found work for every veteran seeking employment.

More than 3000 veterans of the World War now suffering from tuberculosis, are without care or hospitalization in the State of New York, according to William F. Deegan, commander of the New York department of the American Legion, who has just completed a survey through Legion posts of the state.

A WEYMOUTH SONG

Editor Gazette-Transcript: The song "John Brown" by Liev Amors, as first published in the Weymouth Transcript, led by Brook and Lon Vining, who were good singers. The words were composed by George Kimball. In the company was a John Brown, but this song had nothing to do with him. It was on the patriotic life of the John Brown, who was hung at Charleston, Va. The 12th on leaving Fort Warren sang and played it while going through the streets of Boston, to the Old Colony depot, where they took the train for Fall River, thence by boat to New York. Going up Broadway it was sung and played by Martland's Band, who belonged to the 12th. They also played it in Boston, instead of the Gilmore Band. The Gilmore Band did not leave the state till the fall, in October, 1861. The 12th left July 22, 1861. On arriving at Harper's Ferry, they camped there a while and then went to Charleston, Va., where "John Brown" was also played.

NEW BEADED AND SPANGLED ROBESStyles Are Emphasized by the Paris Dressmakers in Autumn Collection.

TUNICS CUT HIGH IN NECK

Some Models Are Without, or Have Very Short Sleeves—Others Have the Straight-Around Decolletage.Paris is maintaining her reputation for simplicity in dress, despite all efforts to the contrary, writes a Paris fashion correspondent. There is something so attractively youthful about the simple dress that it is difficult to persuade the smart Parisienne to accept the more complicated and elaborate models.However, the Paris dressmaker realizes that the continuance of these simple styles will be a detriment to her. It will be like killing the goose that laid the golden egg; so strenuous efforts will be made with the opening of the fall season to divert attention from the simple styles to more elaborate effects.One of the first indications of the splendor of fall attire is the introduction of beaded and spangled robes.
There is hardly a Paris dressmaker who is not emphasizing these styles in her autumn collection. The newest things of this kind are totally different from anything that has been heretofore shown. All kinds of new spangles and new cabuchons, as the odd-shaped beads are now called, are being used and the most marvelous colors have been developed for this purpose.

Like Piece of Tapestry.

When one recalls the old-fashioned beaded tunic in color which seemed to represent the height of ambition from a standpoint of front-row chorus taste, one is amazed at the contrast presented in the 1922 spangled robe.
The novelty now appears in dull soft shades of gray, wonderful browns, dull burnished reds and sphinx.Opalescent and iridescent effects are replaced by clair-de-lune and lophodore, the latter named from the iridescent shading of the crested pigeon.
In consequence the new spangled robe looks like a wonderful piece of tapestry-work wrought with dull metal and burnished stones. The gelatin spangles as well as the beads are in the most wonderful shadings; thus a gown can be worked out in a variety of stitches and materials, all in one tone.One no longer sees a robe entirely spangled nor one done entirely in cup-shape motifs. But there are squares, triangles, oblong, pointed, round, faceted and tube shapes in varying sizes, sewn according to intricatelyEvening Gown Developed in Salmon Pink Taffeta, Trimmed With Silver Lace and Old Blue Velvet Ribbon.traced designs on nets of deep tone; thus making the background as well as the embroidery in one color.

Shapes, Forms for Every Taste.

Many of these beautiful robes have been especially executed for the Paris dressmakers after their own designs, and they come from the hands of the manufacturer almost a perfect dress with sleeves, décolletage, waistline, skirt fullness, length and shape dictated by the highest Paris fashion authorities.There are shapes and forms to please every taste; tunics cut high in the neck in what is known as decolletage, without sleeves or with very short ones, if any. Other models having the straight-around décolletage with only tiny jeweled shoulder straps and bodice are cut off just below the curve of the bust.Again the bodice takes the form of a bib at the front, the back and sides of the figure being left almost nude.
In addition to the straight chemise form there are tunics in which the skirts are entirely complete; others in which that part known as the skirt is formed of a succession of festoons orfringes. Other models are long straight panels open at the sides.

Styles of 1830 Leave Imprint.

The quantities of these beaded tun-ics that have been exported give evidence that all the big stores in America are anticipating a large demand for them. One may expect, therefore, that the beaded tunic will be seen in town and hamlet as well as in the cities.Although it appears impossible to overcome the liking for simple black silk frocks for daytime, the handsomest of evening dresses are being made from gorgeous materials in bright colors. The feeling of the 1830 period is very strong in model dresses for the evening.There are any number of very full skirts, most of which are very long, some almost touching the floor. InGown of Gold Cloth, Having Yoke of Gold Tulle Embroidered in Gold Bugles and a Flower of Black Velvet.the skirts of more slender outline some part of the frock is made to trail, for while the skirt when slender is long, it is considered desirable to give the effect of even greater length by trailing points and panels.Much silver lace and velvet ribbon are used as trimming on satin and silk dresses.Lanvin has just brought out some charming dance frocks in satins of the brightest shades, such as shrimp pink, and trims them most elaborately with metal laces and large applique motifs of natter blue velvet.

Harks Back to Earlier Days.

The way in which Lanvin has applied the velvet trimming is most unusual. The bodice pointed far down in the front and ending at the normal waistline—a revival of a very old-time style—is seen in ever so many of these Lanvin frocks.Callot makes charming evening gowns entirely of cloth of gold, combining with it gold tulle and black velvet. These have the very long skirt, but are of much slimmer outline than the Lanvin frocks referred to above.The new evening capes are the loveliest ever, and the interesting point is that they are very long, frequently touching the floor. They are made of the richest materials, wonderfully combined.Jenny has a great fancy for using a broad back panel of gorgeous brocade, to which are joined the front pieces made in a plain satin, which she elaborately embroiders at the bottom in a pattern exactly matching that of the brocade. She has lovely capes of this kind made in black and gold brocade joined to plain black satin on which the embroidery repeats exactly the pattern of the brocade. It is a fascinating idea and one of which only a Parisian dressmaker could conceive.

Trailing Evening Coats of Brocade.

Very gorgeous evening coats made of brocades, for instance, coral pink and silver, are broken into panels by insertions of silver lace, one edge of the lace being allowed to float free.
Often there are six or eight panels of this kind in the width of the cape. All of the silver lace reads one way, and the effect when worn is almost that of a half-closed fan with the lace edging each rib of the frame.Another wonderful panel effect in an evening wrap, also a creation of Jenny, is a black satin wrap with a broad white panel in the center of the lining. This, of course, is revealed only when the cape is thrown open or left to fall off the shoulders, as many of them are.The favorite way of hitching on the new cape is by the use of big cable cord of metal or silk, which encircles the base of a very narrow collar and ties around the shoulder after the fashion of the Spanish bull fighter. In fact, the craze for the cape is distinctly of Spanish origin; likewise the shawl.

Many Uses of Salt.

How many housewives realize the almost innumerable uses for common salt? Salt and boiling water will thaw a frozen sink drain. Salt removes tea stains from china. A saltspoonful of salt added to a quart of coffee when made improves the flavor. To remove the brown from earthenware after being in the oven, rub well with salt, which will take it off immediately.HEADQUARTERS FOR

A BEAUTIFUL WEYMOUTH

By James D. Loefler

X—Pruning

Contagion—lack of precautions—a sight wound—infection—first aid omitted—diseased—crippled—dying—dead!Speak of men—or trees, both living, growing examples of Divine handiwork, and the physical causes and effects of growth and decay in each are the same.Become better acquainted with your trees and you will learn to love and understand and sympathize with them.
They will prove worthy friends. They will prove worthy friends. They have not the faults of men, though early training makes or mars both tree and man.Sympathizing must be practical!
Wants must be attended, unusual circumstances prepared for, defence provided against enemies, and injurious promptly attended to. If serious, a doctor should be called; possibly a surgeon.Be very careful of the doctor you get for your trees. Be sure you tree physician is not a patent medicine salesman or a "quack", nor your surgeon a tree butcher. Doctors of trees, like doctors of men, must study the causes, proper treatment and correct remedy for the "patients" ailment. One is as exact a science as the other and the tree doctor has more, if anything, to know, considering the vast number of kinds of his patients, for example:

Do You Know

There are at least 2800 kinds of growing ornaments in common use.
That a new kind of specialist can name any apple tree by its leaf.That flower, hence fruit buds, can be told from leaf buds, even in winter.That as small an injury as a climbing spur, can kill a tree.That pruning accelerates the growth of a plant to maturity.That diseases may often be controlled by proper pruning.That old trees may often be rejuvenated by proper pruning.That vigorous growing trees of fruiting age may be made to fruit by proper root pruning.That cementing tree holes is seldom desirable, often a detriment and does more harm than good when improperly done.Again I say, this is not a question of labor at so much per hour. It is not even hard work, but a careful, painstaking science, where knowledge and experience in the use of it, counts.Unscientific and dishonest work with unfavorable results have done much to prejudice tree owners against the benefits of tree repair work, in which reliable tree surgeons are doing much to educate the public.

Boston Founded By Weymouth Settlers

EARLY HISTORY OF WEYMOUTH

By Rev. William Hyde
No. 16—Weymouth and Boston
In the calendar of Colonial State Papers, 1574-1660, there is the following item, Nov. 19, 1622:

"Letter to be written to Mr. Thomas Weston to deliver to Leonard Peddock to take over with him a boy, a native of New England, Papa Whinnett, belonging to Abbadakest, Sachem of Massachusetts."

This was one of the Indian boys who had been kidnapped by Smith or Weymouth. Thus then, we have Braintree (Quincy), Squantum, Neponset, Boston, Charlestown, Chelsea, the Neponset, the Charles and the Mystic rivers first settled by people from Weymouth, and it could be said that Boston was founded from Weymouth.

Major Elias Hunt of Weymouth was the first singer who received a salary for singing in a Boston church.

Joshua Bates, a native of Weymouth was a founder of the Boston Public Library.

Elizabeth Smith, daughter of Rev. William Smith of Weymouth and her husband, Rev. John Shaw, were among the founders of the Boston Athenaeum Library. Elizabeth Smith Shaw was the sister of Abigail Smith Adams, the mother of President John Quincy Adams.

General Solomon Lovell of Weymouth, during the Revolution, was commander of the Military Division of which Boston was the center.

Besides, Weymouth has given bankers, lawyers, clergymen, business men, doctors, teachers and other noted persons to Boston, and can it not then be said that Weymouth was the Alma Mater of Boston.

The settlement of Weymouth, then, was largely the work of Thomas Weston and Sir Ferdinando Gorges; indeed for many years the name of Sir Ferdinando Gorges was a terror to the Plymouth people, for if he should succeed in his aims and defeat his enemies, thus gaining the means to carry out his views of a great colony at Boston Bay, it would mean an entire change in the religion and government of New England.

Sir Ferdinando Gorges' son John succeeded Captain Robert Gorges in the grant which he had in Massachusetts and other relatives, such as nephews also came into relation with the Gorges Charter, but the struggle in connection with it was mainly in England, and when it did come to New England, it was transferred to the colonies in Maine.

Although Sir Ferdinando Gorges came near losing his charter several times, yet he never lost it, and in various ways it was bequeathed or given to other members of the Gorges family.

Sir Ferdinando Gorges divided the grant into two provinces, the Province of Maine and the Province of Massachusetts. Over the Province of Maine he set his cousin Thomas Gorges as Deputy Governor and Thomas in his turn set his son Henry Gorges, Esq., over that Province, and he in his turn gave it to his brother, Ferdinando by power of attorney.

The grant to Henry Gorges was given in 1633, and in 1635 in the Island of Barbadoes the power of attorney was drawn up, and the interesting thing about it was that it was witnessed to by Ferdinando Gorges, John King Jr., Charles Glover and Thomas Dutton, the last three of whom were Weymouth men, and the deed was made oath to in Boston by Charles Glover, Sept. 7, 1635.

In this power of attorney, the Ogunquit river in Maine is mentioned. See the files of the Supreme Court of Suffolk County, Vol. 28, paper 23421. In all this work about the Charter there was danger to Plymouth, but in the end the danger passed away.

The work of Gorges in New England cannot be thrown aside as of no account, as some would like to do. Nor can the work of Thomas Weston be forgotten. There are those who write as though his work was of but little account, but no matter what they may say against him, his work remains; he was an instrument of fate in the development of a new continent. He had a part in the great work and the part was essential to the work. His part is forever fixed on the page of history, and at one time, not only the fate of Plymouth, but the settlement of the eastern coast of Massachusetts depended upon Thomas Weston.

KNITTED OUTERWEAR FOR LATE AUTUMN

KNITTED outerwear serves faithfully, at any season of the year, and anywhere, to fortify women against the chill of season or altitude. But its faithfulness is as nothing compared to its smartness, since discriminating women have undertaken to make the most that can be made of it. Mere service is taken for granted and goes without saying while interest centers now in beauty of color, style and ingenuity in knitting. Our old favorites, the scarf and sweater, find themselves in the company of capes, coats, blouses and frocks—handsome garments, skillfully made, having a field of usefulness that is rapidly widening.

Silk and silk fiber yarns supplement wool, but do not outlive it, in handsome scarfs, sweater-coats and blouses in models where the sheen of silk is an advantage, as in the wide, deeply fringed scarfs for wear with tailored dresses or suits. These scarfs are especially handsome in black, white, and in Roman stripes. In the opinion of many women the wide, silky angora scarfs, of which an example is illustrated here, outclass even those made of silk.

Very handsome capes are knitted in stripes of two colors and have big collars of angora and sometimes borders of it in one of the colors. Other capes in one color have angora collars and borders in a contrasting color. These and knitted one-piece frocks are ideal for autumn and early winter wear. A rib in the knitting makes possible many pretty variations in all knitted garments, but proves itself most effective in capes and blouses.

Both frocks and blouses are giving a good account of themselves for sports and street wear.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Quincy, in said County of Norfolk, on the eleventh day of January A. D. 1922, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

BASKETS FOR THE NEEDY

Weymouth is not backward or careless in showing the proper spirit at Christmas that it is more cheerful to give, than to receive, and many needy families will not want for food or other delicacies thru failure of our local organizations. For several have already distributed baskets and others intend to do so. Weymouth Post, No. 78, A. L., prepared over a dozen baskets, Crescent lodge, I. O. O. F., have distributed some 17 baskets. The Knights of Columbus and Daughters of Isabella have distributed over 50 baskets. Both societies will hold a community Christmas tree party open to all children at K. of C. hall on Monday night.

NEW NOBLE GRAND

Officers were elected on Monday evening at the regular meeting of Steadfast Rebekah lodge as follows: Noble Grand—Doris Cottell.
Vice Grand—Hazel M. Thompson.
Rec. Sec.—Ida M. Farrington, P. G. Fin. Sec.—Addie B. Hunt, P. N. G. Treasurer—Edna L. Sladen, P. N. G. Trustee, 3 years—Mabel B. Maynard.
Mrs. Marion E. Thompson, the district deputy president, and suite were special guests and there was a large delegation from Victor lodge of Dorchester. The deputy presented the lodge an electric table lamp. The receipts of the recent fair of Unity Circle were announced as over $500. After the meeting a chafing dish lunch was served and all enjoyed music by the orchestra.

MORE MEN AT SHIPYARD

It is reported that 73 men have been at the shipyard this week, not 2009 or 3000 as rumored.

While the tendency is hopeful there is no prospect of any such good news. It is stated by Superintendent A. G. Gould that no change in the policy will be made until action results from the disarmament conference in Washington.

It was stated that these additional men had been added to the force because it was ascertained that there is money enough left after estimating the cost of running the yard this year to warrant the addition to the number of workmen employed. At present it is stated that 2800 are now at work at this plant.

JOBLESS VETS DAYS

It is a sad commentary on affairs generally that the Welfare committee of the American Legion in Boston finds it necessary to have a drive to aid the unemployed ex-Servicemen. Daisies were first suggested, but could not be obtained in sufficient quantities. Instead the young girl volunteers will bestow "Old Glory" bows. Today and tomorrow are "Jobless Vets" days, which are endorsed by Gov. Cox and State Commander James T. Duane.

Drive for G. A. R.

Associate Members

The suggestion of the Gazette-Transcript, that Reynolds Post, No. 58, G. A. R., have an Associate Membership has been unanimously approved by the Post, after an investigation of the workings of such a body in Stoughton, Newton and elsewhere. A committee of the Post has authorized a committee of gentlemen outside the Grand Army to proceed to organize and as a preliminary step this committee have this week issued the following letter. All gentlemen of Weymouth are invited and should not wait for a personal appeal:

"Patriotic Citizens of Weymouth:

"The time has come when we can be of service to the surviving veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic. Reynolds Post at one time had over 300 members, but now there are less than 50, and their average age is about 80 years, so that it is not easy to perform their sacred duty on Memorial Days, or even to attend the regular meetings of the Post.

"Patriotic citizens of Weymouth have suggested to Reynolds Post that they would esteem it an honor to become Associate Members, and the Post at a regular meeting have unanimously approved the plan. A committee of the Post, composed of Commander Francis A. Bicknell, Surgeon William A. Drake, Chaplain Bradford Hawes, Adjutant Waldo Turner and Senior Vice Commander William Litchfield, has authorized the undersigned gentlemen to proceed to organize an Associate Membership.

"First, it will be necessary to make application individually to become Associate Members of the Post and you are requested to obtain a petition sign it, and forward with $5 to any of the Grand Army officers above. Upon election the Associate Members will have their own organization, and you will be notified of time and place of preliminary meeting.

"It has been suggested that the $5 fee include all dues to January, 1923. That it also provides a complimentary dinner to the members of Reynolds Post and a badge for each Associate Member. That the Associate Members secure automobiles for Memorial Day, also to take the G. A. R. to and from their regular meetings which are held twice a month. That in other ways they contribute to the happiness of the members of Reynolds Post, G. A. R., and to the members of Reynolds Relief Corps.

"That your name may be acted upon at the next regular meeting of the Post on Tuesday, Jan. 3, please forward your application promptly.

"Respectfully,

(Signed)

REV. JOHN B. HOLLAND

The application for Associate Membership reads as follows:

"Esteeming it an honor to be identified with the Grand Army of the Republic, and desirous of being of service to the surviving veterans of 1861-65, I hereby make application to become an ASSOCIATE MEMBER of Reynolds Post, No. 58, G. A. R., of Weymouth and pledge myself to conform to all bylaws of the Post.

Name _____
Age _____ Occupation _____
Post Office Address _____

A fee of $5 should accompany the application.

In Stoughton, all the members of the Board of Selectmen, most of the town officials, the clergy, the lawyers, physicians, merchants and citizens generally are proud to be enrolled as Associate Members.

MILITARY HONORS

Funeral service with full military honors were held last Sunday afternoon in connection with the reinterment of the body of Private Thomas Francis Donovan, Co. M, 9th Infantry, Second Division, A. E. F.

The flags were at half staff at Headquarters Weymouth Post, No. 79, American Legion, and at the town offices, out of respect to his memory.

The religious funeral services were held in Sacred Heart church at 2 P. M., Rev. John B. Holland officiating. The music was under the direction of Mrs. John W. Hanley, organist. Solos were rendered by Miss Helen M. Corridan, singing "Ave Maria", with violin obligato by Mr. Lawrence Corridan, Mr. Henry Kennedy "O Jesu Me" and Miss Helen Caulfield, "Pie Jesu". Fr. Holland gave a brief eulogy over the body and at the conclusion of the services "Taps" was sounded.

The body was then conveyed to St. Francis Xavier cemetery escorted by the Weymouth Post, No. 79, A. L. band; color bearers Basil S. Warren, Henry A. Cote; color guards Victor L. Nostig, Everett Kennerson; firing squad in charge of Corp. Leo Draper; Weymouth Post, No. 79, A. L. in charge of Lieut. William A. Connell; Veterans of Foreign Wars; Oriental Fife & Drum Corps, of which the deceased was one of the organizers, and mourners.

The committal services at the cemetery were conducted by Fr. Holland. Before the body was lowered into the grave, the large American flag was taken from the casket and a smaller one substituted by Mrs. J. Herbert Libby, president of the Auxiliary to Weymouth Post, No. 79, and a bouquet of roses by the president of the Service Star Legion. The band then played "Nearer, My God to Thee", as the body was lowered into the grave, after which three volleys were fired. "Taps" was sounded by Neil Nelson.

The pallbearers were William R. Dwyer, Henry Dwyer, Thomas A. Lyons, Thomas T. McCarthy, Francis A. Donovan and C. Raymond Condrick.

The following nominations have been made for officers of the Old Colony Gentlemen's Driving Club: J. Wendell Totman of East Weymouth, president; H. ## The Cheer of Christmas

By Alvah Jordan Garth

Copyright, 1921, Western Newspaper Union.

THERE was a token of crisp, white winter in the air and the oldest inhabitant was daily discussing the probability of "a real genuine old-fashioned Christmas." The river was frozen and a spell of skating and races on the ice promised. The little town had awakened to real enthusiasm and when Susie Burton appeared driving the old family horse with a string of merrily chiming bells attached to the shafts of the wagon which held the cans of sweet, fresh home milk for a coterie of old customers, the cheer of the approaching holidays was intensified.

Susie was poor as her well mended raiment evidenced, but she was superbly happy. "You see," she imparted to an especial confidant, a girl neighbor, "our customers always give us some little remembrance around Christmas time. And mother always makes up enough delicious cottage cheese to go the rounds so we don't appear as if we were beggars" and Susie removed the top of a milk can to display a mass of the delicacy.

"Sometimes it's money, sometimes rare gifts bought for money, or clothes, or a knitted hood. Anyhow it makes us feel rich around Christmas time each year."

Susie hoped there would be some real money offerings which she felt her diligence and that of her grandmother truly deserved.

For a month past Mrs. Burton had referred to "a bill and a judgment." Susie learned that the city firm threatened "to sell the Burtons out." "Surely they won't trouble poor old grandma so cruelly," she hoped, but the next morning when she went out to the stable to hitch up old Dobbin she found the stall empty and her grandmother seated on the front steps of the house, her apron to her eyes.

"Oh, Grandma! where is Dobbin, and what has happened and why are you crying so bitterly?"

"Child," was the sobbing reply, "the worst has come. Two men just took Dobbin away. It is ruin for us."

"Where is he? where did they take him?" cried Susie. Oh, grandma I

"Being Led Up a Slanting Platform." must find Dobbin! There must be some way to get him back.

Two men had led Dobbin in the direction of the railroad to ship him to the city with other live stock. Almost hysterical Susie was speedily dashing down the road.

At length she reached the railroad; yes, there was poor faithful Dobbin being led up a slanting platform to a car. Wildly Susie dashed after him. "Where are you taking our horse, our Dobbin!" she called, and then she sprang towards the animal clinging to his mane, kissing and caressing him.

"We are simply doing our duty and shipping the horse as directed," declared one of the men, and Susie learned that the destination was the livery stable of a man named Arnold Drury in the city, and boldly declared she would remain with Dobbin until she saw this Mr. Drury, who could not but heed her story when she told it.

There was a three hours' jolting, worried ride. When the train reached the city some new men proceeded to unload the car. Still Susie clung to old Dobbin. People stared as the procession passed down a street leading to a great livery stable. Susie learned that a gentleman in a house nearby was Mr. Drury. His wife and daughter were with him and before them all Susie told her story.

"Little one," he said, jotting down the town where she lived and covertly wiping away a tear, "we will attend to all this speedily. Get the child something to eat," he directed his wife, and an hour later she was the companion of Susie, homeward bound, after giving directions for the immediate return of old Dobbin.

That was not all. Mrs. Burton quivered with delight, as glancing into the yard the next morning there was Dobbin all ready in the shafts for an early trip, and Susie went her rounds singing happily.

The story of the old horse got about town and was the theme of many a fireside story amid interested home circles as the Christmas bells rang out. Kris Kringle sent the loyal Susie a full girth of gifts, and peace and hope, and happiness hovered over the little

Our Greetings In the Meaning of Christmas

IN THE true spirit of the occasion and with due appreciation of all it implies, we extend Christmas greetings to the readers of this publication. Christmas has a meaning possessed by no other holiday throughout the world. America has its national and special days, other countries have theirs; Christmas is the only one alike in spirit and celebrated in all Christian lands. So pure is its principle that it commands respect and admiration among people who worship their Creator in different ways from ours.

Christmas typifies all that is best in mankind. It is the culmination of the human mind throughout the ages dwelling upon the wonders and mysteries of existence, turning to a reverence for God and His representative on earth. It expresses the ascendancy of spirit, the realization of men of their interdependency and their duty to one another; and so it is marked by the bestowal of gifts and other sentiments of benevolence and well wishing.

The makers of newspapers, concerned as they are with the doings, manifestations and thoughts of their respective communities and the world at large, and recording them in their more important aspects for the information, mayhap the education of readers, are brought into an intimate sense of the spirit and meaning of Christmas. Would that we could express to you all the good that we see in the hearts of men and the increased brilliancy behind a few shadows of the light which has upheld the world for so many centuries. In the happy auguries we see for the future, there is every reason to be merry.

Our Yuletide thoughts go out to the people of this community and our thanks are due the patrons and kind friends who have given us practical support or extended encouragement during the year. May this be the best Christmas you have ever spent, is our wish to all.

THE 1800 CHRISTMAS

FIRST YULETIDE DINNER SERVED IN THE WHITE HOUSE.

Haunch of Venison Graced the Table Presided Over by the Wife of John Adams.

THE first dinner at Christmas given in the White House was that which took place in the year 1800, when John Adams was President and thrifty Abigail, his wife, sat at the head of the table as hostess. It was not a comfortable meal, although a splendid haunch of venison, the gift of Mrs. Washington, graced the board, and the country people of what Mrs. Adams called "the City in the Wilderness" had generously contributed gifts of all sorts to make the feast as toothsome as one could well wish.

The reception after dinner took place in the oval room, which is now the library, and was at that time barely habitable, though furnished, as Mrs. Adams wrote, in "warm crimson." The view from the windows on that first Christmas day would have disclosed what John Cotton Smith describes as "a deep morass, covered with alder bushes." The sidewalks were laid with chips from the stones with which the capitol was built. A wooden bridge spanned Black River Creek, and low houses, also built of wood were the residences of the congressmen.

The only brick dwellings were those that stood in Pennsylvania avenue, between Twenty-first and Twenty-second streets, six in number and built with money derived from the sale of lottery tickets. These were the surroundings of the first Christmas day of the Chief Executive of the young nation "whose policy in government has been more Christ-like than any other nation on the face of the earth which keeps the holiday."

EXTRAVAGANT AFFECTION.

Perce-Maud expects a handsome present from me this year and has hinted she thinks it might be in the shape of an engagement ring when I can afford only a plain one.

Ferd—Serves you right for indulging a diamond ring passion on a ten-dollar salary.

Toys I Used to Know

WITHIN the shopping center here I stand, a wait and stray, And watch the throngs of women dear Who pay and pay and pay. Wide-eyed, I look about, but oh! Where are the toys I used to know?

Swift an acrobat goes by, To boyhood's marveling, And fascinated eyes rove high To watch the wonder thing. But, heart of mine! across my sight There floats a little homemade kite.

My boy demands a "lectric train, With fifty feet of track. His modern spirit skims the plain And brooks no holding back. O Christmas when I used to bless My key-wound fifty-cent express!

My little girl I must amuse, And so I buy at view A doll that wears French high-heeled shoes And silken stockings too! Yet let a vision from above— My sister's doll, of rags and love!

O dear, dead days that brought to me My earliest burst of speed, When Santa placed beneath the tree My first velocipede! Yet my son tells the Christmas Car He's got to have a motorcar.

O tree, long since decayed and dead, What joys you held apart! Gee! how those mittens, thick and red, Warned both my hands and heart! But now my wife I have to buy A pair of auto gauntlets high.

Here, where the incandescents gleam Amid the costly show, I seem to see, as in a dream, The penny candles glow. Tree of my youth! my heart, grown new Again hangs on a branch of you! —John O'Keefe, in New York World.

WHAT CHRISTMAS MEANS

CHRISTMAS is far other than a vision, a poetic rendition of the facts of life; it is an event set deep not only in the history of men but in their faith, their worship, and their way of life. They have never risen to its level; they have never, by united effort, given its spirit the tremendous effectiveness of concerted action; but, even in their infirmity of intention and their feebleness of practice, Christmas has given their life on earth a diviner meaning and a kindlier habit. It has enormously increased the value of that life; it is increasing the spiritual content of the thought of life in the minds of men; it is giving it a sweeter savor, a softer grace, a warmer atmosphere as men more and more interpret life in the light which streams from Bethlehem. — Hamilton Wright Mable.

THE CRADLE-ROCKING

FORM OF WORSHIP AT CHRISTMAS IN GERMANY.

Resulted in the Church Later Gaining Much Stronger Hold on the People.

THROUGHOUT Germany, and also Italy and France there has been for some time a widespread use of the "crib." It is now universally diffused in the Roman church. Cribbs are the delight of children who through the season of Christmas and Epiphany wander into the churches at all times of the day to gaze wide-eyed on the lifelike scene and offer a prayer to their "Little Brother," as they call the Christ child. The use of the "crib," however, is by no means confined to churches. It is common in many homes both Catholic and Protestant.

There grew up in Germany, about the fourteenth century, the extremely popular Christmas custom of cradle-rocking, a response to the people's need of a lifelike and homely presentation of Christianity. The crib became a cradle that could be rocked and the worshippers were thus able to express in physical action their devotion to the new-born babe. The cradle-rocking seems to have been done at first by the priests, who impersonated the Virgin and St. Joseph and sang a duet. The people and the choir took part in the singing. In time dancing, which was a natural accompaniment to festive song to the early Germans, became common around the cradle. Eventually the people were allowed to rock the cradle with their own hands.

It was by appeals like this to the homely instincts of the people that the church was able to gain a real hold over them, so that during the Fifteenth, Sixteenth and Seventeenth centuries Christianity became a genuinely popular religion in Germany. Dr. Andre Tille, a well-known Christmas historian, in an article on Christmas in Germany, makes a statement that is most interesting.

"In the dancing and jubilation around the cradle," he writes, "the religion of the cross, however much it might in its inmost character be opposed to the nature of the German people . . . was felt no longer as something alien. It had become naturalized but had lost in the process its very core. The preparation for a life after death which was its Alpha and Omega, had passed into the background. It was not joy at the promised 'redemption' that expressed itself in the dance around the cradle; for the German has never learned to feel himself utterly vile and sinful; it was joy at the simple fact that a human being, a particular human being, in peculiar circumstances, was into the world."

CHAPTER XVII—Continued.

"No; Alix is going to speak to him about it," Peter decided, quickly. "Cherry outlined the talk that she and her sister had had at breakfast."

"Then I shouldn't bring up the question at all," Peter decided, quickly. "It would only mean an ugly and unnecessary scene. It's much wiser to let him continue to think that you don't know anything about it, and to let Alix think that you are ignoring the whole thing!"

"Until Sunday!" she whispered. "Until Sunday," Peter glanced at Martin and Alix, who were talking together absently, in low tones. "My little sweetheart, I'll make all this misery up to you!" he whispered. Her little hand was locked in his for the rest of the evening.

Morning came, a crystal autumn morning, and life went on. If there was any change at the cabin it was a change for the better. Alix, who had been silent and troubled for a little while, was more serene now, as usual concerned for the comfort of her household, and as usual busy all day long with her poultry and pigeons, her bee-keeping, stable, and dogs. Peter was his courteous, gentle, interested self, more like the old Peter, who had always been occupied with his music and his books, than like the passionately metamorphosed Peter who had been so changed by love for Cherry. Martin, satisfied with the general respects and consideration with which he found himself surrounded, accepted life placidly enough; perhaps he had been disturbed by the advent of the letter, perhaps he was willing to let the question of an adjustment between Cherry and himself rest. It amused him to help get the house ready for a tenant, and from the fact that Cherry talked no more of living there, and made no comment upon his frequent reference to their departure on Monday, he deduced that she had come to her senses.

Cherry, too, was less unhappy than she had been. By avoiding Peter, by refraining even in words and looks from the companionship for which she so hungered, by devoting herself to Alix, she managed to hold her feelings in leash. Even though Alix found that the knowledge of the secret they shared without ever mentioning stood between them like a screen, the sisters, busy about the house, had wonderful hours together.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Saturday came, a perfect day that filled the little valley to the brim with golden sunshine. Alix, driving alone to the mountain cabin, stared in the morning freshness at the blue overhead and said aloud, "Oh, what a day of gold!"

The dog, sitting beside her on the front seat, flapped his tail in answer to her voice, and she laughed at him. But the laugh was quickly followed by a sharp sigh.

"Saturday," she mused, "and Martin expects Cherry to go with him on Monday! Expects her to go back with him to a life of misery for her, existence with a man she hates! Oh, Cherry—my little sister!—there can be no happiness for you there! And Peter! Peter is so behind to me, who cannot comfort him or still the ache that is tearing his heart! My two loved ones, and what can I do to help them!"

She had come up to the cabin to do the usual last little daily fussing among the quacks and chickens and to bring Peter, if Peter had not gone into town, back with her to Cherry's house. They had all dined in the old Strickland house the night before, and because of a sudden rainfall had decided to spend the night there, too. The Chinese boy who had been helping the sisters with their housecleaning had been persuaded to cook the dinner and get breakfast, and the evening about the old fireplace had been almost too poignant a sweet.

But suddenly, at about ten o'clock, Peter had surprised them all by getting to his feet. He was going up to the cabin, he said—must go, in fact. He would rather walk, please, he told Alix, when she offered to drive him up in the car. Bewildered and a little apprehensive, she let him go. To Cherry, who seemed to feel suddenly sad and uneasy, Alix laughed about it, but she was secretly worried herself, and immediately after breakfast the next morning decided to run up to the cabin in the car and assure herself that everything was right there.

Cherry, who had not slept and who was pale, had come out to the car, her distracted manner increasing Alix's sense that something was gravely amiss. She started on her trip with a heavy heart, but the half-hour's run soothed her in spite of herself, and now she reached the cabin in a much more cheerful mood.

Peter was nowhere about, and as she plunged into the work of house and farmyard she supposed, without giving the matter a conscious thought, that he had gone to the city.

"Mr. Peter not go train," Kow announced presently.

All Alix's vague suspicions awakened.

"Not go train?" she asked with a premonitory pang.

Kow made a large gesture, as indicating affairs disorganized.

"Him no go to bed," he further stated. "Boss come late. He walkin' on porch."

"He came in late and walked on the porch!" Alix echoed in a low tone, as if to herself. "Where Mr. Peter go now?" she asked. "He have some coffee?"

"No eat," the boy answered. He indicated the direction of the creek, and after a while Alix, with an icy heart, went to the bridge and the pool where Peter had first found Cherry only a few weeks ago.

He was standing, staring vaguely at the low and hissing stream, and Alix felt a great pang of pity when she saw him. He came to her smiling, but as Cherry had smiled, with a wan and ghastly face.

"Peter, you're not well?" Alix said.

"I think—I am a little upset," he answered. They walked back to the house together. Alix ordered him to take a hot bath, and made him drink some coffee, when, refreshed and grateful, he came out to the porch half an hour later. They shared the little meal that was her luncheon and his breakfast.

He followed her to the car and got in the front seat beside her.

"You're awfully good to me," he said, briefly, when they were going down the long grade.

Alix did not answer immediately and he thought that she had not heard. She ran the big machine through the valley, stopped at the postoffice, and still in silence began the climb toward the old house. The roads were all narrow here, but she could have followed them in the dark, he knew, and he understood that it was not her driving that made her face so thoughtful and kept her eyes from meeting his.

"You say I'm good to you, Pete," she surprised him by saying suddenly. "I hope I am. For you've been very good to me, my dear. There's only one thing in life that I haven't got, and want. And that you can't, unfortunately, get for me."

He had flushed darkly, and he spoke with a little effort. "I'd like to try!"

She ignored the invitation for a few minutes, and for an instant of panic he thought he saw her lip tremble. But when she turned to him, it was with her usual smile.

"It's only that I would like to have you—and—and Martin—and Cherry as happy as I am!" she said quickly. And a second later the mood was gone as she turned the car in at the home gate and exclaimed, "There's Cherry now!"

"Martin's somewhere about," Cherry said as Peter looked at her, and Alix stopped the car within conversational range.

Alix remarking that she would turn the car so that she might later start on the grade, disappeared, and the two were together again, after what a night—and what a day!—and that was all that mattered. They spoke confusedly, in brief monosyllables, and were silent, their eyes meeting only furtively and briefly.

"Where Mr. Peter Go Now?" She Asked.

"Can you walk up to the cabin with me?" Peter asked. "I want so much to speak to you. Everything's all arranged for tomorrow. All you have to think of is yourself. Now, in case of missing the boat again—which isn't conceivable, but we must be ready for anything—I shall go straight to the club. You must telephone me there. Just go off tonight quietly, get as much sleep as you can, and keep your wits about you."

"Tell me our plans again," Cherry faltered.

"It's perfectly simple," he said, giving her anxious face a concerned glance. "You are going to the Olivers'. I go in, in the morning, to get your suitcase and my own and get to the boat. I shall be there at half-past ten.

You get there before eleven—you won't see me. But go straight on board and ask for Mrs. Joyce's cabin. Wait for me there!"

"But—but suppose you don't come!" "I'll be there before you. It is better for us not to meet upstairs. But to be sure, I'll telephone you at Minna Oliver's at about nine o'clock tomorrow morning. I'll just tell you that I'm on my way and that everything is all right! Do you realize that by this time tomorrow we shall be out at sea."

he added, "leaning on the rail—watching the Pacific race by—and belonging to each other forever and ever?"

The picture flooded her face with happy color. "It's tomorrow at last!" she said wonderingly as they walked slowly toward the house. "I thought it would never be. It's only a few hours more now."

"How will you feel when it's today?" he asked.

"Oh, Peter, I shall be so glad when it's all over, and when the letters are written, and when we've been together for a year," she answered fervently. "I know it will be all as we have planned, but—but if it were over!"

They reached the side door now and were mounting the three steps together.

"Be patient until tomorrow," he whispered.

"Oh," she said softly, "I shan't breathe until tomorrow."

Leaning across her to push back the light screen door, he found himself face to face with Alix. In the dark entryway Peter and Cherry had not seen her, had not heard her move. Peter cursed his carelessness; he could not remember, in the utter confusion of the moment, just what he and Cherry had said, but if it was of a betraying nature, they had betrayed themselves. One chance in a hundred that she had not heard!

Yet, if she was acting, she was acting superbly. Cherry had turned scarlet and had given him an open glance of consternation, but Alix did not seem to see it. She addressed Peter, but when he found himself physically unable to answer, she continued the conversation with no apparent consciousness of his stumbling effort to appear natural.

"There you are! Are we going to have any tennis? It's after two o'clock now."

"I had no idea it was so late," Peter said.

"I knew it was getting on," Cherry added, utterly at random.

"Go in and tell the boy we won't be back until tomorrow," Martin suggested to his wife.

"You could all come down here to sleep," Cherry said, "and have breakfast here!"

"I have to go into town rather early tomorrow," Peter remarked. "Porter's giving a breakfast at the Bohemian club."

"Why not walk up to the cabin?" Cherry suggested in a shaking voice. "I have to take the car up. You three walk! Come on, anybody who wants to ride!" Alix said.

"They can walk," Martin said, getting into the front seat. "Me for the little old bus!"

Cherry came out of the house with her hat on, and Buck leaped before her into the back seat. Alix watched her as she stepped up on the running board, and saw the color flicker in her beautiful face.

"I thought you were going to walk?" Peter said nervously. He had sauntered up to them with an air of indifference.

"Shall I?" faltered Cherry. She looked at Alix, who had not yet climbed into the car and was pulling on her driving gloves. Alix, toward whose face the dog was making eager springs, did not appear interested, so Cherry turned to Martin. "Walk with us, Mart?" she said.

"Nix," Martin said comfortably, not stirring.

"I'll be home before you, Pete, and wait for you," Alix said. She looked at him irresolutely, as if she would have added more, but evidently decided against it and spoke again only in reference to the dog. "Keep Buck with you, will you, Pete?" she said. "He's getting too lazy. No, sir!" she reproached the animal affectionately. "You shall not ride! Well, the dear old Bucky-boy, does he want to come along?"

And she knelt down and put her arms about the animal, and laid her brown cheek against his head.

"You old fool!" she said, shaking him gently to and fro. "You've got to stay with Peter. Old Bucky—"

Suddenly she was on her feet and had sprung into her place.

"Hold him, Pete!" she said. "Good-by, Sis dear! All right, Martin!" The engine raced; the car slipped smoothly into gear and vanished. Peter and Cherry stood looking at each other.

"Give them a good start, or Buck will catch them," Peter said, his body swaying with the frantic jumping of the straining dog. But to himself he said, with a sense of shock: "Alix knows!"

Buck was off like a rocket when he finally set him free; his feathery tail disappeared between the columns of the redwoods. Without speaking Cherry and Peter started after him.

"And now that we are alone together," Cherry said, after a few minutes, "there seems to be nothing to say! We've said it all."

"Nothing to say!" Peter echoed. "Alix knows," he said in his heart.

"Whatever we do, it all seems so—wrong!" Cherry said with watering eyes.

"Whatever we do is wrong," he agreed soberly.

"But we go?" she said on a fluttering breath.

"We must go!" Peter answered.

And again, like the ominous fall of a heavy bell-tongue, the words formed in his heart: "Alix knows. Alix knows."

He thought of the afternoon, only a few weeks ago, when Cherry's beauty had made so sudden and so irresistible an appeal to him, and of the innocent delight of their luncheons together, when she had first confided in him, and of the days of secret and intense joy that her mere nearness and the knowledge that he would see her had afforded him. It had all seemed so fresh, so natural, so entirely their own affair, until the tragic day of Martin's reappearance and the hour of agonized waiting at the boat for the Cherry who did not come. There had been no joyous self-conf-

She Ran Toward Them—Horror Was in Her Aspect.

dence in that hour, none in the distressed hour at the Orpheum, and the hour just past, when Cherry's rarely displayed passion had wrenched from him his last vestige of doubt.

But this was the culminating unhappiness that he should know, from Alix's brave and gentle and generous look as they parted, that Alix knew. He had, in the wild rush and hurry of his thoughts, no time now to analyze what their love must mean to her, but it hurt him to see on her happy face those lines of sternness and gravity, to see her bright and honest eyes shadowed with that new look of pain.

It was too late now to undo it; he and Cherry must carry their desperate plan to a conclusion now, must disappear and forget. They had tried, all this last dreadful week, they had both tried, to extinguish the flames, and they had failed. But to Peter there was no comforting thought anywhere. Wrong would be done to Martin, to Alix, to Cherry—and more than even these, wrong to himself, to the ideal of himself that had been his for so many years, to the real Peter Joyce.

"Listen, that's Buck!" said Cherry, as the dog's loud and violent barking reached them from beyond a turn in the twisting road. "He didn't catch them, then."

The next instant a woman came up the road, running and making a queer, whimpering noise that Cherry never forgot. She was a stranger to them, but she ran toward them, making the odd, gasping noise with much dry mouthing, and with wild eyes.

Horror was in her aspect, and horror was the emotion that the first glimpse of her awakened vaguely in their hearts, but as she saw them she suddenly found voice for so hideous a scream that Cherry's knees failed her, and Peter sprang forward with a shout.

He gripped the woman's arm, and her frantic eyes were turned to him. "Oh, my God!" she cried in a hoarse, cawing voice. "My God! They're over the bank—they're over the bank!"

"Who?" Peter shouted, his heart turning to ashes.

"Oh, the car—the automobile!" the woman mouthed. "Oh, my God—I saw it go! I saw it fall! Oh, God, save them—oh, God, take them; don't let them suffer that way!"

They were all running now, running with desperate speed down the long road, about the curves, on and on toward the frantic noise of the dog's barking, and toward another noise, the sound of a human voice twisted and wild with agony.

The strange woman was crying out wildly; Cherry was sobbing a prayer, Peter, without knowing that he spoke at all, was repeating over and over again the words: "Not Alix—my God!—it cannot be—she has never had an accident before—not Alix!"

The Manners of Women. "Madam," said the man standing in the street car, "why do you persist in punching me with your umbrella?" "I want to make you look around so I can thank you for giving me your seat. Now, sir, don't go off and say that women haven't any manners."

ST. JAMES THEATRE

"Bab" the entrancing "sub-deb" of Mary Roberts Rinehart's stories which Edward Childs Carpenter transformed into one of the merriest, most delightful comedies seen in Boston in years, will be the attraction of the Boston Stock Company at the St. James theatre Christmas week. A very popular bill it should prove too; with its keen wit and entertaining humor. Mr. Carpenter, who will be remembered as the author of the "Cinderella Man", has preserved the charm and flavor of the original stories, "Bab" is the center of attraction in a series of highly amusing situations that are as novel and yet as natural and interesting as life itself.
The play is pleasantly original and filled with lively, amusing incidents that make "Bab" one of the treats of the season.

—Why not give useful Christmas presents? Attractively packed boxes of "White Kitchen Products" fulfill this. For particulars visit 70 Front street, Weymouth, or telephone Braintree 208W.—Advertisement.

IN NEW CHAPEAUX

Latest in Millinery Models Are Plain and Simple.

Everything Droops in Some Little Way—Feathers Mark Season for Their Own.

The hat is the beginning and the end of one's whole costume. Yet, observes a fashion critic, if there is any other one article of feminine apparel which is more difficult to do satisfactorily, then let us see it at once. There are cries from the feminine population of "I have looked at millions of hats, and can't find one that is becoming." Or, a still worse fate exists for the woman who blithely thinks that they are all more or less becoming and operates on that basis.

This year the hats are changing subtly. They are no longer the "round-and-round" affairs that they have been for some time past. That is, they diverge from this general rule most charmingly. And why is this? Because of the ways of the skirts. If they descend, then the hats must take on other lines in order to conform to the greater dignity of purpose.

The newer hats are plain and simple, to be sure, but they are most decidedly different, even though this difference is of so hidden an origin that one must analyze the elements of the case to be certain where the difference lies.

Everything droops in some little way at least. And if it foregoes that pleasure of trailing its long way over the shoulder, then it has a tendency to take out the season's nature by means of thin and jutting feathers or in pompons or bunches of flowers or exotic fruits of one sort or another. But the feathers are the things that mark the season for their own. On small hats and large hats they are the trimmings that have everything their own way, and there is absolutely no rule about the paths they trail. Now, whichever way one turns where fashionable women are gathered together,

No. 1.—Hatter's Plush and Osprey With Flash of Red in Fur; Gauntlet Gloves. No. 2.—Sport Hat and Scarf of Colored Felt and Wool. No. 3.—Velvet Streamers and Bunch of Fruit on Close Hat of Felt.

one sees a feather with a difference about its setting, but with that absolute claim to style which must be there to make it one of the season's best.

As one season slides into another there is ever a place for the black satin hat, and actually there is nothing more lovely than this sort of chapeau when it is beautifully done.

SLIP-OVER FROCKS POPULAR

Garment Easy to Make—Any Home Needlewoman Can Turn Out Satisfactory Model.

The slip-over frocks of silk or linen, serge or cotton that are worn with a blouse beneath them to supply the sleeves which they lack are tremendously popular, but they are still smart enough to pass muster. They are the easiest sort of thing to make and any home needlewoman could accomplish one satisfactorily. The edges are sometimes simply turned under and machine hemmed. Sometimes they are finished with a cording, sometimes with a binding. Sometimes a white one, for instance, of linen, will be bound with red silk braid. Such a combination could hardly be put safely through the laundry, but the color contrast is good, and that is all some designers think of, naturally. For the home dressmaker, however, it is well to think of the practical side of life, and washable colors are on the practical side.

For a Frayed Coat.

When a coat is frayed on the front edges remove buttons. With small embroidery scissors rip open the edges, pick out all threads, cut part of the interlining away, and then turn under the top edge of the coat about one-fourth of an inch or more. Baste carefully. Then turn the under side the same way, and put together by hand, neatly. Remove bastings, press, and replace buttons and the edge will look like new.

WEYMOUTH HIGH FOOTBALL

Weymouth High has just closed a successful season. It coveted four victories, suffered three defeats and played one tie game. Victories were scored over Braintree, Belmont, Rockland and Norfolk Aggies. The victory over the latter was an honorable one because Weymouth played a team which had not been beaten and which greatly outweighed it.

Defeats were received at the hands of Taunton, Quincy and Rockland.
The lone tie game was played with Abington. Although Weymouth did not score, it had the ball in Abington's territory most of the time.

The team was led by Al Gladwin, veteran guard. Henry T. O'Brien managed the team. Much credit should be given the captain for his leadership. Cipullo and Keene, the ends, proved to be valuable wing men in getting down on punts and in breaking up plays. Solsness and I.
Keene filled the tackle positions in a sensational manner. Cap. Gladwin and Bailey also filled the guard positions in a very creditable way.

The pivot position was played by Lyons of last year's squad. His playing as roving center was remarkable.
He played a steady game and held his own with the best of centers pitted against him. Gunville played quarterback. His broken field running and field generalship was a sensation. He also had great drawing power and his presence was an inspiration to the team.

The halfback positions were filled by Coyle and Kelley, the latter at right half showed rare ability in catching forward passes. Coyle at left half proved to be a valuable man on the defense. The fullback position was filled by Mauro, the 15-year-old giant.
His ability in line plunging was a feature. At all times in the season he was found to be a consistent ground gainer. Wilder also played right half back previous to his injury.
His playing was of high order up to the time of his injury. Much credit is also due the work of Daniele, who played end in the last few games.
His sure tackling was one of his fine points.

The substitutes, Hollis and Murray, performed well when called upon.
Considering the fact that not more than 30 candidates reported for practice, much credit must be given the two coaches, Wallace Whittle and Thomas Lyons.

The team is grateful to the public of Weymouth for their hearty response to the call for money for the equipment of the team. The season ended rather abruptly owing to the cancellation of Highham High, who cancelled for some unknown reason.
Those who will be awarded Ws are:
R. Keene, I. Keene, Bailey, Lyons
(captain), Gladwin, Solsness, Daniele, Gunville, Kelley, Coyle, Mauro and Wilder.

FOOTBALL ASSOCIATION

There was an annual meeting of the Weymouth Football Association, of South Weymouth this week. The various reports were made and accepted.

Edward Marr, the treasurer of the association rendered an excellent report, which showed that the association was in a good financial condition.
Mr. Marr should receive great praise for his work.

The election of officers took place.
Fred Waite was elected president;
Edward Marr was elected treasurer, and Edward Leo Madden was chosen secretary.

Carl O'Neill was chosen captain of the football team of 1922 and Bryant
Sprague was re-elected manager.
O'Neill's work on the eleven this year was remarkable and it is certain that he will make a good captain.
William Campbell's work as captain in 1921 was very creditable.

The association has entered into a drive for at least 500 members. The football team has proved to be an extremely good one. The association is securing a first-class coach for the team for next year and it seems, with the people of Weymouth back of the boys, that the eleven will attract a great deal of attention among the various town teams next year.

Let's be a member. The following will be glad to receive your subscription of $1 for the coming year: F. E.
Waite, Edward Marr and Leo Madden, all of South Weymouth.

NICK QUAD

Printer and Philosopher
Chapter II, Vol. I

Synopsis: Introducing Nick Quad, our veteran composer who, like Franklin, first worked at his trade in Boston and had reached Weymouth on his way to Philadelphia 20 years ago, but liked Weymouth so well that he ceased to wander. He first saw the sun rise in Antigonish, N. S., but is now a resident of Boston. Go on with the yarn.

It might be well to state here that Nick is a man's man. Dear reader, let me remind you that Nick knows who's who in Weymouth. He sees the spotlight shifting constantly from week to week—now rejoicing with fond parents, or mourning with others the loss of a loved one. In short following us all in this "tercentenary" town from the cradle to the grave; congratulating us when we go on an-up, sympathizing when we stumble.

The cheap "small town" gossip about the choicest bit of scandal dies its natural death without seeing the light of print, for Nick uses discretion.
Our mutual friend takes a just pride in his art and considers his mission in life is to elevate the public mind, not to degrade it. He is a firm believer in the Golden Rule between employer and employee and he thinks most employers do too, only they have a different way of applying it. Some employers think the golden part is for them and that the rule is for the employee. Nick is loyal to his employer and loyal to a friend.

He takes this time and opportunity of wishing you a Merry Christmas.

COURSES AT AMHERST

Announcement has been made by Professor John Phelan, director of short courses, that a special feature of the winter short course at the Massachusetts Agricultural college this year will be a practical course for nurserymen, given in cooperation with the New England Nurserymen's Association and the Massachusetts Nurserymen's Association. The special course for nurserymen will include propagation and nursery practice, landscape construction, soils and fertilizers, horticultural botany and special lectures on advertising and selling. It is limited to those who have had experience in nursery practice.

The program for the general winter school for farmers includes: Soils and crops, animal husbandry, dairying, poultry, fruit and vegetable raising, agriculture, farm business, farm motors, agricultural education and allied subjects.

Special courses for women in foods, clothing, business of the household and care of the sick will be a feature of the winter school program.

The school opens January 2 and closes March 10.

WOMEN GIVE OUT

Housework is hard enough when healthy. Every Weymouth woman who is having backache, blue and nervous spells, dizzy headaches and kidney or bladder troubles, should be glad to heed this Weymouth woman's experience:

Mrs. F. Harper, 173 Broad street, says: "For a long time I was troubled with my back and kidneys. I was stiff and lame in the small of my back down over my hips and my kidneys ached most of the time. My kidneys didn't act right and caused much unrest. I read of Doan's Kidney Pills and used them. I have never been sorry for I gained excellent benefit.
Moreover the benefit has remained permanent." (Statement given April 5, 1916.)

On February 11, 1921, Mrs. Harper said: "My opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills is just as high as ever. I always keep a box on hand and use them whenever my back or kidneys bother me. At these times a few Doan's always rid me of the attack. I am glad to re-endorse them."

Chats With Your Gas Man

Almost all of our customers use nothing but gas for cooking during the summer months.
The reason is clear—they want as little work as possible—they don't have any heat in the kitchen when they are through cooking. Gas is cheaper than any other fuel if properly used.

Many of our consumers use nothing but gas in their kitchens the year round. Have you ever figured what the cost of running your coal range was. Add the winter gas bill to it and compare it with the time when you used nothing but gas.

By working together we can further reduce the price of gas.

Whether it is a affection. And of course you won't forget the lights for the tree and that you can have a battery and a com-the festivities if your house isn't wired.

THE RETURN AT YULETIDE

CHRISTMAS comes and the old world turns
Fondly back to its fairy days—
Days that saw Him whose splendor burns
Bright through eras of morn and mize;
Back to the Star whose speaking rays
Wise men spied as it beckoned them
Over Judea's winding ways—
Back to the Babe of Bethlehem!

Christmas comes, and the old heart goes Gaily back to the dear days past—
Days whose breath of the budding rose Scented the years that have followed fast;

Back to the Star whose spell was cast
Over young eyes and dazzled them; Filling rapt youth with a wonder vast—
Back to the Babe of Bethlehem!

Christmas comes, and the old faith lives.
Summoned back from the days gone by—

Days begemmed with the joy that gives Mortals balm for their sob and sigh;
Back to the Star in the smiling sky,
Pilgrims haste as it urges them
On to the haven ever nigh—
Back to the Babe of Bethlehem!

Christmas! come, when the world shall go Bounding back to the best of days—
Days when He in a manger low
Sages charmed into prayer and praise;
Back to the Star whose speaking rays
All men spy as it beckons them
Over Judea's winding ways—
Back to the Babe of Bethlehem!
—James C. McNally, in St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Cookies for Christmas Time.

Cream one-half cupful of shortening with one cupful of sugar; add two well-beaten eggs, one tablespoonful of milk or cream, two and one-half cupfuls of flour sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one-half teaspoonful each of powdered nutmeg and ginger. Mix and stand aside to chill for one hour. Roll out, cut into fancy shapes and bake in a moderate oven. Fancy cutters furnish an assortment of cookies and are desirable when they are to be enjoyed by children. Lacking a variety of cutters, a pastry wheel can be used, or patterns cut out of stiff cardboard can be laid on the dough, and the outlines followed with a slender knife.

Hard Christmases for G. Washington

NO ONE has told us much about George Washington's Christmases. But from the record of his life we learn how he spent some of his Christmas days.

It was a very cold Christmastide in 1777 at Valley Forge. Snow was on the hills. Everything was frozen. And Washington's army was in great need of food, clothing and shelter.

Instructions of parties of men to go foraging for food are entered in the orderly book for that Christmas day at Valley Forge, which was anything but merry for Washington.

Still more desperate were the food conditions at Morristown, in 1779, when Washington reported that his army was on half allowance and near starvation. "We have never experienced a like extremity at any period of the war," declared Washington, pleading that food be sent.

There was a welcome Christmas present for Washington and his men at New Windsor in 1780 when a big Christmas wagon came with over 2,000 shirts and other comforts made by Philadelphia women patriots—things needed by the men under Washington, who were cheerfully suffering all sorts of hardship in order that this country might be free. The Philadelphia women also raised, that year, over $300,- 000 in aid of the soldiers.

The fine old Colonial mansion (the Craige house) in Cambridge, Mass., (now widely known as the home of Henry W. Longfellow), was the place where Washington spent his first Christmas as commander of the Revolutionary army in 1775. Mrs. Washington was there with him (as she was later at Valley Forge), and there was some pleasure in the midst of the heavy cares and responsibilities carried by the great Washington.

A year later Christmas day found Washington at the head of his 2,400 brave men making his celebrated crossing of the Delaware river, nine miles above Trenton. The snow and sleet were blinding, it is recorded, and the cold was intense. But hearts were brave.

Wherever he was at Christmastide, Washington was cheered with the thought that the cause of the struggling colonies would surely win. A few days before Christmas, 1776, he wrote to his older brother, John Augustine Washington: "Between you and me, our affairs are in a very bad situation. . . . However, under a full persuasion of the justice of our cause, I cannot entertain an idea that it will finally sink, though it may remain for some time under a cloud."

Washington must have had some very merry Christmases at Mount Vernon. There were no children of his own with whom Washington could romp. But we can easily imagine the big-hearted general putting on a false beard of fuzzy white whiskers and slinging a pack over his back for the delight of the little ones in the neighborhood.

General Washington was truly the "Father of His Country," and we have a very good idea of the sort of holiday spirit in which he observed the "glad Christmastide" when our republic was in its infancy.

No one in all our bright history as a nation has handed down a more radiant Christmas message of hope and faith.

A Yuletide Reunion

By CECELLE LANGDON

Copyright, 1921, Western Newspaper Union.

MADGE ALLISON was seated in the front part of the vacant store on Broad street where for two weeks she had been the active director of a public movement for preparing a suitable and joyous holiday for the young children of the poor district of Carleton.

Sufficient had been donated to give comfort and pleasure to the little ones and now the grand work was going on to make up wreaths and other trimmings for the workmen's hall, where Santa Claus was to distribute his gifts.

It pleased her sympathetic heart to see how anxious her little pensioners were to make up the evergreen wreaths as she directed them. The willing and excited helpers chatted and laughed and sang and comprised a noisy brood. Then there was a sudden lull.

"Someone is peeping in at us," announced one of the girls. "Why, Miss Allison," volunteered the eldest of her assistants, "It is Vance Dacre!"

Miss Allison turned her face away.
It had grown very white, almost frightened, and her lips trembled and her eyes had grown startled. Vance Dacre had come back! Two years had passed since she had seen him or had even heard of him. She was greatly shaken, gathered up the decorations and said as steadily as she could:

"Children, we have two more days to work, and there are things I must attend to this afternoon, so we will defer further work until tomorrow."

As her willing helpers trooped away,
she sat alone in the room thinking, wondering, and of Vance Dacre all the while. The door opened and Vance Dacre entered the room.

"I had to come. I hope you will forgive the intrusion," and then he paused, for she had hurried to her feet and advanced with smiling face and extended hands. "Surely everyone of your good friends will be glad to welcome you back home," she said.

"Perhaps I had better tell you,"
he began, "that after two years of Vance Dacre Entered the Room.

hard grubbing at a mine prospect I saved enough money to come back here and do some good with it. I have heard of your noble charity. Won't you help me enjoy my homecoming by placing in your charge this?"—and he tendered a roll of bank notes—"Use them to make the little ones happy, and I will be more than satisfied."

For three days, Vance Dacre was a most enthusiastic worker, and the heart of Madge warmed towards this strong rugged helper whose tenderness for her little charges evidenced the soul of a true man.

What bright happy hours for those two, drifting together after that long parting!

Then came Christmas eve, and the event lived in the memories of the peppy ones benefited for many a year to come.

Christmas day, serious and business-like, Vance came to the house of Miss Allison whither he had been invited.

"I am going back to work tomorrow," he told Madge. "You see, I have had my fling and am content to take up again the old burden of hard work and barren hope for the future."

"Could you not do quite as well here at Edgerton?" inquired Madge.

"I fear not. There are occasional streaks of luck at gold mining, so I shall have to keep at it."

But later that day he came hurrying to the Allison home and sought out Madge, fairly bristling with excitement.

"Oh, the luck of it," he cried. "My partner sent me a telegram. They have discovered a rich vein back in the mountain and he can sell it for more money than I ever dreamed of possessing."

"What good news," fluttered the delighted Madge, "and now—"

"I shall stay, because I think you would have it so. Madge, am I guessing right?"

"It is no guess," replied Madge in a low intense tone. "Oh, Vance, you deserve the happy fortune that has come to you this blessed Christmas day."

And there was no thought of another parting. Those two earnest, lov-

What of the empty, raggedy stockings
That will hang by the chimney on Christmas eve,
With their mute appeals from the poor little owners
To the dear old Santa in whom they believe?

For their share of his presents they ask such a little,
"Just a dolly to hold in my arms while I sleep,
A little tin auto that runs when you wind it,
A sounding red drum or a woolly white sheep."

The only light in their dim, dark existence
Is that wonderful day when old Santa will come
With his treasure filled pack that he brings on his back
From his fairyland, snowland, soylund home.

What beautiful dreams will come to them sleeping
Under the coverlet shabby and worn;
But what of the empty, raggedy stockings
That will hang by the chimney on Christmas morn?

MRS. H. C. SEARCY, in the Chicago Tribune.

CHRISTMAS DOES NOT STAND ALONE

IF CHRISTMAS stood alone it would be an idle mockery.
But it does not stand alone.
It is part of a year. Yet it is a peculiar part. It is that brief period in which the child rules the world.

It marks nowadays the culmination of a civilization which has had a leading principle. The selfish, the hard, the grasping and the unsparring are out and apart that one week from the great flowing tide of the development of the world's progress. The man or woman who does not know this or see it or feel it is alien to the Christian spirit and to all the products wrought by the Christ spirit in the twenty centuries last past.

Christmas day, then, brings a message. But it also sings a song of hope and calls aloud a prophecy. The message is that gentleness is stronger far than force and that the greatest power on earth is the compelling power of tenderness.

Every Christmas tree is lit with that light. The great flood of presents bears this as its message. The cheer and charity of the whole season are fed by this love.

If the result of this process is only a century flower, however, or one that blooms even only once a year, then of what use is this more than that, this grotesque fact than that stranger plant? It is a curious phenomenon only, a hothouse spectacle and not an abiding food product.—Rev. Dr. David M. Steele, Philadelphia.

CELERY AND CHEESE SALAD.

Chop nicely bleached, tender celery fine and bind it together with mayonnaise. Line an ice cream dipper with cottage cheese, then fill up with the celery mixture, packing it in well. Screw out the cones on crisped lettuce leaves arranged for individual serving.

CHRISTMAS FOR THE BABIES.

Never deny the babies their Christmas! It is the shining seal set upon a year of happiness. Let them believe in Santa Claus, or St. Nicholas, or Kriss Kringle, or whatever name the jolly Dutch saint bears in your region.—Marion Hariand.

Story of the Christmas Stocking

YEARS and years ago stockings were not hung on Christmas eve as we hang them now. No one ever heard of such a thing as hanging up a stocking for Christmas gifts. And if children had thought of such a thing they would have said, "What a foolish idea! A stocking wouldn't hold half the things we want." So the children throughout the world placed crocks, big brass basins, and copper kettles on the hearth on Christmas eve and left notes in them telling Santa to fill them to the brim. Each year the children left larger vessels to be filled, and the reindeer no longer pranced and pawed, impatient to be off on Christmas eve, as they once had done. They hung their heads and a tired look came into their big brown eyes, for they remembered how heavy the loads had grown and how many more trips they were forced to make year by year.

St. Nicholas no longer rested now through the summer months, as he once had done, but labored every day throughout the year, and often he built toys late into the night, for a great many gifts had to be made to fill the baskets that the greedy children left. The twinkie left his merry eyes, and he no longer sang about his work, for he was sad and thought of the time that would come when he could no longer build enough presents to go around.

Late one December day St. Nicholas, stepped from his workshop into the deep snow. Facing the south, he stretched out his tired arms and called: "Hear, oh hear, children of the earth, my loved ones, can you not see you are becoming selfish and that your greedy demands are too great a task, even for St. Nicholas, king of the Christmas spirit? Can't you see, my children, that you are killing the spirit of Christmas?"

His chin sank upon his chest and tears glistened in his kindly eyes. A soft white snowflake fluttered down and nestled against his cheek, and a tiny voice whispered into his ear: "Santa, I will help you."

"Who are you?" asked St. Nicholas. "I am a snow fairy," answered the tiny voice. "As my sisters and I have danced about the air we have often swirled about your sleigh on Christmas eve, and have seen the great loads you have always carried and how tired you have looked."

"What, O what, shall I do?" asked Santa.

"Just go about your work as usual," answered the fairy. "I and all my sisters will help you."

"Oh, thank you—thank you," cried St. Nicholas. And the fairy floated out among the other snowflakes.

As the children went about the snowflakes whirled around them, and it seemed as if they heard the chanting of tiny voices, and as the snowflakes nestled against their ears they seemed to sing: "Just a stocking—hang a stocking up on Christmas eve." "Just a stocking—just a stocking," rang through the hearts of the children on Christmas eve. And in place of leaving the great vessels as they once had done they just hung up their stockings.

Some children were too selfish to hear the song of the snowflakes and left the great baskets as they always had done. But when they saw the great joy the unselfish children had in their gifts and how contented and happy they were these selfish ones were ashamed, and they, too, began to hang up only their stockings when Christmas eve came round.

When St. Nicholas found stockings in place of the great baskets and barrels the twinkie came again into his laughing eyes, his cheeks grew red, and he sang as he drove through the merry sea of snowflakes. With just stockings to fill St. Nicholas had time to rest, and he grew strong and well, and the spirit of Christmas lived. So this is why nowadays we hang up our stockings on Christmas eve. All this we are told by a writer, who learned it from a Christmas fairy.

HANGING UP THE STOCKING

Time-Honored Christmas Custom
Dates Back to the Days of St.
Nicholas of Padua.

FROM Italy comes the legend from which we are supposed to get the time-honored custom of hanging up the Christmas stocking.

Good old St. Nicholas of Padua used to throw long knitted purses tied at both ends, into the open windows of the very poor people. These purses were made of yarn not unlike a footless stocking. Finally it became the custom of the people to hang them outside of their window on the night before Christmas, so that St. Nicholas could put a gift into them as he passed by. By and by, when coin became scarce, toys were put in for the children, and useful presents for grown people. In the North country where it was rather chilly at Christmas time, the purses were hung on the mantelpiece, and it was believed that the good old saint would come down the chimney and fill them. When these purses were out of use, stockings were substituted and have been used ever since.

CHRISTMAS TIME IN FRANCE

Yuletide Season Great Time for Display of Green Plants; Houses Filled With Decorations.

IT IS the Le Petit Jesu that brings gifts to the French children at Christmas time. He never forgets a good child and is sure to slip something into the wooden shoe of the child if it is left at the door. He has, however, been known to leave pebbles in the shoe of one who has been naughty.

To the French, Christmas is the great time for greens. Everywhere one sees the brilliant poinsettia flower displayed. The houses are filled with mistletoe and holly, and half the fun of Christmas consists in getting the greens and decorating the houses. The houses are then ready for le Jour de l'An, or New Year's day, which is the gayest of the two festivals.

The Hodening Horse.

ABOUT the middle of the Nineteenth century it was the custom in Kent for the male farm-servants to go on Christmas eve from house to house with the hodening horse, which was an imitation of a horse's head, life size and made of wood, and fastened on a stick about the length of a broom handle. The lower jaw had hinges and was arranged by means of a cord so that it would open and close. The strongest of the lads was selected for the horse. He stooped and supported himself by holding to the stick. Then he was covered with a horse cloth, and one of his companions mounted him, and such a kicking, rearing and gnashing of teeth as there was! They made the rounds of the houses begging a gratuity.

WEYMOUTH'S TRICENTENARY

Weymouth, the second town to be founded in Massachusetts, is planning to celebrate, during the coming year, the 300th anniversary of its establishment. One feature of this celebration will be a series of entertainments, consisting of original music and original one-act plays of an historical nature to be given in various parts of the town.

The Committee in charge of this part of the Tercentenary Celebration invites all who are interested—townspeople and friends outside the town—to submit for competition short plays (preferably one act), operettas or musical comedies, songs and compositions, from which three separate entertainments can be arranged.

These compositions should have some connection in incident, character and atmosphere with historical Weymouth, so far as is practicable.

The Committee, however, is more interested in getting good plays and good music than it is in strict observance of historical fact; and authors are assured as fair judgment as is possible under the circumstances.

Authorities that may be consulted regarding Weymouth's history are "Three Episodes of Massachusetts History" by Charles Francis Adams; "History of Weymouth" by Gilbert Nash; Publications 1 and 3 of the Weymouth Historical Society, and the series of articles now appearing in the Weymouth Gazette and written by Rev. William Hyde.

All manuscript should be in the hands of the Committee by March 3, 1922. They will be judged by competent dramatic and musical authorities, and every effort will be made to give the ones selected adequate production under professional direction.

CALL ACCEPTED

Rev. Dr. Francis A. Poole of the South Congregational church, St. Johnsbury, Vt., has accepted a unanimous call to become the pastor of the Old South Union Congregational church, South Weymouth, and expects to assume his new pastorate the latter part of January.

Dr. Poole is a native of Salem, Mass., being the great-great-grandson of Rev. Manasseh Cutler, one of the foremost of the old colonial leaders of religious life. He received his Ph. D. degree at Potomac University in Washington, is a graduate of Bangor Theological Seminary, and also took special courses at the theological seminaries at Hartford, Conn., and Cambridge, Mass.

He began his pastorate at Sanford, Maine, where he was ordained in July, 1893. His other pastorates include five years at Topsfield, Mass., two years at Barre, Vt.; eight years at the Union church in Worcester, Mass., and a little over four years at the South church at St. Johnsbury. He was married in June, 1893, at Portland, Me., to Marion K. Rounds. They have two sons.

MRS. JOHN COSSABOOM

Mrs. Floretta, wife of John Cassaboom of North Weymouth, passed away at the home of her daughter Mrs. Harry Hayden in East Weymouth on Wednesday last, after a short illness. Mrs. Cassaboom was born in Digby, N. S. She became a member of the Baptist church when a young girl and remained a member there until her death. She was of a quiet and unassuming disposition, helpful and kind to all, and greatly beloved by a large circle of relatives and friends, by whom she will be greatly missed, but most of all by her own immediate family among whom she was ever the faithful wife and the devoted mother. One son, Gordon with the daughter and her husband survive her. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. E. Joseph Evans of Boston, who spoke words of comfort and hope to the bereaved relatives and friends. A trio rendered "Moment by Moment" and "Held in His Mighty Arms". A profusion of beautiful flowers attested to the high esteem of neighbors, relatives and friends. Interment was in North Weymouth cemetery beside her son Albert, who was laid to rest there thirteen years ago.

BASKETBALL

Friday evening the Weymouth A. A. basketball team entertained the University Five of Cambridge and merely held a practice session for the strenuous games of the present week. McGrory's Pets trimmed the University Five to the tune of 30 to 10. Gannon and Shields dividing the honors.

Monday night the team with about 300 royal rooters journeyed to Whitman where they played the Bridgewater Legion team. The Town Hall at Whitman was the floor selected to stage the game as a crowd of 1000 were in attendance and witnessed a fast and exciting game. The game which was fast, held the crowd in fever heat and through the faster and better team work, the local boys won. White of the Weymouth A. A. was easily the star of the evening with seven baskets to his credit. Gannon played his usual fast game and Slattery, if it is possible, gets better and better as a defensive man. Higgins smothered many plays and Capt. Curtin as usual had the big fellow's goat. For Bridgewater, Cochrane with four baskets lead his team-mates, but Kilbridge was on the job the whole evening.

The game was full of excitement and was close, but when Weymouth came on the floor in the last half widening the gap and held it. The summary:

WEYMOUTH BRIDGEWATER
Gannon rf rb Kilbridge
White lf lb Costa
Higgins c c Waits
Slattery lb lf Felman
Curtin rb rf Cochrane
Score: Weymouth 26, Bridgewater 17. Goals, Cochrane 4, Kilbridge, Curtin 2, White 7, Higgins, Gannon. Goals from fouls, Cochrane 2, Felman 2, Waits 3, Gannon 4. Referee McGrory.

The Weymouth A. A. will play Stoughton at Odd Fellows hall this evening. In the Stoughton lineup will be Hurwitz, Barret, Connell, Morley and Kamp.

Manager McGrory has arranged some interesting games to be played at East Weymouth, as follows:

Dec. 23, Stoughton
Dec. 30, Bridgewater
Jan. 6, Randolph
Jan. 13, Rockland
Jan. 20, North Easton

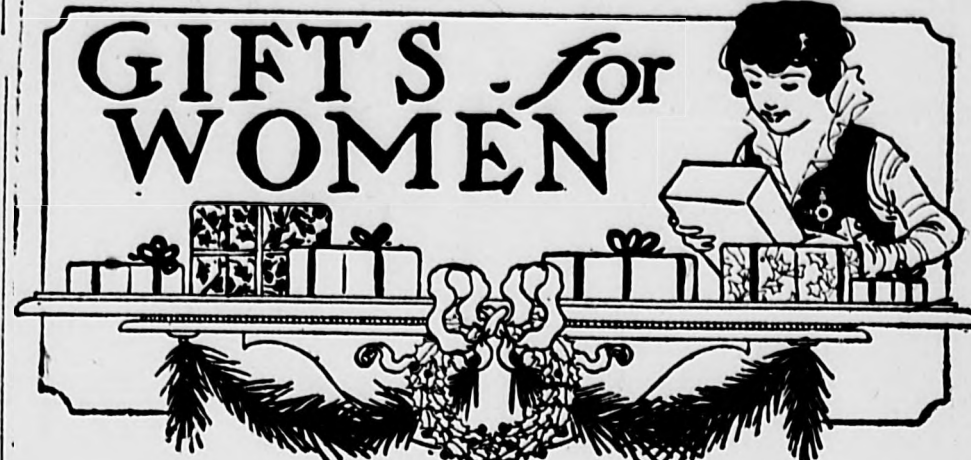

The Weymouth A. A. has thus far defeated North Cohasset, Oko, Whitman, Randolph and Bridgewater. It looks as though Weymouth has the South Shore title clinched.

MIDNIGHT FIRE LAKE SHORE PARK

The Weymouth fire department was called out at midnight for a fire that completely destroyed a cottage on Lake Shore Park Annex; the occupants, a man, wife and three children were able to flee just in time. It was necessary for John Barclay to run almost half a mile in the snow in his bare feet to ring in an alarm. The temperature was four degrees above zero.

His wife and three children were awakened by Barclay at 11 o'clock when he smelled smoke. He saw flames leaping up from the first floor. The family had barely time to escape the flames and were forced into the cold, wearing only night clothing. Barclay sent his wife and children to a neighbor's house and then ran for the fire box.

When the firemen arrived the house was a mass of flames. The damage is about $5000. Barclay is suffering from exposure.

MEETING OF SELECTMEN
The Selectmen at their meeting this week granted a third class dramatic license to sell drugs and liquors to Charles U. Heary of 512 Bridge street. Voted to accept with thanks the gift of Clarence Burgin to the town of a triangular piece of land on Wessagusset road at North Weymouth shore.

The civil service commission having approved the name of Charles W. Dunham as dealer of water and sewage, the license was granted to Edward W. Hunt.

Voted to set off the following streets after 3.30 P. M. for coasting: Torrey street at South Weymouth and Sea street at North Weymouth between Bay View and Shaw streets, crossing Neck street.

A class 2 garage license was granted to the Wessagusset garage, Albert H. Clapp, South Weymouth.

The Town Warrant will close Jan. 15.

The board voted to visit on Jan. 2 the Braintree Town Home, where 12 Weymouth people are inmates.

The board is receiving an unusually large number of requests for fuel and assistance.

The Electric Light Company was granted location on Putnam and Shawmut streets.

Next meeting Jan. 3.

NEW TRIAL NOT WARRANTED

No one should pass judgment in the Sacco-Vanzetti murder case without reading in full the review of the case by Judge Thayer, who has denied a new trial which was asked on the ground of insufficiency of evidence and technicalities of law. Law abiding citizens believe that in every particular the defendants had a fair trial.

Judge Thayer refused to set aside the jury's verdict. In an exhaustive review of all the evidence, touching on the most important points claimed by both state and defense, he declared that the jury was one of the very best ever chosen for the trial of a criminal case, and pointed out that the only criticism was not against their honesty or integrity, but concerned their judgment, which, it was claimed, was unduly warped by prejudice.

After reciting the grounds on which a justice would be warranted in setting aside a jury verdict, Judge Thayer said: "I cannot find that the jury either mistook or abused their trust. There was no evidence produced at the hearings upon the motions for new trials that even tended in the least degree to prove that the jury abused their trust."

DISASTROUS FIRE AT QUINCY

Beautiful Building of Mutual Furniture Corporation Is Flat and Surrounding Buildings Also Destroyed--- Aid from Boston and Milton--Zero Weather

Not until after 9 o'clock this morning were electric cars run over the Quincy avenue route between Quincy and Weymouth, because of a disastrous fire on Hancock street, Quincy, which blocked that street to all travel--pedestrians and autos, as well as electric cars and other conveyance.

The fire started about 2 A. M. in the vicinity of the beautiful Mutual Furniture Corporation pictured on this page, probably in a new fruit store in the next building or in a garage in the rear.

The Mutual building was burned flat, also the fruit store, the garage and adjoining clothing store and storage buildings. The Plummer of Jenness house was gutted.

The flames also crossed Hancock street and gutted the "Whicher" house and damaged the G. A. R. hall building and the Churchill house and threatened the Moose building.

Chief Meade summoned assistance from Boston and Milton and it was not until 7 A. M. that the fire was under control. The loss may exceed $100,000.

Poles carrying a large number of lines were burned off and the wires fell, endangering the work of the firemen. The H. & L. auto truck of the Quincy department was badly burned.

No cars have yet been run through Hancock street. The first car to Weymouth came from the South Braintree car barn, but it was necessary for a large gang of men to pick the ice from the rails on Quincy avenue before it could come through, as water from the hose froze on the tracks. The ice-coated buildings made a pretty scene.

BRIDGE HEARING

Hearing on the apportionment of the cost of the Monaquot bridge have been continued this week at Quincy, and may require several weeks, adding to the already excessive cost of the bridge, Judge Halloran of Norwood is representing the Norfolk County Commissioners.

On Tuesday Hartley L. White, the engineer in charge of construction described at length the elements that entered into the cost, and the Gazette hopes to give an extended synopsis of his evidence next week.

—Rev. William Hyde is furnishing considerable good material for historical plays in his "Early History of Weymouth."

ONE FOOT ON THE GROUND.
Euthusiasm is fine. So is idealism. So is optimism. So is faith. So is vision. So are a whole lot of other things. But always keep one foot on the ground, says Forbes Magazine. Too many of us are given to flying to extremes. We lack ballast. We often let our dreams run away with us. We lose all sense of perspective and proportion. When things are going well with us we conclude that they will always continue to do so, and we accordingly neglect to provide safeguards against reversal of fortune. The business concerns which are in direct straits today are those that overshoot the mark most during the boom. They failed to look ahead. They reckoned upon prosperity lasting forever. A good many of us do the same thing. After all, plain, ordinary gumption is the greatest asset in the world. Gumption embraces level-headedness, judgment, stability, power to hold on, rational but not blind optimism, reasonable but not unreasonable self-reliance, alertness to the value of looking before you leap, and of counting the cost before you run up a hill. Let us philosophize; yes. But let us not forget that before we can philosophize fruitfully, we must first buckle down to the workaday task of earning a living.

Sixty-nine vacancies at West Point indicate that the young man of today does not consider that an army career offers many inducements to a live and ambitious person.

A Harvard professor says that dancing is an instinct like eating and fighting. That puts jazzing into the same class with gorging and murder.

A child in Dublin found a bomb and handed it to a policeman, who threw it into the street, exploding it and wounding five persons. Bring forth the ivory diadem and put it on him.

Tires purchased in the United States by France and deteriorated by long and poor storage are reported to be finding their way back to this country. If this is true, we shall hear from it.

A New York man who fell 16 stories down an elevator shaft was taken to a hospital to ascertain if he had been hurt. Perhaps they felt that there was a possibility that he had been jarred.

One other remarkable thing about the spring is what appears to be a growing tendency among motorists to stay off the railroad track until the train has passed.

A flight in an airplane restored his speech to a man who for eight months had been unable to talk. He was up 14,000 feet, to which point, it appears, he rose to remark.

Forty thousand seals already have been captured by the Newfoundland fleet, according to an item of news of the kind that women like to be all wrapped up in.

Among other great improvements which this generation enjoys and former generations did not dream of is the rapid-fire breakfast grapefruit.

The fact that the men's Bible classes in all the churches are growing is an indication that the world is not growing all worse.

All members of the Sons of Rest in government service should be required to wear rubber heels to save wear and tear on the mahogany.

Verdun objects to being so much decorated. The landscape will presently consist mostly of monuments.

PLEASANT STREET

Dedicated to the Norfolk Club

Pleasant Street ought to begin at the depot
Or not begin at all. So, there!
For after climbing to Columbian Square
One feels so angry and blue
That thoughts of anything Pleasant
Are farthest from the mind.

Up to Independence Square
All is lovely, so to speak,—
A vista of stately elms,
And comfort on either side.
Of course the sidewalk is bum.
But that is true of all our concrete:
South Weymouth is where the amateur Concretist comes to practice.

At Independence Square the mess begins;
(The word "commences" would fit better)
And is consistently kept up
As far as "Bailey Green" anyway.
One side suffers the most,
And gives the innocent observer
More than a verbal shock.
"Shoe-box architecture" is a mild one
To apply to the shacks on P—1 S—t.

About everything is made over, or looks so.
And "Niz" Curtis having a barn
That wears a dignity of its own,
Some German revisiting via Chicago
Buys it and plays at carpentry.
Before those queer bow-windows cut the view
Other shocks were less sudden;
But this store squatting on the sidewalk
Takes the particular plum bun,
And no two ways about it.

Just across Curtis Ave. there Is "Confusion worse confounded."
And if it weren't for the wonder
Of a "Wey. granite" front by Dondero
The place would be hopeless.

Just you think of that Italian man
Who came years ago; sold bananas
And raised up a nice family,
Making merchants and a lawyer out of them.
Say—that's a lesson to the old stock,—

And if Dondero's store on P—1 S—t
Puts to shame adjacent fix-ups,
We hope 'twill be the opening wedge
Of better shops 'n things in Sou. Wey.

On the other side of Pleasant Street
The outward show is excellent;
Even motorists are quite proud
To drive by such buildings;
But we hear yarns in undercurrent,
Of poor hickies That When

And if any bank erects a fancy "nose"
On the Marsh lot to spite its narrow—Gauge "face" in the said block,
'Twill be a sad blow to fair dealing
In local affairs, and show to the world
How small-town conservatism sometime Operates to disgust the people.

Pleasant Street ought to be "all wool"
And many yards wide, so to say;
It ought to meander along—
An urge to public sentiment;
But it got a bad start years ago
Because the town was blind to details
Of building and beauty. Forgetting How Nathaniel Shaw planted elms a Hundred years ago on Main Street;
How the Improvement Club pulled fences down
And made the Village noteworthy in many ways.

But Pleasant Street, holding our text in view,
Shows more weird buildings than most anywhere;
Recent inflection heaps on more Blemishes and discouragement,
And if it were not for Dondero
And his little parti-colored front
Our blamed P—1 S—t wouldn't be worth—Writing about—even in bad Free Verse.

FINE COLONIAL HOME FOR FARM

Beautiful, Yet Inexpensive Because of Simple Design.

ALL COMFORTS OF CITY HOME

House Shown Here Is Good Example of Modern Tendency in Farm Home Construction—Arranged to Lessen Housework.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.
Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 137 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

"Like old wine, they grow better with age," is what most people think of the colonial house. It has thrived for a century and a half and is still as popular as ever. In cities, in towns and in the country this delightfully hospitable type of home has a grip on the hearts of the people. Its charm lies in its quiet dignity and simplicity of style. It is beautiful, yet inexpensive because of its simple design.

There is plenty of room for the colonial house on the farm. For so many years the farmer has put up with such limitations in housing facilities that he is entitled to the best there is. During the early days of pioneering when he was trying to make his little stake pay, he had little money to spend on a real home so he contented himself with a makeshift shelter. His wife had to work hard to keep the family together. It did not take long, however, for the children to learn of the advantages of city life, and the great exodus started, they wanted attractive comfortable homes with some of the conveniences that make life worth while and not being able to get them in the country they went to the cities. The housing problem became one of the vital ones in country sections.

Second Floor Plan.

Kitchen is the washroom, an important room in the farm home where the men coming from the field can wash up prior to entering the kitchen. There is also a small storeroom next to the washroom.

Plenty of bedrooms are needed in the farm home to take care of the extra workers in the busy season. There are four large bedrooms on the second floor of this house. And most important is the modern bathroom with complete fixtures. Water is supplied from a water supply system. There is electric light throughout, in this case, perhaps, supplied by a feed wire running near the house. Light and power can also be obtained by a private electric lighting plant. The bedrooms are especially light and cheerful, having windows on two sides.

There is something quaint and appealing about this type of home. It is ideal for the farm because it is roomy, comfortable and not pretentious at all. Moreover, it is economical to build. It is 40 feet wide and 24 feet deep. The side porch is 20 feet wide. The two side bedrooms have doors opening out onto the balcony.

SAND KILLS FOREST TREES

Coos Bay Dunes in Oregon Have Made a Desert of Once Heavily Wooded Land.

In few places is the destruction of forests by sand more impressive than among the dunes of Coos bay, in southwestern Oregon. Approaching the entrance of Coos bay, one sees to the south a succession of bold headlands covered by forest of fir and spruce, and to the north miles of rolling sand dunes stretching inland like a desert, with patches of willow and beech plants here and there, and in the distance clumps of trees and even large areas of forests making a last stand against the encroaching dunes.

The destruction of the forests there by shifting sands seem all the more remarkable when one considers that the region is excessively humid. One observer reports that in August and September, when he was there, not one day in five was it dry enough and the wind right and strong enough to move the sand. When a dry day comes, however, and the wind is strong from the west, the sand flows at so great a rate that it will cover a six-inch log in the lee of a dune in less than an hour.

The sand laden wind makes curious etchings on sticks and timber and eventually wears away all the wood except the knots. The forests consist mainly of Douglas fir, Sitka spruce, Port Oxford cedar and western red cedar within the area of the dunes and exist now only in patches, almost always in depressions, the former level of the ground. As the wind builds up the advancing crests of the dunes, it often hollows behind them and exposes the skeletons of a dead forest. When the hollows are large, a green, grassy meadow, the home of numerous moist, sand-loving plants, spring into being.

World's Coal Consumption.

In normal times the world's approximate consumption of coal amounts to 1,200,000,000 tons, of which total Great Britain normally produces about 275,000,000 tons. The normal domestic and industrial consumption of coal each year in Great Britain is 190,000,000 tons; the rest of Great Britain's production is exported.

Do You Pay Your Bills?

Being One of a Series of Talks on Bills and the Prompt Payment of Them.

Do You Owe Any Bills That Are Overdue?

"Let's Have an Understanding"

No credit man will turn a debtor down who tells the TRUTH. For TRUTH is the foundation of CREDIT.

You owe an account—YOU have owed it for several months—it is long past due—YOU want to pay it—circumstances, perhaps, have been against you—then in all fairness to the credit man, make a frank statement of your conditions.

You will find the credit man willing to help the honest debtor, if he can. More often his hands are tied. The debtor will not make any attempt to make PROMPT PAYMENT of his account. He, therefore, can not expect any consideration at the hands of the Credit Man.

If you are not willing to make a "clean breast" of your actual conditions, you have not good reason for thinking you will receive any consideration at the hands of the credit man.

It is useless to dodge the issue, for every credit man in Plymouth County and Norfolk County are acquainted with your method of paying credit obligations. He knows just how you stand with every firm doing business in both counties.

If you don't pay—if you won't be honest enough to give the facts—if you don't make any effort whatever to reduce your indebtedness, you may be sure that the credit man is "GOING AFTER" the money due his firm.

Sometimes drastic measures are necessary to collect an account. You can save yourself lots of trouble and much embarrassment by paying your bills promptly, or by giving the credit man valid reasons for your delinquency.

SERVICE STAR LEGION
Old Colony chapter wishes to thank the many friends who, by their generous assistance, enabled us to fulfill the task we set ourselves, i. e. that of furnishing complete sets of clothing for eight needy World War veterans, who are at Parker Hill and West Roxbury hospitals. These men received coats, shoes, suits, shirts, socks, underwear, collars, collar buttons, cuff buttons, neckties, handkerchiefs, smokes and fruit. Much good clothing was donated by people of Braintree and Weymouth. One Braintree friend gave $10, Weymouth Special Aid gave $20, South Weymouth Special Aid gave $25.

Mrs. Billings feels that this is the best Christmas work we have done in that the actual good accomplished is very great, as was the need.

There still remains one man in another hospital who is in great need and Miss Billings will endeavor to send him an outfit soon.

THE COPLEY THEATRE

Three comedies of the many that delighted English playgoers of a century and more ago with their sparkling humor and pictures of the life of the time survive on the stage of today. They are Sheridan's "The Rivals" and "The School for Scandal" and Oliver Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer." All of them have been received with favor on several occasions as acted by the Henry Jewett Repertory Company "The School for Scandal" only a few weeks ago having been received for a second time here to a greater appreciation than ever before.

"She Stoops to Conquer," it will be remembered, was acted at the Copley for two weeks last season and so cordially was it welcomed and re-welcomed that it will be given there again next week. Time has not withered nor custom staled its perennial humors. It is as much a masterpiece today as it was a century and a half ago.

SHUBERT THEATRE

"Irene" is classed with the three or four big musical hits of the last 20 years. It is nothing in the world but that wonderful, bewildering thing charm, a quality that it is as hard to put your finger on as a perfume. But audiences always quickly recognize and love to be mastered by sheer charm, when it sweeps over the footlights and takes their hearts by storm. The book by James Montgomery is a human document of wit and naturalness that could stand by itself, but to it fittingly is a tuneful, rollicking score by Harry Tierney and some particularly attractive lyrics by Joseph McCarthy. The song-hits include "Alice Blue Gown," "We're Getting Away With It," "Irene" and "The Last Part of Every Party," all with ravishing dance accompaniments.

On its return visit to Boston at the Shubert theatre it is proving even a greater success than at the Wilbur theatre, where it was the sensation of Boston for eight weeks, over a year ago.

WILBUR THEATRE

Alice Delysia, heralded by reports from London, Paris and New York as being an attractive and unique musical comedy star will be seen for the second and last week at the Wilbur theatre, Boston, beginning with a New Year's Day matinee on Monday, Jan. 2. She is appearing under the direction of F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest. This is her first appearance in Boston. Mlle. Delysia's offering is an intimate musical extravaganza "Algar" in which she appeared at the London Pavilion, London, and the Folies Bergere, Paris, and all last season at the Central theatre, New York.

The book of "Algar" is by Fred Thompson and Worton David and the music is by Charles Cuiviller, composer of "The Lillad Domina." The scenes of the play are laid in northern Africa and the incidents concern the adventures of a certain English Lord, who becomes a Moor in order to have a harem of 30 wives.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE

With a special Monday matinee, celebrating the New Year, Mr. William Hodge will begin his second week at the Plymouth theatre in his latest success "Dog Love," originally known as "Beware of Dogs," which title Mr. Hodge changed as he thought that the title was misleading. The usual Thursday and Saturday matinees will be given.

Mr. Hodge was welcomed here this past week by his many admirers and all seemed to like his new play, which was written by himself, quite as well even if not better than his previous efforts.

The sage who observed that dog is man's best friend did not reflect the opinion of George Oliver, the character portrayed by Mr. Hodge in his new play "Dog Love." Not by a long shot. For it seems Mr. Oliver's experience in conducting a dog farm led him to entirely different conclusions.

ST JAMES THEATRE

"Three Live Chests" is essentially a play of characters. It is probably the most original in theme and plot of any of the plays written in recent years. It is the funniest of comedies, the most dramatic of melodramas, and the most mystifying of mystery plays all in one that has ever been presented on the stage. It has been selected by the Boston Stock Co. for presentation at the St. James theatre, as a foretaste of the many good things in store for the patrons of that theatre during the New Year.

The play is alive with thrilling situations that are tensely interesting and gloriously funny. There are detectives from America and Scotland Yard and there is love and laughter in abundance from curtain rise to curtain fall.

CHATS WITH YOUR GAS MAN

You buy a simple article and the price makes you gasp. "Who's getting the big profit?" you ask. "I'm not," replies the retailer and he points to the wholesaler; the wholesaler to the jobber; the jobber to the manufacturer and the manufacturer to the laborer.

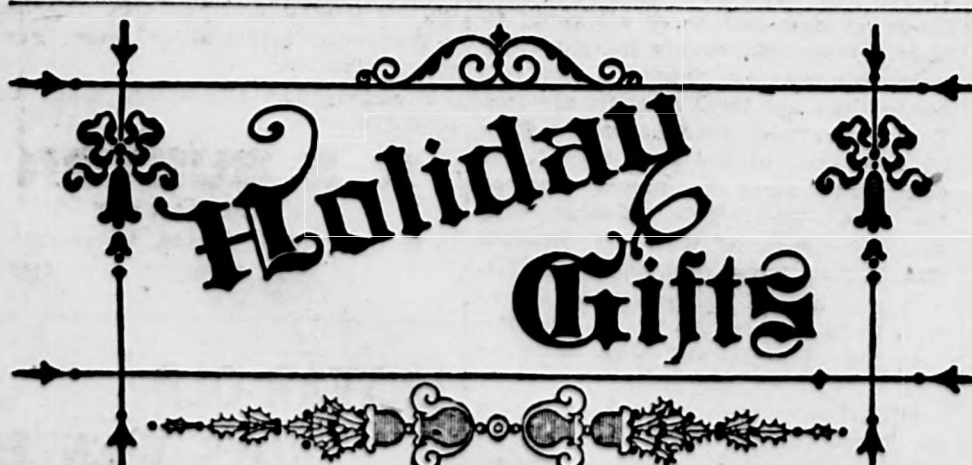

The same old chain, with a profit on every link. Is all business like that? Must we pay two, three or four profits on everything we buy?

No indeed. Here is your gas company selling you service; delivering gas direct from the plant, right to the point of use in your home, without middlemen or middlemen's profits, and with every item of its cost regulated by your trusted representatives.

And seldom indeed does the profit of a Gas Company exceed 8% on the money actually invested. Frequently it is less.

What other business renders so complete a service at so small a return?

The Oldest Man in the World.

Just part of a skull, two molar teeth and a thigh bone! Pieced together they made what? One of the most perplexing mysteries in the study of human history. Were these the remains of an ape-like man who lived 500,000 years ago? Scientists believe that they were; they call him the "Dawn Man," and out of the record embedded in the rocks they have reconstructed the conditions of his life. How he killed his food and tore the raw flesh from the bones; how he married and fought and died! How little by little he clawed and clutched his way up to mastery over the beasts. It is a fascinating, gripping story, but it is only one of a thousand stories that stir your blood in this greatest book of modern times.

H. G. WELLS' "Outline of History"

Now Offered You at One-Third the Original Price

A history that goes back 100,000 years—that traces man's rude beginnings 500,000 years ago—that follows him down through the ages to the dawn of modern civilization. The story of the world's progress, from the first man to the present day. The story of the world's progress, from the first man to the present day. The story of the world's progress, from the first man to the present day.

Not only the history of the world, but the science of the world; the outstanding literature of the world; the philosophy of the world—a vast panorama unraveled before your eyes by the most graphic word painter of modern times.

And the REVIEW of REVIEWS too! Wells begins with the dawn of time; before there were men; before there were even reptiles. In broad, magnificent strokes he paints the picture, bringing you straight down to 1921. Alexander passes on the screen; and Nero; and Charlemagne and Napoleon; and George Washington; and Abraham Lincoln; and the great men of the world today. Never a dull moment. Never a paragraph that is not a revelation.

And where Wells stops the Review of Reviews takes up the story. His is the history of the past; the Review of Reviews reveals the future. It is a story that these two should be read together. By taking them we are able to offer you an educational course each at 25c.

Send No Money! Merely clip and mail the coupon below. Your copy of Wells' will go forward immediately, as agreed. Did it not? You may never have another chance!

THE LITTLE GIRL.

Mr. Wood Elf and the boy and girl heard someone crying. They hurried along in the deep passes between two rows of small mountains.

Mother Gossip hurried along, too. She was hoping to find out enough to make a good gossip story. Her lips were curling, it seemed, more than ever. And her eyes looked hard and like sharp, bright bits of steel.

At last they came nearer and nearer the crying. And there, near the road, they saw a girl. She was not very big and was not very old, and she was crying bitterly.

In front of her stood Mother Gossip's eldest daughter named I-Make-It-A-Point-To-Repeat-Mean-Things. She looked just as mean as could be, because she was pretending she was friendly and she looked so like a humbug! And too, she looked as pleased as she could be.

"Well, you foolish little girl," she was saying, "you don't know who is your friend."

"What do you mean?" asked Mr. Wood Elf. "I never knew you could be a friend to anyone."

"Of course I'm her friend," said I-Make-It-A-Point-To-Repeat-Mean-Things. "I told her that I had heard something about her, but that I didn't believe it, and that I stood up for her like a friend."

"You Wretch."

"Oh, you wretch," shouted Mr. Wood Elf. "If there is one person I hate more than any other in your abominable and objectionable and horrible family, it is you."

"I tried to do a friendly act," answered Mother Gossip's eldest daughter.

"Of course she did," said Mother Gossip. "This is very nice. And don't sob, little girl, but come, tell me all about it. Confide in me."

"Yes, you want her to tell you, so you can tell her story and add to it all around. I won't let you do that," said Mr. Wood Elf. "I'll see to that. Now, little girl, what really happened?"

The little girl had dried her eyes. "I met this young lady," she said. "I mean, this old lady," for Mother Gossip's eldest daughter now looked very old. She was quite old, for that matter, and Mother Gossip's children look pretty old after they've been seen for a time.

"And," continued the little girl, after swallowing hard so as not to start crying again, "she told me something which wasn't true about me which someone had said. And oh, I felt dreadful. She said she was telling it to me for my own good. She said she was my friend and that she had stood up for me. But oh, I'm so unhappy to think such a thing was said about me."

"Yes," said Mr. Wood Elf, "of course you were, but you're going to cheer up now and we're all going to have a moonlight supper tonight away from this horrible family. My two companions are tired of them already. They never were fond of such a family, not even of the ones they'd met and didn't know by name. And as for the Tattle-Tale Twins—well, they'd be enemies with my companions if they knew each other forever."

"I just have a few words to say to Miss I-Make-It-A-Point-To-Repeat-Mean-Things, and then we'll be off."

"You know," he continued, pointing his finger straight at Mother Gossip's daughter, "there is no excuse for you, not a scrap."

"You thought you were making yourself out to be very fine when you said you had stood up for her, and that you were telling it to her for her own good."

"You thought it made you seem so noble to say you stood up for her, didn't you? I've my doubts about you standing up for her in the first place, but that isn't the important thing. Anyone who is a friend will stand up for his friend or her friend without saying so. It is quite unnecessary, quite. And no person is a friend who repeats mean things."

"I like the person who makes the mean speeches even better than I do the one who repeats them."

They left then for happier adventures.

Boston Founded By Weymouth Settlers

EARLY HISTORY OF WEYMOUTH

By Rev. William Hyde

No. 17—Weymouth and Boston

It would be a grand thing if we had the names of all the settlers who came to Wessagusset in the Gorges ships, but so far the sailing list has not been found—if it has been searched for.

Among the Colonial Papers and Manifestoes of the King in the British Museum, there is a paper (No. 275) concerning the passengers on board Sir Ferdinando Gorges ships for New England, and the preservation of the list, but it seems no one has copied the paper.

It is supposed that the sailing list of the passengers on the Gorges ships was lost in the same fire that destroyed the Weston list. I have already given the names of some of the Gorges passengers, but I suppose others could be obtained in the same way that those on Weston's ships were obtained. This would require much time, as the lists and musters of Virginia, Maine, Maryland and New Hampshire would have to be read over page by page, so as to find each name and the writer of these articles has not yet had the time.

We have enough names of those who settled in Wessagusset, however, to know that theirs was a permanent settlement and also its effect on Boston Bay. We have seen that Blackstone removed to Boston and became its first settler; that Walford settled at the mouth of the Mystic in Charlestown.

Thomas Morton came with Captain Wollaston's company to New England in 1625. Morton having been in Wessagusset with the Weston Company both in summer and winter had taken a great liking to the country. He had seen it in the beauty of June and had wandered through the forests of Wessagusset in July and August and he had seen these forests in the rich mellow tints of autumn and he knew the waters to be full of fish and the woods alive with birds and beast and to him it was a fisherman and hunter's paradise. He had filled Captain Wollaston with enthusiasm by his descriptions of this wondrous country and because of that the Wollaston Company was formed.

Morton acted as guide, hence they came to the region with which he was familiar, but as Wessagusset was already occupied they selected a place near it and called it Mount Wollaston after their leader's name.

The original name of the place was Passonageset and in time it became Eraintree and then Quincy and as it became a neighbor to Wessagusset
there was visiting back and forth.

Captain Wollaston became tired of the life and went back to Virginia and then to England, and in due course of time Morton became the head of the settlement, and thus we may speak of Eraintree being settled by a man from Weymouth.

Then Maverick went to what is now Chelsea. David Thompson settled first at Squantum and then on what is now called Thompson's Island. Thomas Gray, John Gray and Walter Knight settled at Nantasket or Hull, which they had bought from the Indian Chickatabot.

Another man connected with the Gorges Company was Sir Christopher Gardiner, Knight, a member of the Gloucester family of that name, and who claimed to be a relative of Bishop Gardiner. He was connected with the Council for New England, and is supposed to have been a member of the Gorges Company. When he came out in 1630 and settled at the mouth of the Neponset, he came as the agent of Sir Ferdinando Gorges to look after his interests, and perhaps to put a difficulty in the way of Winthrop when he came.

Sir Ferdinando Gorges was in a contest all the time to preserve the grant he had from the Government, as his enemies were working against him in Parliament, and in other ways to deprive him of his charter in order to get grants for themselves or their friends.

Sir Ferdinando's great aim was the settlement of Boston, but for lack of money and the opposition of enemies he was unable to carry out his plan and thus he tried in a small way to cover the ground and hold his charter.
Leonard Peddock, one of the passengers on Weston's ships settled on an island in Boston harbor, after removing from Wessagusset, which island was named after him, Peddock's Island and he makes another of those who settled around Boston, who were first in Wessagusset.

In the calendar of Colonial State Papers, 1574—1660, there is the following item, Nov. 19, 1622:

SMALL FUR GARMENTS JOIN SCARFS AND CAPES

IN THE list of small fur garments, which includes scarfs, capes and garments with sleeves, scarfs lead by a long way in popularity. The scarf, in its smaller sizes, is an all-the-year-round convenience, less costly than its rivals that consume more fur and more time in their making, but quite as becoming as any of them. It is much in evidence just now with tailored suits and dresses and nearly all these small scarfs are made of dark or stone marten, mink or fox, in one or two-skin pieces.

These same furs, supplemented by sealskin, squirrel, kolinsky, mole and other pelts make the ample scarfs, wide and long, to be worn with muffs in colder weather, and between the extremes of the choker and the long scarf there are a few shaped scarfs somewhat like little capes at the back but having scarf ends. In all scarfs little heads and the natural tails are employed as a finish, but a few models substitute pompons of fur for tails and simply round off the end where one would look for the head.

Sealskin and moleskin are particularly well adapted to small wraps that are something between a cape and a coat, like the handsome garment pictured, and in these rich little affairs the collar is apt to be in a different fur.

HIS LAUNDRY.

A poet went to stay at a hotel. He was short of money, but was expecting a check any day. One morning he rang the bell and a bellhop answered.
"Boy," he said, "have you seen anything of my laundry?"
"Your laundry?" inquired the boy in astonishment. "Why, you've only had one shirt since you've been here."
"That," said the poet with overwhelming dignity, "is the one to which I refer."

'Not Worth It.

"Uncle, I think you're a Christian of the first water."

"Why so?"

"You seem to get very angry at that flavor of yours, but I never heard you swear at it."

"Humph! That's easily explained.
It isn't worth a —."

Would Go No Farther.

Smith—May I make a confidant of you?

Jones—Why, certainly.

Smith—Well, I'm hard up and want $20.

Jones—You can trust me. I am as silent as the grave. I have heard nothing.—Stray Stories.

With the Corner of His Eye.

A Scotch laborer was slipping out of the yard during working hours to wet his whistle when he ran into the boss.
"Hallo!" said the latter pleasantly;
"were you looking for me?"
"Ay," replied Sandy, "I wls lookin' for ye, but I didna want to find ye."

F.M. RISKY

"Have a cigarette, old man."

"No, thanks, I don't smoke fool-killers."

"Well, you're wise in not taking any chances."

Quite the Opposite.

When the sky breeze blows off a hat,
Bystanders often notice that
The owner makes while chasing it Remarks that are not chaste a bit.

Her Logic.

Mrs. A (at resort)—Doesn't it worry you to write to your husband for more money?

Mrs. B—Not at all. If he is having a good time he owes it to me, and if he isn't having a good time he has saved it, so why should I worry?

How It Was.

"How did it come, sah, dat dat little, sawed-off, runty culler done clumb all over yo' and twell yo' gapped?"

"Uh, well, sah; nigh postulate it, dat small gen'lman a little too much for me."

Adding Insult to Injury.

"You pay a dollar for a cover charge," the waiter explained.

"I can't blame you for wishing to cover what you put on the table here," the guest replied, "but darned if I can see why I ought to pay for the lid."

Economies.

"Does your wife take an interest in economy?"

"Yes," replied Mr. Growcher. "She thinks I ought to be able to make a lunch of a piece of lettuce and a spoonful of ice cream the same as she can."

TESTED

"I can't use this much bread in one day. Will it keep for two days?"
"Lady, my bread'll keep two weeks.
I've tried it with them very loaves I'm sellin' you now."

Too True.

I cannot sing the old songs
Tho' their words I well recall—
I cannot sing the old songs
'Cause I can't sing at all!

Too Slow.

"I guess I didn't entuse enough over the first kiss."
"What do you mean, girl?"
"Charlie was pretty slow. I was ready for it two years before it happened."

Depressing Conditions.

Doctor—Your trouble is dyspepsia;
you should laugh heartily before and after your meals.

Patient—Impossible, doctor. I cook them myself and then I wash the dishes.

A Parting Shot.

Madge—I'll never speak to you again; not if it would save my life.
Marie—That's an easy bluff to make for anyone that has nine lives.

Denied It.

"So you said to Brown that I was a liar?"
"On the contrary, I said to him that liar was no name for you."

CHRISTMAS PARISH PARTY

The Sunday School of the Union Church gave a Christmas party to the entire parish on Friday evening, Dec. 23. There was an attendance of over 300, to see the big Christmas tree, 30 feet high, bespangled with a hundred fancy colored lights and surrounded by a big electric star. Santa Claus arrived to distribute the presents after several thrilling adventures acted in the comedy: "Trouble in Santa Claus Land." The cast was as follows:

Santa, Frederick Tarbox.
Mrs. S. Claus, Mrs. J. Herbert Walsh.
The Spirit of Christmas, Miss Beatrice Charlesworth.

The "wicked" Imps, Robert Bates, George Charlesworth, Christopher Garland, Robert Moulton, Theo Long and Arthur Justice.
The "good" fairies, Dorothy Newcomb, Faylyn Newcomb, Ruth Sweet, Annia Oliver, Phillis Long, Evelyn Barham.
Director, Miss Alice Charlesworth.
Music, Miss Eleanor Walker.
Harold Lane and Ralph Chadbourne were in charge of the electrical effects and Newman Page of the Christmas tree. Games were enjoyed by the children, young and adult; then followed the distribution of gifts.

Santa Claus presented the minister a purse of $58 as a token of love from his parish who replied with a few words of thankfulness for the splendid fellowship and co-operation throughout the year. Mr. Troy was thanked to the platform and given a mysterious looking envelope as token of the gratitude for his faithfulness as sexton. After much mirth and Christmas good cheer, the evening's festivities closed with a right "Merry Christmas" on everyone's lips and in everyone's heart.

BRO. BITTENDER

The newspapermen will miss Bro. Fred W. Bittender, the business manager of the Old Colony Memorial of Weymouth, one of the most enterprising and successful weekly newspapers in Massachusetts. All were shocked to learn of his sudden death following an operation. Such gentlemen lend an inspiration to the profession, and it was a great loss to the newspaper field and his death will be a great loss to Weymouth as a town and to editors with whom he associated.

C. M. A. VICTORY

At the Clapp Memorial Building last night the C. M. A. five defeated the Mitchell Freeman 28 to 22. Great work was done by Johnson, Spallino and A. Cicchese.

SANG AT HOSPITALS

Because of the storm, the Concorde Male Quartet was not permitted to sing Christmas carols on Christmas Eve as scheduled, but the quartet did sing at the Norfolk county hospital at Braintree and the City Hospital at Quincy, carrying good cheer.

C. M. A. NOTES

Irving Keene, familiarly known as "Rum" Hackenschmidt" has been persuaded by his friends to enter the wrestling game. Followers of Keene think that their idol would cause a sensation in the amateur ranks if he follows up the game.

OLD ARNOLD TAVERN

This week work was commenced raising the old "Arnold Tavern," next to the office of the Gazette and Transcript. A sign on the building says it was built in 1734. Another sign says it was the meeting place of the Committee on Public Safety in 1775.

Although built as early as 1734, most of the timbers are well preserved, especially the oak hewn trees which supported the first floor. Only the front part of the building near the street has a cellar. One of the boards taken out was 36 inches wide and quite a number 23 inches and 30 inches. The laths are hand hewn or split. A study of the construction is of interest.

Referring to the volume of Reminiscences by Edward Soper Hunt on Weymouth Ways and Weymouth People, published about 1907 we find a good photograph of the "Arnold Tavern" and a brief paragraph:

"Opposite the residence of Mr. Francis H. Cowing on Commercial street, stands one of the oldest houses in the town. It is the old Arnold house, said to have been built in 1698. Here the Committee of Correspondence met in 1775. Later it was a hotel, but in my boyhood days it was the home of Mr. Silas Binney."

"Below were the Curtis carpenter shops and the stable, both burned about 1834."

"Next stood the house of Mr. Whitcomb Porter, a prominent man in the village, for many years engaged in the lumber business on the wharves, and in later years in the insurance business in Quincy, to which place he removed."

Many are surprised that no effort has been made to preserve this house said to be the oldest in Weymouth. The Weymouth Historical Society has not held a meeting for two months.

BRAINTREE POINT

The last snowfall put the streets in fine condition for coasting and the youngsters are busy trying out their new sleds. The grown-ups are also out (after dark) and from all indications they are enjoying themselves immensely.

The Boston sporting writers have at last woke up to the fact that Braintree has a bang-up good soccer team. Even pal George Collins opened up his heart and printed a cut of Lyons, Doherty and Hood. He also comments on the comradeship of the boys, which is one of our most valuable assets.

Red Doherty with his brilliant hair, white and blue jersey is exceedingly patriotic. Frenchy La Gocke attempted to mix it up with our Jock Davidson at Charlestown and got considerably mused up. One of the exciting features was the continual tussle between wed Eddie Bradford and big Ed Roberts. Eddie was a hummer eight years ago for Fore River and he is still humming. Ask Roberts. Church made a regular circus high dive, landing in a large juicy puddle. He came up smiling.

The fans are anxiously waiting for the next appearance of Cameron "Bees", Baldy Campbell, Ratican Murray Murray and Bob Wylie have the crowd with them. Baldy generally manages to stop a couple with his nose but then you never can hurt a Scotchman by biting his head. "Miles" McDonald is going good and when he gets so his feet will behave he will be a corker. His feet are so far from his head that it takes time to get signals down there.

Ernie Lowell has been picked to play at goal for the All-American, or United States team in their game with the Portuguese-Americans. The game is scheduled for next Monday at Sullivan Square and it will be worth going to see.

W. S. Clarke was called to Milford suddenly last Friday because of the serious illness of his father. He returned Sunday evening.

BASKETBALL

Friday night the Weymouth A. A. defeated the fast Stoughton Town team, 28 to 6. It was the second game for these two teams Stoughton having defeated Weymouth at Stoughton on Thanksgiving day. To the more than 400 fans that were in attendance the game was the fastest of the season and was a great contrast to the game of Thursday night in Rockland. The Stoughton aggregation is composed of some very fast men with the two Hurwitz boys, Bannett and Connell, but at no time were the Weymouth boys in danger.

Monday night the Weymouth team journeyed to Brockton and were defeated by the Okos in an overtime game the score being 26 to 24. At no time were either team more than three points in the lead. At the end of the first half the Okos were leading 11 to 8. And on the opening of the second half Weymouth evened up the score and for the remainder of the game the lead sea-sawed back and forth. The game was replete with rough playing and at the end of the game trouble could have been easily started owing to the intense feeling between the two teams. The summary:

OKO CLUB
Peabody, Kane rt
Mahar rt
Higgins c
C. Sheehan rb
A. Sheehan lb
Score—Goals from floor, Peabody 5, Mahar 4, Curtin 4, Mahoney 4, Cannon 2, Higgins, A. Sheehan, Kane, Slattery, Barrett. Goals from fouls, A. Sheehan 2, Referee, Reedon. Time, 20m periods, and one 5m overtime.

Tonight the Bridgewater Legion team plays the Weymouth A. A. at Odd Fellows hall.

The C. M. A. Second team journeyed to Roxbury last Saturday and were defeated by the Ford Memorial by the score of 48 to 18. The visitors played hard all the way through, but were unable to score.

The C. M. A. Juniors will have a busy week playing four times. This team including Shields, Gorman, Dunlop, Sullivan and Smith are showing pretty good basketball against their opponents.

The C. M. A. have at least one good thing and that is a scorer. The scorer is "Chick" Nightingale. He is a popular basketball scorer, he has the idea of it as good as anyone. "Chick" Nightingale is now a member of the men's class at the Clapp Memorial building. Of course "Chick" likes to play, but he would rather keep score for the boys.

Doherty of the Midgets is showing some very good shooting in the games.

ASSOCIATE G. A. R.

Reynolds Post will act on several applications for associate membership at its next meeting. Applications may be obtained at the office of the Weymouth Gazette or members of the Post.

The movement to organize an associate membership has the unanimous endorsement of Reynolds Post and they hope 100 to 200 will join. Being outside the immediate families of the G. A. R. veterans, the associates will create a new interest not only in the Grand Army, but in the Women's Relief Corps and the Sons of Veterans and Daughters of Veterans.

WEYMOUTH HIGH

Weymouth High journeyed to Belmont last Friday and came back winners by the score of 21 to 6. Capt. Gunnville of the local high school team was the individual star.

MRS. LAWRENCE DUNN

With requiem mass celebrated by her own son, Mrs. Hannah Dunn, widow of Lawrence Dunn, was laid to rest Saturday. The funeral took place at the home, 76 Lovell street, North Weymouth, and was followed by a solemn high mass of requiem at St. Jerome's church.

The celebrant of the mass was Rev. Joseph L. Dunn, a son of the deceased, who is stationed as a curate in Newburyport. The deacon was Rev. P. J. Dawson of the Immaculate Conception church, East Weymouth, the subdeacon was Rev. William Daly of Rosindale and the master of ceremonies was Rev. Gerald Fitzgerald of Brighton. Seated within the sanctuary railings were Rev. C. I. Riordon, pastor of the Immaculate Conception church, East Weymouth; Rev. Peter McCall, pastor of St. Paul's church, Hingham; Rev. Francis Shell of St. Joseph's church, West Roxbury, and Rev. Richard Quinlan of the Catholic University, Washington, D. C.

The musical portion of the mass was by the regular choir. There was a very large attendance of friends and many handsome floral remembrances. Included in the latter were massive set pieces from the employees of the Weymouth telephone exchange, the employees of the Edwin Clapp factory, the employees of Alden, Walker & Wilde; Quincy Lodge of Elks, the employees of the Dominion Collection Agency, the employees of the American Chemical Co., the Ladies Auxiliary to Div. 21, A. O. H., and Phi Sheridan Court, M. C. O. F. A burial was in St. Paul's cemetery, where prayers were read at the grave by Rev. P. J. Dawson of East Weymouth. The bearers were Dr. Michael T. Sweeney, Dr. Matthew J. Sweeney, Matthew Coleman, James Sullivan, P. J. Deering and Thomas McCue.

HUNTING LICENSES

Editor Gazette-Transcript: Next Monday is a holiday and undoubtedly many citizens will spend the day hunting or fishing through the ice. As it is the second day of January it will be necessary for each to have a new license which, like automobile licenses, are now on sale, and no excuse can be offered by those that are found without the certificate. Licenses can be obtained from the town and city clerks only, and most of these men close their office Saturday noon and unless the reader gets his new license before that time he will be out of luck for the holiday. The total revenue from hunting and fishing licenses has not equaled the amount expended for restoring the fields and streams and to make the sport self supporting the price of all licenses has been advanced. The 1922 licenses will cost as follows:

Citizen resident licenses, combination to fish, hunt and trap $2.00.
For hunting and trapping $1.

CHRISTMAS PAGEANT

The message of Christmas was given at Union church on Christmas Eve by means of the wonderful pageant written by Prof. Augustine Smith of Boston University, encompassing in dramatic form the whole gospel story beginning with the prophecies of the coming Messiah, the birth of the Saviour, the adoration of magi kings and shepherds and the spread of Christianity—"The Light from Jesus, through the World."

The showing of the pageant proper was preceded by a prelude: a recitation of the Primary children singing: "Holy Night." The auditorium is then in total darkness, when suddenly the voice of the prophet Isaiah speaks high above an altar at the same time a soft glow of light envelopes the figure of the ancient man of God and the altar flashes in red fire.

A second prophet speaks, and a third, each followed by the antiphonal by the choir: "Watchman tell us of the Night." Again, darkness. Then bursts out a bright light from the manger upon the face of the Madonna. Kneeling beside the Manger the new Spirit of Christianity lights her torch and goes out into the world to find followers of Him who is really the Light of the World.

One by one various groups come forward and kneel at the manger in consecration and light their lamps at the torch of the Spirit of Christianity. One of the most effective and touching scenes was that depicting the coming of the children to devote their lives to the service of the Saviour.

The Kindergarten tots were well trained and did beautifully. The tiniest of them being Arline Whitmarsh, 2½ years old. As the little ones knelt at the manger, they were in striking contrast to the three ancient prophets standing august above the altar, with their white beards and oriental robes.

The lighting effects were spectacular and added to the many costumes, ancient and modern, occult and orient, in producing the wonderful scenes. The prophets appeared in dim light, with the flaming red from the altar. The Madonna scene was given in blue light with the bright white light from the manger.

As the Magi Kings approached with their gifts, singing: "O Star of Wonder", above the large background of the City of Bethlehem at night which covered the organ, flashed the brilliant star. While the Magi and shepherds offered with gifts and adoration, the three platforms of the stage were flooded in red light. The coming of the Ambassadors was presented in orange light, while as the races of the world came forward and the consecration of the children at the manger was taking place, the whole scene was flooded in white light.

At the last the entire cast of 140 sang: "The Light of the World is Jesus", then the entire audience rose and joined in the great hymn: "Coronation" as the church was flooded with light and all deeply felt the meaning of Christmas in his own life: "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name."

The names of the principal members of the cast were given last week in these columns. The parts were presented seriously, each interpreting the deep meaning of the message of the pageant. It meant great sacrifice of time and effort on the part of most and the thanks of all who witnessed the beautiful presentation are due each one. Through the very impressive lesson of the coming of Jesus, all were blessed and hearts warmed to live the Light of Christ in daily lives.

Good Resolutions By Mary Graham Donner

Copyright, 1921. Western Newspaper Union.

"What about some good resolutions for the coming year?" asked daddy.

"I have one or two—that is I have made one or two which I think are good ones," said Nancy.

"So have I," said Nick. Let's hear them," said daddy, and he settled back in his chair.

"Nancy first," said Nick.

"All right," agreed daddy.

"In the first place," said Nancy, "I have made a resolution to get up when I am called in the morning and not make mother or you try to wake me up. You get all tired out. I get up in the morning, so lazy, and I think I cannot possibly get along without a little nap."

"It isn't that I haven't slept enough, or that I want to be late to school, for I don't. I love school. It's lots of fun and I like even the work, for I think it is very interesting. But there is something else about my resolution."

"What is that?" asked daddy.

"I know perfectly well that I can go back to sleep for a little while and that some one will see that I really get up in time though it often means that mother has to hurry the breakfast or that Nick has to get my books ready."

"I have known that someone would get me up and look after the things I hadn't time to do, so I have grown selfish about it. That's all. That's resolution number one."

Nick smiled, for he knew how often he had gotten Nancy's books ready. Not that he minded, but still he thought it was fine of Nancy to try to do something which would be hard for her to do. He knew that she loved a "few extra moments" in which to sleep.

"And my second resolution," said Nancy, "is to save half of every penny I get and—"

"That would be hard to do," laughed Nick. "Would you divide the pennies in half really?" he added after a moment.

"No, don't laugh at me," said Nancy. "We aren't really laughing at you at all," said daddy.

"I know it," said Nancy, smiling. "Well, I mean, as Nick knows quite well, only he is such a tease, that whenever I get some money I will save half of it. If I only get one penny at a time I will save the first penny I get and the second one will be for myself."

"All Right," Agreed Daddy.

"What are you going to save for, Nancy?" asked Nick. "Do you expect to be a penny millionaire?"

"What in the world is that?" asked Nancy.

"I thought perhaps you were trying to save a million pennies instead of a million dollars so you would be a millionaire of pennies."

Nancy and daddy laughed. But Nick said:

"Go on, Sis, I want to hear."

"I'm going to put my pennies in a bank and when the summer comes I'm going to give them to some farm for city children. Daddy gave to one last year for both of us. But I'm going to try to do my own share this year. We have a country home but there are lots of children in the city who can't have the country unless someone helps to pay their expenses."

"Great!" said Nick. "That's the right idea. Well, my resolutions don't sound so fine beside yours. But here is one: I've been thinking that sometimes there are children in the hospital here, and that it would be nice if once a week we went to see them and showed them our story books, and took them some of our toys, played games with them—quiet games like Jack Straws."

In the springtime we could take any sick children we knew of some flowers, for it must be awfully hard to be sick in the spring. And at Easter time we could take them chocolate bunnies!

"I've planned to save some of my pennies for the bunnies and sometimes for an extra treat we might take the sick children. And I've also made a resolution to never tease anyone or anything smaller than myself, for that's mean."

Daddy smiled and said, "Two resolutions to be kept are better than dozens of them forgotten the day after New Year's."

The New Year

WITH the whirling and drifting of snows
Come a breathless the wild New Year;
While bitter north wind blows,
O'er the fields that lie stark and drear.

Yet hope is alight in her eyes
As she looks from the heart of the storm,
"Earth sleeps in her shroud," she cries,
"But the life in her heart is warm."

"Death is but a dream of the night
And the hymn of joy is begun,
For slowly seeking the light
The great globe turns to the sun."

"Behold, I will bring delight
In place of darkness and cold;
Safe under the meadows so white Is hiding the buttercup gold."

"And summer's splendor shall reign
In place of the winter's dearth,
Her color and music again
Shall gladden the patient earth."

Hark to the New Year's Voice
Through the murk of winter drear!
Oh, children of men, rejoice!
At the tidings of hope and cheer.
—Celia Thaxter.

this time. I'm through with it. Half the town has heard of it, and the boys taunt me and the girls twit me. Not that I care for any of them except Milly Daniels, and she's true blue and stands by me, and I won't have her humbled and shamed. I'm going to spend this New Year's eve with the crowd, and I'll be home to breakfast."

"If you don't report here by ten o'clock I'll send the town marshal after you," pronounced his father, with fire in his eye.

Norman marched out of the house, hung around downtown until eight o'clock, and then repaired to the agreed-on rendezvous of the crowd, an old buggy shed attached to a great barn owned by Farmer Logan. He felt uneasy, stubborn and nettled. Recently he had been dared by his companions to smoke a cigarette. He had met the dare and now, with two of them in his pocket, he lit one, and, in sheer rebellion against his father's system, was about to puff out his resentment when the signal cry of his comrades echoed forth. Carelessly throwing the lighted cigarette into a corner of the shed, he bounded out and for over an hour forgot all save the excitement of the moment. The unruly coterie rolled a giant snowball and let it slide down the hill leading to the town common; they got up into the town hall tower and rang its bell. In the midst of setting loose a drove of cattle from a live stock enclosure they were attracted by the dash and rush of the village fire cart, making for a vivid, spreading glare.

"Why, it's Farmer Logan's place!" shouted a chorus of excited voices, and Norman Hardy's heart stood still. He recalled the cigarette and the littered woodshed. He stood dumb and scared. The flames completely engulfed the great frame barn. Norman slunk off alone by himself, oppressed with an appalling sense of guilt. His emotions were doubly intensified when he heard some one say:

"Logan thinks it was set ablaze. Arson. I pity the firebug if he's caught. It's straight 14 years in the penitentiary."

"It will ruin Logan, they say," spoke another. "The barn was stored with grain and machinery and the insurance ran out last week."

Norman was crushed with a sense of his culpability. He felt like flying from home, town and all the people he had ever known. He skulked behind a hedge as a group of girls came along. They were discussing the fire so excitedly that they paid no attention to a lone member of their group trailing on behind them. Norman noticed her, however. She was Milly Daniels. He startled her by stepping directly in her path.

"Just linger for a moment, will you, Milly?" he spoke under high agitation, "or I'll walk with you a bit. I'm in terrible trouble, and I'm going to leave town for good," and Norman related the entire story of the evening.

"There's only one way out, don't you see it, Milly?" he said. "I don't dare to face Farmer Logan; I'm going away to make something of myself, and the day I have got the money to make it square with Mr. Logan I'm coming back. And Milly, dear, you have been my truest friend and have always stood by me. Will you try to think of me while I'm gone, will you—will you wait for me? For I shall never love anybody but you."

Five years went by. Not a word had been heard from the truant son. Joel Hardy had forbidden even the mention of his name in the home. Mrs. Hardy, half heartbroken, repined in silence. Milly Daniels became an orphan, and when Mrs. Hardy needed a nurse and then a companion, it came about that she found a permanent home with the mother of the man she loved. She and Mrs. Hardy, with the tyrant father, all unaware of it, cherished a mutual memory of the absent youth and took comfort in watching and hoping for his return.

It was a few minutes after midnight, five years to a day since Norman Hardy had gone forth into the world to seek his fortune. Milly had pleaded to sit up and watch the old year out and the new year in. All three of the family, though in different ways, were thinking of the boy who had run away from home. The bells had just finished a resonant chime when the knob of the outside door turned. There stepped into the room a bronzed, stalwart young man, at a sight of whom Joel Hardy gasped incredulously, his wife uttered a joyous scream, and Milly stood breathless and fluttering.

"I waited till I was sure the final hour of discipline and the strap was past and gone," spoke Norman Hardy. "Mother," a warm embrace. "Father," and a sturdy hand reached out. "Milly," and the young girl awayed to and fro and would have fallen had not Norman caught her.

"I said I wouldn't come back till I could pay for the damage I did to good old Farmer Logan," continued Norman. "I've kept my word. I hear you are struggling with a two-thousand-dollar mortgage, father; I can pay it off and loan you as much more if you need it. Milly, dear, am I welcome? I have come to keep my promise true."

Joel Hardy left the room. He returned with the strap that had been so familiar to his son. Taking out his pocketknife, the old man proceeded to cut the strap to pieces and flung them into the blazing grate.

"You've cheated me out of several years, my son," he observed, "but I forgive you. It's enough to know that you are back home safe and sound this blessed New Year's day!"

Years Promise By Miriam Lee

Copyright, 1921. Western Newspaper Union.

NORMAN HARDY was born on New Year's day, and deemed the fact a decided misfortune. There was one feature in which his father specialized—system—and this involved discipline. "A strict disciplinarian," he would boast to his neighbors. "That's me," and he looked it and acted it out until Norman fancied he had been placed in the world simply to become the butt and victim of rigid rules.

When Norman's tenth birthday was hours distant, his father gave the order, sternly spoken: "You will be in the house for the night at seven o'clock," and Norman moped in a martyrlike way, envying his boy friends who had mapped out a joyous New Year's eve program of skating, bill sliding, and like boyish pranks. He wondered what was coming, but his father simply viewed him speculatively and sent him to bed at the usual time. He was awakened to find his father roughly pulling at his arm.

"Get up, Norman, and come down to the kitchen," said Joel Hardy; "you needn't dress."

Norman arose, rubbed his eyes, and followed his father downstairs. There was a light on the table and beside it the house clock. Norman noticed that it told the time as ten minutes to twelve. All was still and solemn except its monotonous tick, and outside an occasional echo of shouting, announcing impatient celebrants already prepared to herald in the new year.

"boy," spoke his father after a moment of ominous deliberation. "I was a lad of ten, my father gave me a lesson that has left its impress on my whole life in a salutary way. Upon the tick of midnight just preceding my birthday he always called me down to the kitchen and gave me a good sound strapping. It hurt him more than it did me, he used to say, but the reminder would be ever present with me. Until I was twenty-one, regularly, upon each birthday the strap played its part and I think it did a good deal towards teaching me that I had a master and in making me a better man. I have concluded to adopt that feature with my system. You're a pretty good boy, but for fear you might kick over the traces I'm going to bulk the system until you are of age. Now, then, take your punishment like a man."

Joel Hardy produced a short, thick piece of tanned cowhide and Norman winced, but did not cry out during the unique castigation. It was five years later, and with the usual routine late in the afternoon Joel Hardy reminded Norman of the pending midnight event. His eyes bulged and his face betrayed overwhelming amazement as Norman stood up before him, a tall, well-knit strapping, almost menacing in his bearing as he said:

"Father, there will be no strapping

CHAPTER XVIII—Continued.

A last curve, and they knew. Over one of the sharpest and ugliest of the descending precipices, crashing down through the saplings and underbrush and striking the trunks of a score of trees on its way, the heavy car had fallen like a boulder. And Peter saw that it was Alix's car, and with a great cry he sprang over the bank and, slipping and stumbling, followed its mad course down almost to the dry creek bed in the canyon, and fell on his knees beside the huddled figure that, erect and strong, in its striped blue gingham, had been Alix only a few short minutes ago.

She had been flung clear of the car, and although every bone in her body was broken, by some miracle the face, except for a deep cut where the brown hair met the tanned forehead, was untouched. And as he caught her in his arms and bent over her with the bitterness of death stopping his own heart, a soft, thick braid loosened and fell like the touch of her hand upon his own, and it seemed to him that in the tranquil face and in the very look of the closed and fast-shadowing eyelids he caught a glimpse of Alix's old smile.

Peter forgot everything else in the world. He held her close to him and put his face against her face, and perhaps she had never so truly been his own as in this moment of their parting, when the quiet autumn woodland, shot with long shafts from the sinking sun, rang with his bitter cry:

"No, Alix—not dead! My wife—my wife!"

There were other men and women gathering fast now, and the whole little valley was beginning to ring with the tragedy. After a while some sympathetic man touched Peter on the arm to say that Mrs. Lloyd had fainted, and that if he would please tell them what to do about the other man—he was not yet dead—

Peter roused himself, and with help from half a dozen hands on all sides he carried Alix up to the road and laid her upon a motor robe that some kindly spectator had spread in the deep dust.

Presently he was conscious that a small, slight woman with disorderly fair hair and with her face streaked with dust and tears was standing beside him, and looking down at her, he saw that it was Cherry.

"Yes, Cherry?" he said, moistening his dry lips.

"Peter," she said, "they say Martin's living—he was screaming—!" She grew deathly pale and faintness swept light for him again! But she did not stir.

"Gone?" said Cherry's heartrending voice, a mere whisper, beside him.

He turned upon her lifeless eyes.

"Gone," he echoed.

"Oh, Alix—my darling! My own big sister!" Cherry sobbed, falling to her knees and passionately kissing the peaceful face. "Oh, Alix, dearest!"

The women about broke into tears. Peter pressed his hand close against his aching eyeballs, wishing that he might cry.

"She drove here," he heard a man's voice saying in the silence, "and she must have lost control of her car for a minute. Then—do you see?—the wheel slipped on the bank. Once it got this far, no power in God's earth!"

"No power in God's earth!" another man's voice said in solemn confirmation.

"Peter," Cherry said, "will you come to me as soon as you can? I shall need you."

"As soon as I can," he answered absently.

The car drove away, and he heard Martin moan again as it moved.

"Joyce," said a man's kind voice close beside him. He recognized the voice rather than the distressed face of an old friend and neighbor. "Joyce, my dear fellow," he urged affectionately, "tell us what we may do and we'll see to it. Pull yourself together, my dear chap. Now, shall I telephone for an ambulance? You must help us just a little here and then we'll spare you everything else."

"Thank you, Fred," Peter answered after a moment. "Thank you. Will you help me take—my wife—home?"

"You wish it that way?" the other man said anxiously.

"Please," Peter answered simply. And instantly there was moving and clearing in the crowd, a murmuring of whispered directions.

After a while they were at the mountain cabin, and Kow, with tears running down his yellow face, was helping them. Then they went into the old living room, and Alix was lying there, splendid, sweet, untouched, with her brave, brown forehead shadowed softly by her brown hair, and her lashes resting upon her cheeks, and her fingers clasped about the stems of three great, creamy roses.

There were other flowers all about, and there were women in the room. White draperies fell with sweeping lines from the merciful veiling of the crushed figure, and Alix might have been only asleep, and dreaming some heroic dream that lent that secret pride and joy to her mouth and filled those closed eyes with a triumph they had never known in life.

Peter stood and looked down at her, and the men and women drew back. But although the muscles of his mouth twitched, he did not weep. He looked long at her, while an utter silence filled the room and while twilight deepened into dark over the cabin and over the mountain above it.

"So that was your way out, Alix?" Peter said in the depth of his soul. "That was your solution for us all? You would go out of life, away from the sunshine and the trees and the hills that you loved, so that Cherry and I should be saved? I was blind not to see it. I have been blind from the very beginning."

Silence. The room was filling with shadows. On the mantel was a deep bowl of roses that he remembered watching her cut—was it yesterday or centuries ago?

"I was wrong," he said. "But I think you would be sorry to have me face—what I am facing now. You were always so forgiving, Alix; you would be the first to be sorry."

He put his hand over the tigerish pain that was beginning to reach his heart. His throat felt thick and choked, and still he did not cry.

"An hour ago," he said, "if it had been that the least thought of what this meant to you might have reached me an hour ago, it would not have been too late. Alix, one look into your eyes an hour ago might have saved us all! Fred," Peter said aloud, with a bitter groan, clenching tight the hands of the old friend who had crept in to stand beside him. "Fred, she was here, in all her health and joy and strength only today. And now—"

"I know—old man—the other man muttered. He looked anxiously at Peter's terrible face. In the silence the dog whimpered faintly. But when Peter, after an endless five minutes, turned away, it was to speak to his friend in an almost normal voice.

"I must go down and see Cherry. Fred, she took her husband to the old house; they were living there."

"Helen will stay here," the old man assured him quickly. "I'll drive you down and come back here. We thought perhaps a few of us could come here tomorrow afternoon, Peter," he added timidly, with his reddened eyes filling again, "and talk of her a little, and pray for her a little, and then take her to—rest beside the old doctor—"

"I hadn't thought about that," Peter answered, still with the air of finding it hard to link words to thought. "But that is the way she would like it. Thank you—and thank Helen for me—"

"Oh, Peter, to do anything—" the woman faltered. "She came to us, you know, when the baby was so ill—day after day—my own sister couldn't have been more to us!"

"Did she?" Peter asked, staring at the speaker steadily. "That was like her."

He went out of the house and got into a waiting car, and they drove down the mountain. Alix had driven him over this road day before yesterday—yesterday—no, it was today, he remembered.

"Thank God I don't feel it yet as I shall feel it, Thompson!" he said quietly. The man who was driving gave him an anxious glance.

"You must take each day as it comes," he answered simply.

Peter nodded, folded his arms across his chest, and stared into the early dark. There was no other way to go than past the very spot where the horror had occurred, but Thompson told his wife later that poor Joyce had not seemed to know it when they passed it. Nor did he give any evidence of emotion when they reached the old Strickland house and entered the old hallway where Cherry had come lying in, a few short years ago, with Martin's first kiss upon her lips.

Two doctors, summoned from San Francisco, were here, and two nurses. Martin had been laid upon a hastily moved bed in the old study, to be spared the narrow stairs. The room was metamorphosed, the whole house moved about it as about a pivot, and there was no thought but for the man who lay, sometimes moaning and sometimes ominously still, waiting for death.

"He cannot live!" whispered Cherry, ghastly of face, and with the utter chaos of her soul and brain expressed by her tumbled frock and the carelessly pushed back and knotted masses of her hair. "His arm is broken, Peter, and his leg crushed—they don't dare touch him!" And the surgeon says the spine, too—and you see his head! Oh, God! It is so terrible," she said in agony, through shut teeth, knotting her hands together; "it is too terrible that he is breathing now, that life is there now, and that they cannot hold it!"

She led Peter into the sitting room, where the doctors were waiting.

"Is there any hope?" he asked, when Cherry had gone away on one of the restless, unnecessary journeys with which she was filling the endless hours. One man shook his head, and in the silence they heard Martin groan.

"It is possible he may weather it, of course," the older man said doubtfully. "He is coming out of that first stupor, and we may be able to tell better in a short time. The fact that he is living at all indicates a tremendous vitality."

Cherry came to the door to say "Doctor!" on a burst of tears. The physicians departed at once to the study, and Peter was immediately summoned to assist them in handling the big frame of the patient. Martin was thoroughly conscious now; his face chalk white, Cherry, agonized, knelt beside the bed, her frightened eyes moving from face to face.

There was a brief consultation, then Cherry and Peter were banished.

Peter watched her with a confused sense that the whole frightful day had been a dream. Once she looked up and met his eyes.

"He can't live," she said in a whisper.

"Perhaps not," Peter answered very low. Cherry returned to her somber musing.

"We didn't see this end to it, did we?" she said with a pitiful smile after a long while.

"Oh, no—no!" Peter said, shutting his eyes and with a faint, negative movement of his head.

"Poor Cherry—if I could spare you all this!" knotting his fingers and feeling for the first time the prick of bitter tears against his eyelids.

"Oh, there is nothing you can do," she said faintly and wearily after a while. And she whispered, as if to herself, "Nothing—nothing—nothing!"

CHAPTER XIX.

It was all strange and bewildering, thought Peter. It was not like anything he had ever connected in his thoughts with Alix, yet it was all for her.

The day was warm and still, and the little church was packed with flowers and packed with people. Women were crying, and men were crying, too, rather to his dazed surprise. The organ was straining through the warm, fragrant air, and the old clergyman, whose venerable, leonine head, in its crown of snowy hair, Peter could see clearly, spoke in a voice that was thickened with tears. Strangers, or almost strangers, had been touching Peter's hand respectfully, timidly, had been praising Alix. She had been "good" to this one, "good" to that one, they told him; she had always been so "interested" and so "happy."

Her coffin was buried in flowers, many of them the plain flowers she loved, the gillies and stock and verbena, and even the sweet, sober wall-flowers that were somehow like herself. But it was the roses that scented the whole world for Alix today, and fresh creamy buds had been placed between the waxen fingers. And still that radiant look of triumphant love lingered on her quiet face, and still the faint ghost of a smile touched the once, kindly and merry mouth.

They said good-by to her at the church, the villagers and old friends who had loved her, and Peter and two or three men alone followed her down along the winding road that led to the old cemetery. Cherry was hanging over the bedside of her husband, who still miraculously lingered through hours of pain, but as Peter, responsive to a touch on his arm, crossed the church porch to blindly enter the waiting motor car, he saw, erect and grave, on the front seat, in his decent holiday black, and with his felt hat held in his hands, Kow, claiming his right to stand beside the grave of the mistress he had loved and served so faithfully. The sight of him, in his clumsy black, instead of the usual crisp white, and with a sad and tear-stained face shook Peter strangely, but he did not show a sign of pain.

The twisted low branches of oak trees threw shadows on the grave when they finally reached it, and sheep were cropping the watered grass of the graveyard. The soft autumn sky, the drift of snowy clouds across the blue, the clear shadows on brown grass under the oaks, all these were familiar. But Peter still looked dazedly at his black cuff and at the turned earth next to the doctor's headstone, telling himself again that this was for Alix. How often he had seen her sitting there, with her bright face sobered and sweet, as she talked lovingly, eagerly of her father! They had often come here, Peter the more willingly because she was so sensible and happy about it; she would pack lunch, button herself into one of the crisp blue gingham, chatter on the road in her usual fashion. And if, for a few moments, the train of memory fired by the sight of the old doctor's grave became too poignant and tears came, she always scolded herself with that mixture of childish and maternal impatience that was so characteristic of her, and that Peter had seen her use to this very father years ago!

He remembered her, a tall, awkward girl, with a volume of Dickens slipping from her lap as she sat on a hassock by the fire, teasing her father, scolding and reproaching him. Blazing red on her high cheekbones, untidy black hair, quick tongue and ready laugh; that was the Alix of the old days, when he had criticized and patronized her, and told her that she should be more like Anne and little Cherry!

He remembered being delegated, one day, to take her into town to the dentist, and that upon discovering that the dentist was not in his office, he had taken her to the circus instead. She had been about thirteen, and had eaten too many peanuts, he thought, and had lost a petticoat in full sight of the grandstand. But how grateful and happy she had been!

"Dear little old blue petticoat!" he said. "Dear little old madcap Alix—!"

There was silence, the silence of inattention, about him. He came to himself with a start. He was up on the hills, in the cemetery—this was Alix's grave, newly covered with white masses of flowers, and he was keeping everybody waiting. He murmured an apology; the waiting men were all kindness and sympathy.

Salt and Dampness.

Salt is what is called "hygroscopic," that is, it eagerly absorbs moisture. In fact, both air and salt are absorbents of moisture and it is a contest between them as to which gets it. Results depend on atmospheric conditions. Ordinary atmosphere always contains a proportion of moisture, and warm air is apt to be more humid than cold, as it absorbs and holds water vapor more readily than cold air. Salt has such affinity for moisture that under such conditions it draws it from the air. When the air becomes dry, the moisture is given up by the salt, which in turn becomes dry as it returns the moisture to the air.

Make Funnel From Eggshell.

When it is desired to fill narrow-necked bottles and a funnel is unavailable, one can be improvised from an eggshell. The shell should be quite dry, and a small opening made at the bottom. Stand the shell so that the hole is well over the opening of the container to be filled, and proceed as with a regular funnel.

WOMEN GIVE OUT
Housework is hard enough when healthy. Every Weymouth woman who is having backache, blue and nervous spells, dizzy headaches and kidney or bladder troubles, should be glad to heed this Weymouth woman's experience:
Mrs. F. Harper, 173 Broad street, says: "For a long time I was troubled with my back and kidneys. I was stiff and lame in the small of my back down over my hips and my back ached most of the time. My kidneys didn't act right and caused much unrest. I read of Doan's Kidney Pills and used them. I have never been sorry for I gained excellent benefit. Moreover the benefit has remained permanent." (Statement given April 5, 1916.)

On February 11, 1921, Mrs. Harper said: "My opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills is just as high as ever. I always keep a box on hand and use them whenever my back or kidneys bother me. At these times a few Doan's always rid me of the attack. I am glad to re-endorse them."

A Brand of Packaged Fresh Fish

So Clean, Sweet and Odorless that Your Grocer Sells It

ARE you one of the great number of women who would like to have fish for dinner tonight if you could be assured that it was of good quality, that it had been handled with the same care and cleanliness as the milk you drink, and that it was as fresh and as odorless as it was the minute it was caught? Wouldn't you like to buy fresh fish that didn't have to be scaled or scraped? Fish all prepared so that you didn't have to bother about cutting off tails and heads?

Fish all ready to pop into the frying pan, or broiler, or oven? Wouldn't fish as firm and sweet as when taken from the cold waters of the Atlantic appeal to you?

Well—from now on you can buy just the kind of fresh fish you've always wanted to buy.

It's CHILPAK—a new trademarked brand of packaged fresh ocean fish, so clean, so sweet, and so odorless that your grocer sells it.

WHAT CHILPAK IS

CHILPAK—appeals to you and to everyone who values cleanliness and up-to-date methods of handling food. Let us tell you about it.

Every day great glistening hordes of cod, haddock, hake, halibut, pollock and sole are brought to our extensive headquarters at Rockland, Maine, by our swift fleet of steam trawlers. Our Inspection Department selects only the choice, plump, firm fish.

Cleaned—Ready for You to Cook—The fish are cleaned, heads and tails removed in our light, sanitary dressing stations. Every precaution is taken to insure cleanliness.

Chilled—Not Frozen—The clean, inviting fish are then chilled, not frozen, in pure ocean water pumped in fresh from the sea, by our new CHILPAK process of definite temperatures. No chemicals or preservatives are used—simply cold salt water.

Packaged—Each fish is now wrapped in snowy white parchment paper and sealed by our trademark band. The fish are then packed in specially constructed boxes to even further insure for you the rich and delicious flavor and quality of fresh-caught ocean fish. No dirty hands or smelly boxes ever touch CHILPAK fish.

Delivered Without Delay—CHILPAK fresh fish are shipped daily from Rockland, Maine, by special express and delivered to your grocer in our own fleet of trucks. There is no delay. Your grocer always has a supply of fresh CHILPAK fish.

CHILPAK Fresh Fish are Guaranteed—Because of the quality of the fish selected, the scrupulous care with which they are packed, your grocer guarantees the quality, the freshness and the cleanliness of every CHILPAK fish he sells.

Inexpensive—CHILPAK fish are no more expensive than fish handled in the ordinary way. You pay for heads, tails, fins, scales and entrails, a waste of 30% when you buy less appetizing fish. With CHILPAK you pay for solid meat—no waste. The prices in the left-hand margin are standard at all progressive grocery stores listed below.

CHILPAK packaged fresh fish means fresh fish, cleaned fish, fish with all the tang of the sea in them, fish that don't smell up your icebox, cooking utensils and kitchen,—fish of known quality and guaranteed to give you absolute satisfaction. All the old methods of handling fish have been discarded. The CHILPAK method is the new, modern, sanitary, enlightened way of handling fish.

Place an order with your grocer EARLY tomorrow. You'll be mighty glad you tried it. One trial will convince you that CHILPAK is the only kind of fresh ocean fish to buy.

EXPLAINING LACK OF DETAIL
Youthful Artist Had Excellent Reason for Leaving Out Characters in Her Illustration.

A primary class in one of the grade schools was asked to illustrate a story that had been read to the little ones by the teacher. The story told of three children going to a wood in a goat wagon, and staying until the sun went down. Most of the illustrations showed a hill and some grass.

"Why, what does your picture mean?" inquired the teacher. "Where are the goat and the children?" "They have all gone home," replied Opal.

WHY DRUGGISTS RECOMMEND SWAMP-ROOT

For many years druggists have watched with much interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine.

It is a man's prescription. Swamp-Root is a strengthening medicine for kidneys, liver and bladder. Nature intended they should stand the test of years.

It should help you. No other kidney medicine has so many friends. Be sure to get Swamp-Root and start treatment at once.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

Shaw and the Tourist.
George Bernard Shaw recently convulsed an audience by relating a story of a tourist who asked a rustic whether he was on the right track for Stratford-on-Avon. The yokel remained silent. "Come, come," said the tourist encouragingly. "Stratford—Shakespeare's town—Shakespeare, the famous poet, you know. Surely you know Shakespeare?" "Yus," replied the rustic, brightening. "Be you he?"

Strictly Neutral.
Dean was playing with his brother, Dick, and a neighbor boy, John, when John and Dick began to fight.

Dean came in the house and I asked him why he didn't help his brother, for I had been watching out the window.

"I just told him he could battle his own fights," he said.—Chicago Tribune.

It is the silent man that is usually worth listening to.

Old Year—New Year

NEW Year, New Year.
What do you bring?
Your bag might hold Anything!

Old Year, Old Year.
What will you do
With all the hope
That I gave you?

There is a moment
When you meet,
Like two travelers
On one street.

Old Year, New Year.
In the sky,
Out where the winds
And ghosts go by.

Old Year, Old Year.
What do you say,
Meeting the New on The Milky Way?

You took from me
Like a thief,
Larkspur joy and Juniper grief.

But you leave me
One bright hour,
Glad like sun on
A crimson flower.

This is mine
Eternally,
You may not Take it from me!

New Year, New Year.
What do you Hear as you pass him
In the blue?

Old Year, Old Year.
Where do you go,
Out on that path
Men do not know?

To Travel Heavenward

TO BE strong and true; to be generous in praise and appreciation of others; to impute worthy motives even to enemies; to give without expectation of return; to practice humility, tolerance and self-restraint; to make the best use of time and opportunity; to keep the mind pure and the judgment charitable; to extend intelligent sympathy to those in distress; to cultivate quietness and nonresistance; to speak little and listen much; to adhere always to a high standard of thought, purpose and conduct; to grow in grace, goodness and gratitude; to seek truth and righteousness; to work, love, pray and serve daily; to aspire greatly, labor cheerfully and take God at His word—this is to travel heavenward.—C. M. W. in N. Y. M. C.

To Welcome the New Year.

A PRETTY ceremony handed down from the past is to open the front door promptly on the stroke of midnight for the passing of the old year to the new year, who is just about to commence his earthly career.

NEW YEAR'S EGGS.

The Persians still exchange presents of eggs at New Year's just as we do at Easter. But the rest of us now do our giving of presents at Christmas parties, though we may give to each other on January 1. In Scotland and England everybody calls on everybody else New Year's day, and drinks punch. Here in America calling has gone out of style, but if we do nothing more, we at least shout "Happy New Year" to everybody we meet on New Year's morning. When we shout that, we mean good luck to them for all the new year through.

NEVER AGAIN
Ostrich—New-fangled breakfast food, eh? Well I swore off from that stuff the first of last year!

PUMPKIN PIE.

Stew the pumpkin and rub through a colander. Beat the yolks of four eggs light; add a cupful of sugar and beat until you have a quart of the stewed pumpkin. Pour in a quart of milk, a teaspoonful of nutmeg, and cinnamon. Fold in the stiffened whites of four eggs. Line a deep pie plate with puff paste, then fill with the pumpkin and bake in a moderate oven till done.

SHORT LIFE IS LONG.

As the cartoonists have it, a year comes in as a baby and 365 days later dies as an old man. How fortunate it is that the human comes in as a human and not as a year.

Cleaning Off the Slate

The New Year

THE year that has just closed means something different to most everybody. To some it has brought a great joy; to others a great sorrow; to many, both grief and gladness in full measure. Many of us have gone along the regular, uneventful path, filled with the happiness of love and work and the joy of everyday things, which, after all, is the best happiness.

To youth the New Year means a long, pleasure-filled evening and the writing of a new date on their letters. They look neither forward nor back. They make resolutions because it seems the correct thing to them to do. They keep them sometimes and it helps make them better men and women, but it is not a serious matter with them—just as is natural for youth.

Older folks involuntarily look back a bit on the even of a new year—not systematically, but with a general sweeping glance that usually makes them a bit uncomfortable at things left undone or failures to make good as they had intended. Maybe there has been just one thing accomplished that gives them a little warm feeling round their hearts—maybe not.

The great sorrow or great joy stands out with more meaning to them than to youth. 'Tis another milestone passed.

The New Year may not present very bright prospects to some, but these same older folks know that there is something better in store than what the immediate future seems to offer—know that unhappy things can't last—that they are pretty sure to lead to something greater and better—know that even if they can't understand the reason for sorrow and trouble that there is a reason—know it deep down within themselves, though outwardly they resent and rebel against fate. It is not blind faith or optimism that teaches this, but reason and knowledge of life.

Older folks know that the year is bound to bring happiness and relief to those who are now bearing sorrow and trouble.—Mrs. J. E. Leslie, in the Detroit News.

BLACK NEW YEAR PUDDING

Ingredients: One cupful black molasses; one cupful thick sour milk; one dessertspoonful soda; beat well. Add one teaspoonful salt; one grated nutmeg; one-eighth pound citron, chopped fine; one-fourth pound suet, chopped fine; four dry figs, chopped fine; one dozen almonds, minced fine; one cupful seeded raisins; three raw tart apples, chopped coarsely; three cupfuls flour. Mix all together, steam in a buttered mold for three hours and dry for 15 minutes in an oven. Serve with any good pudding sauce. This will serve 15 persons.

RESOLUTIONS.

Resolved: To save my money
And lead a frugal life.
Resolved: To do my duty
And still abstain from strife.
Resolved: To give up smoking
And never touch a drop.
Resolved: To heed the speed laws
And ne'er offend a cop.
Resolved: To quit complaining
And smile whenever I can.
Resolved: To cease from knocking
And praise my fellow man.
Resolved—but what's the use of My plunging in so deep?
I've made more resolutions
Than any man could keep.

CENTER PIECE HINT.

To launder heavy embroidered round or oval center pieces, wash and starch quite stiff. While wet, divide into fourths or eighths, place paper on rug and pin to floor, as you would stretch curtains on a stretcher. When dry remove pins, and you will have a center done up beautifully, without any ironing.

DICE LONG KNOWN TO WORLD

Amusement is Probably the Most Ancient Game, According to Records of Old Writers.

The oldest amusement in the world is dice-throwing. In some form or another, dice have existed in every period of history. They are shown on early Egyptian monuments, and some dug up at Thebes recently are exactly similar to those in use today. They are mentioned in laws regulating games played in ancient Greece and Rome and most other countries in Europe. The invention of dice is attributed to Palamedes, one of the heroes who sailed against Troy, about the year 1244 B. C., but the use of cubes with numbered sides for gambling purposes is probably much earlier.

Frequent passages in the works of ancient writers and numerous representations in marble and paintings show how popular dice-playing was among them.

MOTHER, QUICK! GIVE

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP

FOR CHILD'S BOWELS

Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup." If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, cross, feverish, full of cold, or has colic, a teaspoonful will never fail to open the bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation poison, sour bile and waste from the tender, little bowels and gives you a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

Poetic Farewells.

So smooth a writer as Henry Van Dyke has found a soft spot in his heart for "so long," used in parting. Although believing that it came to this country fresh and hot from the cockney dialect of London, he avers that the next time he parts from a person "not too dignified to be loved," he is going to use it. He deprecates the fact that we have no phrase similar to the German "an wiedersehen," the Italian "a rivederci," and the French "au revoir." (He might have added the Spanish "Hasta la vista," prettiest of all) each meaning "until I see you again." So he dresses up "so long" with the signification, "So long as we are parted may no harm befall you," or "Till we meet again it will seem so long." Apparently he would make it express as much as "Mizpah," which says: "May the Lord watch between thee and me while we are absent one from the other."

Queer Eels of Hawaii.

It has just been announced from the Leland Stanford, Jr., university, that as a result of the eruption of Mauna Loa, Hawaii, two years ago, six specimens of fish entirely new to science were thrown upon the shore of the islands. One was a conger eel, with hooks on its snout, resembling blackberry thorns. They were all deep-water fish, coming from a depth of 150 to 1,000 feet.

Desirable Interchange.

"Statesmanship often indulges in lengthy discussion." "I approve of it," declared Senator Sorghum; "the hope of civilization depends on making conversation so pleasant and interesting that people will not permit it to be interrupted by fighting."

WOULD HAND LORD DOLLAR

But Some People Will Doubt Whether Such a Man Will Ever Get Close Enough.

A young man in Missouri was collecting funds for a benevolent institution. He tried hard to get a dollar from an old gentleman who was noted for his closeness.

When the young man had stated his mission and asked for the dollar, the elderly person asked:

"Well, young man, how old are you?"

"I am twenty-five," said the youth. "Well," continued the old gentleman, "I am seventy-five years old, and as you are only twenty-five years, I think that I will get to see the Lord sooner than you. I will hand him the dollar myself."—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

To Teach Correct English.

Children should be encouraged to talk, to observe and to describe the things that interest them in the course of the day. In this way they will form the habit of the intelligent reporter or who, on the way to his desk from an assignment, plans his article, eager to find the best way of telling his story. Instead of making a hateful mystery of English speech, it should be made the most natural thing in the world, worthy of the effort necessary to give it accuracy, ease and charm. The scraps of conversation I overhear every day in elevators, across counters, on the street and in trolley cars are of a nature to disturb those who view with intense satisfaction the great treasure we pour into education, believing that where the investment is so generous the dividends must be proportionately large.—Merredith Nicholson in Scribner's Magazine.

Many Mountains Nameless.

At least sixty mountains in California rise more than 13,000 feet above sea level, but they stand amid a wealth of mountain scenery so rich and varied that they are not considered sufficiently noteworthy to be named, according to the United States geological survey, department of the interior. Yet if any one of these unnamed mountain peaks were in the eastern part of the United States it would be visited annually by millions of people. But California has 70 additional mountain peaks more than 13,000 feet high that have been named, or 130 in all, as well as a dozen that rise above 14,000 feet.—Scientific American.

176,000,000 Lives Saved.

Superintendent C. F. Culler reports that approximately 176,000,000 fish were rescued from landlocked waters along the Mississippi river during the season which closed November 1.

This work establishes a record in the history of the bureau's operations and serves to illustrate the tremendous mortality to which the river fishes are liable because of physical conditions resulting from freshets.—Fisheries Service Bulletin.

Not So Catching.

"I hear your father is ill." "Yes, quite ill." "Contagious disease?" "I hope not; the doctor says its overwork."—Carnegie Puppet.

"Colonel, should a dry goods store sell soda water?" "Yes, I guess it's dry enough."

A society composed of members who agree to study their own faults would have plenty to do.

History as She is Quoted.

The woman was shopping in a State street department store. She wanted hat. There were two others at the counter, shopping, without wanting anything. The tall, thin one lifted a brown velvet tricorne shape to the light. "Pretty, isn't it?" she asked her pretty friend, who carried a book under her arm.

"Yes, very," answered the friend; "reminds me of Napoleon."

"Napoleon?" queried the tall one, whose fluffy hair covered a vacuum. "How and when Napoleon?"

"Oh," answered she of the book, with superior disdain. "Don't you know? Napoleon crossing the Delaware!"—Chicago Journal.

MIDDIES EXULT AS VICTORIOUS GRIDIRON SQUAD RETURNS HOME

There was great rejoicing at Annapolis when the Naval Academy team returned from New York after its victory over the Army team. Many of the midshipmen stood for two hours in a pouring rain to pay homage to the returning heroes. When the train arrived players and coaches were seized by the midshipmen and carried to the old Japanese gong, which, according to custom, was rung in honor of the victory, seven peals being sounded. Each member of the squad, starting with Captain Larson, and of the coaching staff, starting with Head Coach Folwell, was then called upon for a brief address. The celebration was continued in the rotunda of Bancroft hall.

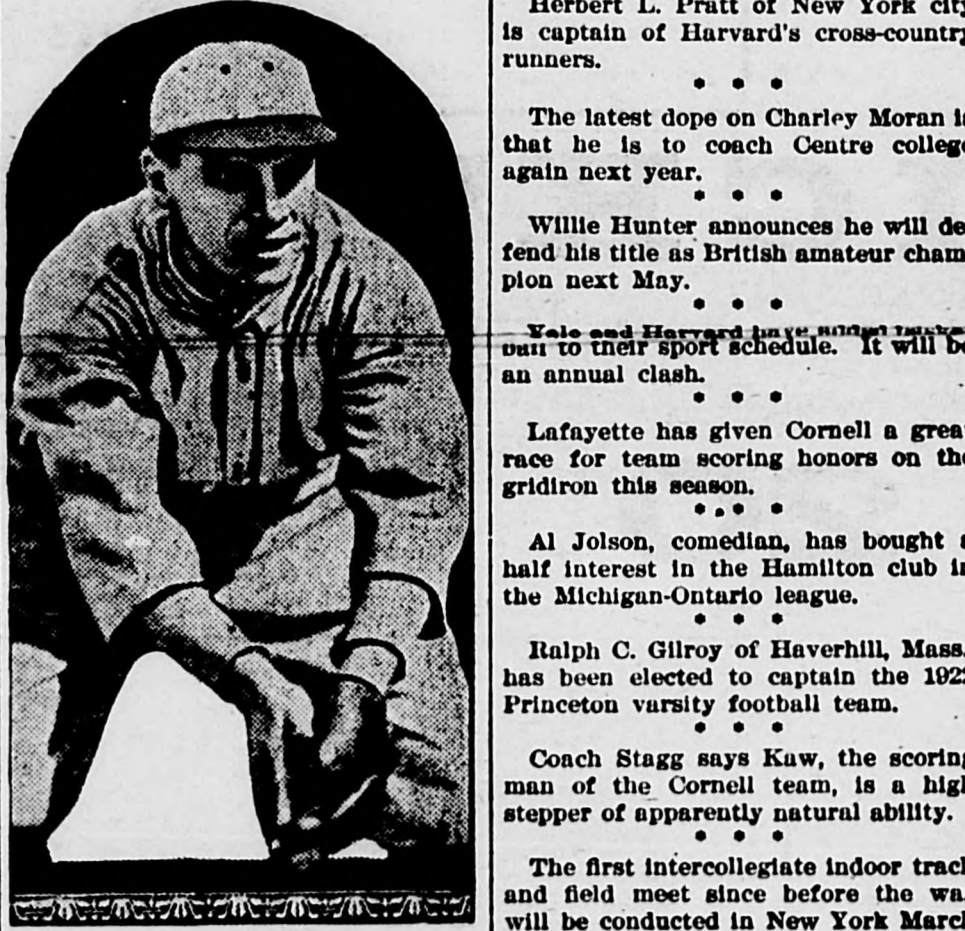

The middies will suffer the heaviest losses in years by graduation next June, as six members of the team belong to the first class. Those who will graduate are: Captain Larson, center; Frauley, right guard; King and Wiedern, tackles; and Cruise and Koehler, backs.

NEW EMPLOYMENT FOR LAVAN

St. Louis Cardinal Shortstop Abandons Practice of Medicine to Sell Automobiles.

John Lavan, shortstop of the St. Louis Cardinals, has abandoned the practice of medicine and taken over an automobile agency in St. Louis.

Maybe he found too many ball players in the doctoring game in the Mount City. Among them are Joe Evans of the Cleveland Indians and Walter Shay, well-known minor leaguer, to say nothing of several former ball players who have taken up the work of curing the ills humanity imagines itself subject to.

COULD RUN FAST AND SLIDE

Dick Cooley of Boston Team, Circled Bases After Davey Jones Had Caught the Ball.

"I was playing with the Chicago Cubs back in 1903," said Davey Jones, one time Tiger star, who still battles a bit for the Detroit Athletic club's team. We were facing the Boston Beane in a certain series, and the latter had a player named Dick Cooley, who wasn't any too fond of running.

"He hit a terrible liner toward center field, which I speared with one hand. It so happened that few of the players could see me catch it and I kept on for the clubhouse as if chasing the grounder.

"Joe Cantillon, now manager of Minneapolis, was umpiring, and he saw in a flash the job I was trying to put over on Cooley. So he ran behind Dick, every step of the way, yelling: 'Touch every base, for I'm watching you.'

"When he got a few yards from home somebody shouted: 'Slide, Dick, slide!'

"This Cooley did, making a beautiful hook slide and rising with a smile.

"As he turned to go to the bench Cantillon howled: 'You're out!'

"Dick wheeled as if shot.

"What for?" he snapped.

"Jones caught that ball."

"You never saw a man so mad as Cooley that afternoon. Jim Hart, owner of the Cubs, was sitting in a box near by, and he nearly passed away laughing."

BEFORE HEALTH BREAKS DOWN

Wise People Take Pepto-Mangan, the Blood Builder.

The prevention of sickness is one of the greatest works of the public health authorities. People are being taught how to take care of their bodies so that they can avoid sickness. In schools children are being taught hygiene. Serious illness can be avoided by proper care of the health. Pale faces, sickly bodies, loss of appetite and sleep, headaches and nervousness are usually signs of weak blood. With poor blood, the body has no resistance. Disease germs have an easy time of it. People are learning the necessity of keeping blood in good condition. They take Gude's Pepto-Mangan when they feel run down. That keeps blood normal so that it can resist disease. It is sold in both liquid and tablet form at drug stores. Advertisement.

The Critic.

The brilliant Edgar Saltus of unhappy memory sat in his club one afternoon when a widower entered.

The widower, with a deep sigh, sank into a chair, pressed a black-bordered handkerchief to his eyes and groaned:

"I tell you, Saltus, old man, a chap never realizes the full value of his wife till he loses her."

"True, true," said Mr. Saltus, "and especially true if she was insured."

A Materialist's Decision on Ducks.

It is possible, Lord Grey has found, to bore one's friends with talk about birds. In an after-dinner speech at a Selborne society gathering he recalled an instance when he himself had talked freely about his waterfowl. His listener gave vent to his boredom in a pregnant sentence: "Ducks should be talked about only when they are cooked."—Manchester Guardian.

A GOOD EXAMPLE

Following the election of Allan Gray as commander of Cecil W. Fogg Legion Post, Hyde Park, last week the members adopted a resolution deploring "attempts at violence to influence the judge and jury" in the Sacco-Vanzetti case.

The action followed an address by the present commander, Clement Norton who pleaded that District Attorney Katzman "be supported by the American Legion in his endeavor to carry out justice, that the radical element that is seeking to terrorize the Government officials be rebuked by the American Legion and that Dist. Atty. Katzmann receive a vote of confidence for his fairness throughout the entire trial." The post so voted.

Ex-Commander Norton stated his efforts in the future will be devoted among the ex-service men of New England "to combat the radical influences seeking to create a wrong impression of this trial and to see to it that the officials of the trial are protected."

THE NEW YEARS CARD.

Good customs of one age may be come somewhat of a burden to another. Each year, in the orderly course of a man's affairs, especially a person of prominence, his list of friends becomes larger and what should be a pleasure of this season is apt to become a rather wearisome task, even if it does not become impossible from sheer size. The world grows and the concentration of population heaps upon many a man a friendly desire or a practical obligation to remember by cards a host of close acquaintances. While the glad note of joy and goodwill is sounding, there is apt to be a jar upon the senses from the effort to extend the greetings of the season to all whom one holds in memory, says Transcript, and comments as follows:

It is gratifying to find the institution of Christmas becoming more and more a time of supreme joy and gladness. The "community celebration of Boston, which is spreading throughout the country, is one to thrill the spirit. The cup of joy would be brimming over but for a custom which was all right in its day of smaller communities and is suitable today perhaps for the ordinary man. When a man can reach his close acquaintances and extend the spoken greeting of "A Merry Christmas" or "A Happy New Year," well and good. When he can supplement this by a reasonable distribution of Christmas cards to those harder to reach, the case in the same.

Beyond this point, or when it is necessary to spend hours in making up a lengthy mailing list, the joy is diluted with weariness. A man in this position, Rev. Dr. Buel, former dean of Boston University School of Theology, suggests a way out which may prove a boon to those fortunate ones so blessed with a multitude of friends. The newspaper is the medium of dissemination of news primarily of personal happenings. The things of human interest are the first consideration. The newspaper is the means of giving notice of weddings, deaths and all important events of our lives. The man who is sorely pressed to reach his friends by simple means can secure with little trouble and small expense a bit of space in the columns of newspaper and he is sure to reach the host of friends whom he would remember and be remembered by. And withal comes relief for the postman who must trudge his weary way on Christmas morning to deliver the individual greetings which custom decrees shall be sent broadcast at this season.

Dr. Buel has sent his Christmas greetings to his hosts of friends by means of a paid advertisement in the paper which he thinks most of them read.

NEW SERIES OF MAXWELL

"The new series of the good Maxwell continues to attract more visitors to our garage than we ever had before in the history of our business," says A. O. Lee of the Bayside garage, local Maxwell dealer.

"And why shouldn't it? It is the first series of 'big-little' cars ever put on the market—something for which the public has been watching these past few years.

"The motor, tried and proven throughout the country since last year, has an improved transmission and strengthened rear axle.

"Longer springs, a wider, stronger frame, larger, lower bodies, a larger radiator and a slightly longer hood, combine to give the good Maxwell the same appearance and riding qualities that characterize the much larger type of cars.

"So many little details of refinement have been added that people who have seen the cars two or three times continue to discover conveniences they had not found before.

"Women have been particularly delighted with the closed models, many returning time and again bringing friends to view the cars.

"So, while, as we say, we have had more visitors this past four of five weeks than ever before, we are not surprised. The new series of the good Maxwell was bound to meet with popular favor."
